3D ARMY SMASHES AHEAD IN TWIN BLOWS AT SAAR

Seizes 12 Pillboxes in North; Nears Border in South.

The stubborn German resistance along the entire front, the allied supreme command said, has cost the enemy the equivalent of 17 divisions in the first three weeks of the current winter offensive.

There was heavy fighting all along the 3d army line.

Crack Maginot Line.

The 26th division cracked the Maginot defense near Achen, seven miles southeast of Sarreguemines, which the Germans had converted to their own use, and joined the 35th division on the east bank of the Saar river for a drive from the south on the rich Saarland, already under attack from the west.

Part of the 35th, which crossed at Sarreguemines, pushed on north into Neunkirch, less than half a mile from the Saar basin's frontier in the forefront of a potential enveloping drive against Saarbrucken, eight miles northwest.

The 26th was the first to cross the Saar, breaking across last month about 17 miles south of Sarreguemines, and since then has been driving up the east bank. It advanced up to two miles today.

Wipe Out Nazi Salient.

The 6th armored division wiped out an enemy salient three miles deep and two miles wide located five miles southeast of Saarbrucken.

The 90th division, pressing deeper into the Siegfried line in the western Saar basin seized the Dillingen railroad station two miles north of Saarlautern and beat back a strong enemy counter blow inside Dillingen. This division also knocked out 12 more pillboxes in a slow gouging into the west wall.

The German attack at Dillingen was made by 600 infantry men and 11 tanks. Fighting raged from house to house and wall to wall yesterday before the Germans gave up and withdrew from the town.

Fight Inside Saarlautern.

Fighting still was in progress inside Saarlautern, and a German force massing for a counter-attack against the Saar bridgehead there was broken up by artillery fire. Both the 95th division here and the 90th division to the north were under heavy fire from the Siegfried line.

The 5th division, operating south of Saarlautern, continued its advance and reached the junction of the Saar and Roselle rivers.

[The German agency Transocean declared the 3d army on the Aachen front was attacking with six to ten tank divisions and four mechanized infantry divisions—far more than the allies have announced.]

7th Keeps Drive Rolling.

The United States 7th army kept the winter offensive rolling all the way east to the Rhine with attacks northwest of Haguenau within four miles of Germany and was hacking

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 9.—With both German and allied commanders preparing their forces for the next phase of the battle of Germany, there seems little likelihood of an American break-thru at this moment. Instead, the winter campaign probably will be a slow and costly fight for every yard of ground, at least until the Rhine river is secured and crossed.

These conclusions seem evident after a tour of this front. After studying the character of the battles following the capture of Aachen, examining the Nazi defense system, and considering what Field Marshal Von Rundstedt has been able to achieve in mustering his reserves, any chance for a spectacular crushing or encirclement of the Germans appears to be remote.

Elaborate Defense System.

From our present battle lines just west of the Roer river on back to the Rhine, the Germans have installed an elaborate and tricky defense in depth system. To man these works, which include perfect artillery observation and plotting as well as natural and man made fortifications, the German high command has massed its greatest force of soldiers. It is keeping its highest caliber troops and most of its tanks in reserve for a showdown battle.

More than 70 German divisions face Gen. Eisenhower's six allied armies. This isn't as formidable a force as such figures would have meant at the start of the war, when a German division totaled about 15,000 men. Now a division more often contains 7,000 men or at maximum 10,500, but it is still a hard striking force.

Showing their own awareness of the American and British threat to the Ruhr valley and the heart of the entire German industrial structure, the Germans have concentrated their best troops, and more of them, against the 1st and 9th armies. This in itself is one obvious reason why our progress daily is measured in yards rather than miles, why this battle for the Roer river has been so severe, and why one of our crack divisions, the Fighting 1st, believes the engagements just completed in the Hamich-Herstein-Langerwehe area the fiercest it has ever fought, including the Normandy landing on D-day.

Germans Fight Fiercely.

The Germans we are now engaged in battling have a different attitude from the thousands who were killed in France and the hundreds of thousands who were captured. They are fighting like the R. A. F. pilots did in the battle of Britain, like the Finns fought for their country, like the Red army fought for its own soil.

Many are fighting with little hope of victory, but determined to obey orders to hold to the last man in an effort to save Germany. Others, un-

LAIRD CREGAR, FILM STAR, SUCCUMBS TO HEART ATTACK AT 28

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 9 (AP).—Laird Cregar, 28, motion picture character actor, died tonight. He had been stricken with a heart attack this morning.

Laird Cregar.

Cregar underwent an abdominal operation last Monday after dieting away 100 of his 300 pounds. His physician said he rallied from his heart attack when placed in an oxygen tent this morning, but later took a turn for the worse.

He first won Hollywood recognition for his role in the play "Oscar Wilde."

He first appeared in "Hudson's Bay" with Paul Muni and his other pictures included "Blood and Sand," "Charlie's Aunt," "Hot Spot," "This Gun for Hire," "Heaven Can Wait," "Holy Matrimony," and "The Lodger."

NEW GRAPEFRUIT PASSES TEST OF 'EYE' WITNESSES

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 9 (AP).—Five western governors applied the squirt test to Arizona-California desert grapefruit today and came up with the verdict there's not a jet in a crateful.

Said Gov. Osborn of Arizona when the last segment disappeared:

"Governors Maw of Utah, Dempsey of New Mexico, Carville of Nevada, Ford of Montana, and I all put desert grapefruit to an exhaustive test. We can say this: Desert grapefruit definitely does not squirt."

Women Riot to Get Butter; Strip Grocery

Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 9 [Special].—Two hundred women went butter berserk in his self service super market yesterday, William R. Navarra, the manager, related ruefully today as he surveyed bare shelves and empty refrigerators.

Navarra said the women staged a two hour riot, cleaning out his stock of butter and sugar on a "grab and run" basis. Except in a few instances they paid neither in cash nor ration points, he said.

At the height of the pillaging one woman who was trying to scoop sugar out of a barrel was pushed into a crate of eggs, he said. Eggs and woman crashed the floor, and 15 dozen eggs were broken, making slippery going for the pushing mob.

Butter Limit Starts Riot.

Butter, eggs, and sugar have been scarce articles in local markets recently, Navarra said, and grocers have been restricting sales to each customer. A woman's resentment at being limited to a half pound of butter touched off the riot.

The woman angrily demanded to know if the store didn't have more butter than what was being doled out.

"All we have is right here," said the clerk.

With a contemptuous sniff the woman bolted to the storeroom. She emerged triumphantly in a few moments, holding a pound of butter in each hand and waving them aloft.

All over the crowded store women paused to look, and a spontaneous assault on the storeroom followed.

Refrigerator Stripped.

"My clerks and I didn't have a chance," said Navarra. "All I had was two assistants on the floor, two meat cutters, and three cashiers. The women paid no attention to us."

A refrigerator containing a week's allotment of butter was stripped. Customers fought each other, snatching packages from each other's baskets. Some grabbed butter and sugar out of orders made up for delivery. One woman slapped another and knocked off her glasses.

Navarra said he was so busy trying to quiet the women that it never occurred to him to call police. Except to say it was "a week's supply" he declined to reveal how much stock had been taken. He said most of the women were strangers to him.

"There was only one man customer in the place when it started," he said, "and he got out in a hurry."

PRISON TO PUT LUSTIG OUT IN COLD WORLD; PLEA TO STAY DENIED

"We have an inmate here who doesn't want to leave," a guard at the Stateville prison reported yesterday to Warden Joseph E. Ragen. "He says he likes it here and asks if he can't stay."

The convict was Emil Lustig, 52, a brother of the counterfeiter known in Chicago as "Count" Lustig. Emil is completing a sentence of one year to 15 months given him on Oct. 7, 1943, by Judge Francis Allegretti, who found him guilty of obtaining money by means of a confidence game.

"I have no place to go and I would like to stay here," Emil told Warden Ragen, who called on him after hearing the guard's report.

"I'm complimented," Ragen said. "I wish I had more here like you. But, I'm sorry, I can't accommodate you. Under the law I may not keep you here one day longer than the court's order calls for."

HERO'S PARENTS GIVE INSURANCE TO BOYS' CAMP

Mr. and Mrs. John Clubb, 1206 W. 150th st., East Chicago, Ind., whose son, Pvt. Robert Clubb, 26, was killed on Saipan, have donated his $10,000 war risk insurance to a projected boys' camp, they disclosed yesterday.

"We feel we could not touch a cent of the money," they said. The check was turned over to the Rev. Michael A. Campagna, pastor of Immaculate Conception church in East Chicago, who is sponsoring a Lake county camp to train boys for trades and professions.

Pvt. Clubb, an infantry scout, was killed when he detected a Japanese ambush on the Pacific island.

Mr. and Mrs. Clubb are steel mill employes.

Boy on Crutches Bags Deer with First Shot

Lancaster, Pa., Dec. 9 (AP).—Because of an automobile accident, Harold Styer, 18, was forced to do his deer hunting on crutches. He spied a target, let the crutches drop, and brought down an eight point buck with his first shot.

GREEK LEADERS NEGOTIATE FOR END OF REVOLT

British Tell ELAS to Quit Athens.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 9.—Negotiations to end the Greek civil war are going on between the British and representatives of the EAM [national liberation front] and its armed auxiliary, the ELAS, it was learned today. Alexander Svolos, EAM leader, has contacted Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie, British commander in Greece.

Scobie, it was said, informed the intermediary that the guerrillas now fighting in Athens must quit the city before any discussions can take place and this message has been taken back to the guerrilla leaders. A further meeting is in prospect and perhaps a compromise can be effected which will end the revolt.

[An ELAS general was reported to have surrendered last night, said the Associated Press. The AP report also stated that liberal mediators indicated peace might be restored by today or tomorrow.]

Mediation Attempted.

Meanwhile, Svolos and two other former cabinet ministers who were among six leftists to resign from Premier George Papandreou's government, stated that they were "striving as mediators with a view to finding some possible means of negotiations." Svolos is the former finance minister. His two colleagues are former Minister of Transport Nicolas Askoutsis and former Finance Under Secretary Anghelopoulos. This group claims to represent the liberal factions within the EAM, rather than the extreme left.

Representatives of the United States state department have made no move toward settling the revolt and bringing peace to war torn Greece. Just as in Italy where a tense political situation also prevails, American diplomats in Greece have maintained discreet silence. The United States seems chiefly interested in bringing in food.

Mass Outside Athens.

In spite of attempts of the EAM leaders to bring about an end to the left wing revolt, additional ELAS forces were reported tonight to be arriving outside of Athens. Meanwhile the British found little open hostility outside the city.

[British, American, and soviet military missions are still at ELAS headquarters at Lamia in central Greece, according to an official Greek government announcement broadcast by ABSIE, the American broadcasting station in Europe.]

The fact that Gen. Stephanos Serafis, chief leader of the ELAS, or left wing forces, is now in Hassia, less than 20 miles northwest of Athens with 10,000 more heavily armed men, adds further confusion to the situation. The British have begun to differentiate carefully between Serafis' ELAS fighters and the guerrillas fighting in Athens. They say that Serafis, since the revolt began, has promised not to take part in it and they infer that the guerrillas in Athens are not true ELAS but fanatical elements

LONDON, Dec. 10 [Sunday]—(AP).—Russian troops have smashed to within nine miles of the heart of Budapest at two points and sealed off the larger part of the city on the eastern bank of the Danube river by breaking thru to the river at captured Vac, 13 miles above the Hungarian capital, Moscow announced last night.

At the same time Russian troops have crossed the river 13 miles southwest of the city in a big envelopment drive, Moscow said.

Berlin disclosed that the Hungarian government had fled to the Austrian frontier town of Sopron as two big soviet armies in a double flanking movement converged on the besieged city and also sent columns far around it on the northwest toward Czecho-Slavakia and Austria.

Advance 37 Miles.

Premier-Marshal Stalin in an order of the day announced that the 2d Ukraine army had advanced up to 37 miles on a 75 mile front, hurling the Germans back to the former Czecho-Slovakian border north of Budapest.

The army's central columns captured the eastern suburbs of Rakosliget, penetrating to within nine miles of the heart of Budapest, while the southern wing overran most of 30 mile long Csepel Island in the Danube due south of Budapest, capturing a town only five miles from Budapest's municipal boundary.

Crossing the Danube at Ercsi, 13 miles southwest of Budapest, the 2d army established a solid link with the 3d Ukraine army pushing up the west bank of the river from the south, Stalin said.

Near Big Stronghold.

This contact was made at Velencze Lake, 22 miles southwest of Budapest. This six mile long lake reaches within four miles northeast of Szekesfehervar, last big axis stronghold southwest of Budapest.

The fall of Szekesfehervar would release a large part of the 3d army for another drive thru western Hungary while 2d army troops are engaged in a twin offensive above the Danube bend northwest of Budapest.

Pushing into the foothills of 2,700 foot Borzsony mountains, last big natural defense line before the Slovakian plains, the Russians were within 88 miles of Bratislavia, Slovak capital, and 118 miles of Vienna.

BRINGS DOWN 2 JAPS WITHOUT A SINGLE SHOT

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 13TH AIR FORCE ON LEYTE ISLAND, P. I., Dec. 8 [Delayed].—Lt. Reland Rees, Muncie, Ind., P-38 pilot, took out after a Jap torpedo plane attempting to raid shipping in Leyte gulf today. Rees got him in his sights, fired, but all his guns except one jammed. He chased the Jap 50 miles.

Still unable to get a shot with his only working gun, he turned to come back. The Jap, barely skimming the water, turned also, dipped his wing into the sea, and crashed.

Later Rees caught a Zero in his sights. This time all guns jammed. The Zero, also flying low, slowed in an attempt to make Rees overshoot. But the Jap slowed too much. He lost flying speed and his plane crashed—making Rees probably the only pilot in the Pacific theater to bring down two Japs without firing a shot.

ORDER AIMED AT WORKERS IN NON-WAR JOBS

Seven Day Week for Truck Tire Plants.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP).—Drafting of men aged 26 to 37 was ordered increased tonight to provide replacements for soldiers and sailors released to war plants short of man power.

War Mobilization Director Byrnes asked this step as the government drove to get 300,000 needed workers into war industries and bring lagging production of critical materials up to schedule.

In another move, the army asked and obtained an agreement for a seven day work week for four months in plants manufacturing truck tires and tubes, products which the army lists among its most important shortages.

Demands Increasing.

Byrnes said in a statement that the army and navy had released "several thousand" men to war plants and that the demands for such releases were increasing.

"In order that these men may be replaced," he said, "it is deemed necessary to increase the number of calls by selective service for men between the ages of 26 and 37 who are not now doing their part to contribute to the war effort."

He made no estimate of the number of men in that age group who would be affected by the ruling.

Byrnes said he had asked Selective Service Director Hershey to amend his regulations to provide for induction of such men and also to provide for reclassification of those in the 26-37 age group who now have occupational deferment and who leave essential industry.

Few Have Been Drafted.

Draft boards never have been formally ordered to halt induction of men over 26 but few have been drafted since last September when Hershey advised draft boards that it appeared needs of the armed services for the rest of this year could be met from men under that age.

Both the army and navy said they were unable to give exact figures tonight on the number of men they have released to war industries. About 800 were recently released from the army to the tire industry. Releases also have been made to logging and lumbering, foundries and forges, aircraft and ammunition plants and, earlier in the war, to nonferrous mining.

Principal Worries.

Byrnes' action appeared calculated, however, not only to secure replacements for those released but to stem a growing movement by workers to leave war jobs and seek employment they could be assured would continue after peace returns.

The agreement for a seven day work week in the truck and tire industry was announced after a meeting of officials of most of the rubber companies with Lt. Gen. Somervell, commanding general of the army's service forces.

Sherman H. Dalrymple, president of the CIO United Rubber Workers, asked that all union members "give all-out effort" to the program.

Most Plants Idle Sundays.

Some "bottleneck" operations in rubber plants have been on a seven day schedule, but most of the industry has shut down on Sunday, officials said.

The program will involve a seven day work week for most workers, because the industry has found the rotation of employes unsatisfactory for the most part.

Workers averaged 46½ hours a week in September, the last month for which figures were available here.

Workers will receive pay at the rate of time and a half for the sixth day and double time for the seventh day in accordance with their contracts.

On the basis of present allocations, Gen. Somervell said, the army will be 472,000 tires short of its requirements for the first quarter of 1945 unless production is stepped up.

At the present time, he said, 500,000 rubber tire vehicles are in operation on the western front.

Thief Pays $4.60 a Gallon for This Stolen Gasoline!

Zebulon, N. C., Dec. 9 (AP).—Some one drained the gasoline from the tank of Newspaper Man Ted Davis' automobile, but dropped a wallet containing $23 at the time. Davis kept the money, which amounted to $4.60 for each gallon of gas stolen.

Finds Nazi Prisoner a Neighbor

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 45TH INFANTRY DIVISION, Dec. 9.—The German prisoner was brought into the command post of the 157th regiment of this division and Sgt. John Scheer was assigned to talk to him.

Scheer, in German, told the prisoner to sit down. The latter responded in perfect English: "Thank you very much."

"You speak English?" Scheer asked.

"O, very well," the German answered. "I used to live in Chicago."

"Well, I'll be a blankety blank," Scheer blurted. "That's my home."

They Were Neighbors.

Scheer, whose address is 1904 N. Orchard st., found that the captive, whose name cannot be disclosed, had lived almost next door to him before 1938.

"You can't believe anything these Heinies say, particularly after they've been taken prisoner," Scheer said later, "but this guy's story hangs together a little better than most of them."

"According to him, he was in the American merchant marine. Six years ago, when he reached a German port, he decided to visit an aunt there and the Nazis collared him. They took away his United States passport and drafted him into their army.

"He said he had just been waiting for the opportunity to surrender. Maybe he meant it. He still had a few shots left in his rifle when we got him.

"Germans Are Fed Up."

"He told me German officers are ordered to shoot any man who tries to give himself up, and if a Heinie does slip thru his guard and get into our lines the guard is court martialed. The German soldiers also are handed a yarn that we shoot all our prisoners. When you figure how many of these fellows take a chance, anyway, and come over to us, you begin to realize how fed up some of those German Joes must be."

Scheer had been searching for 10 months thru Italy and France to find some one with whom he could swap Chicago neighborhood gossip. He had met many Chicago G.I.s, but none from around Orchard st.

"So I finally uncover a guy from the home grounds," Scheer commented, ruefully, "and he is playing on the losing team."

Find Why Ft. Driant Was So Tough

FORT DRIANT, France, Dec. 9 (AP).—The 5th division Yanks who wear the Red Diamond on their shoulder patch came out of the mud into this tentacle-like fortress at Metz today and found why it had made necessary a two month siege by the 3d army.

Started by the Romans and expanded by the French and Germans, Fort Driant lived up to its billing as Europe's strongest fortress.

One clew to the reason the 670 German officers and men quit was dropped by their commander, a Lt. Col. Richner, who swore the Americans were using a "secret weapon." He was referring to our 155 mm. missiles which penetrate thick reenforced concrete.

Fort Has Six Levels.

Munching on American K rations, the colonel admitted his men couldn't stand up forever under such a jarring.

The fort's inner workings are spread over six levels inside a 300 foot high ridge. There are miles of passages on each level, radiating from the central fort like the spokes of a wheel to satellite forts carved out of the almost sheer sides of the hill.

There was a big shop with countless lathes where shell cases were made for the forts around Metz. There was a vast amount of storage space for ammunition and food. The colonel enjoyed ice cream from a Philadelphia made freezer.

Band Uses Captured Drums.

For recreation the Germans had a band, equipped with drums and some other instruments belonging to the "Black Watch" unit of the British highland division. The Germans captured the instruments near Dunkerque in 1940.

When officers of one company led their men into the fort, they found the graves of comrades who fell during the brief occupation of one of the fort's tunnels early last October.

at the approaches to Haguenau itself. The city is the most important enemy base left in northern Alsace.

Using surprise tactics similar to the 3d army, the 7th fought into Bischwiller, four and a half miles from the Rhine north of Strasbourg, jumping off before dawn in a double envelopment attack without artillery preparation.

The surprise enabled infantry to take intact a 100 foot bridge across the Moder river in the northeastern part of town.

Once Bischwiller is cleared, the defense of Haguenau, four miles northeast, will be impossible. The 7th holds more than a score of towns south, west, and northwest of the city.

Other 7th army troops seized Bining, 10 miles southeast of Sarreguemines on one of the main roads leading to that city, and, slashing to within four miles of the Palatinate border, cleared the enemy from Niederbronn on the Alsatian plain.

Farther west, the 7th dug deeper into heavily wooded Eifel pass, just south of the French fortress town of Bitche, seven miles south of the Saar border.

The French 1st army, fighting out of Bonhomme pass, were closing on the Alsatian city of Colmar, four miles ahead of them.

The French cleared most of Thann, 10 miles northwest of Mulhouse, but fighting continued in the southwestern part of the town. Other French troops clung to the Lutterbach bridgehead across the Doller river, just west of Mulhouse, but lost the railroad station there in the face of fierce resistance.

Wipe Out Julich Pockets.

Snow blanketed the northern front, where the United States 9th army smashed the last two German pockets on the Roer river at Julich and the United States 1st army edged closer to the river 18 miles south of Julich, near Bergstein.

Only patrol action was reported elsewhere on the 9th army front while the 1st army found the going slow along the wooded countryside studded with pillboxes southwest of Bergstein.

The British and Canadian 21st army group front in Holland was quiet except for the capture of Fort Crevecour, on the south bank of the Maas [Meuse] river, due north of 'S Hertogenbosch.

DEMANDS DEATH FOR 12 IN PARIS 'GESTAPO' TRIAL

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 9.—Death sentences for all 12 members of the French "gestapo" band who have been on trial for eight days, were demanded today by State Prosecutor Charles Reboul in a two hour speech.

Henri Chamberlain, alias Lafont, who changed his nationality to German and became an SS [elite guard] captain and chief of the band, and Pierre Boni, former inspector of the Paris surete police, Chamberlain's lieutenant, heard Reboul demand their execution as they sweated in the dock surrounded by 14 French gendarmes.

Rene Fleuriot, Chamberlain's lawyer, made a strenuous plea for his client's life, alleging the incompetence of the court since Chamberlain had changed his citizenship. Two members of the band, which is charged with denunciations, blackmail, thieveries, and murder, may escape execution. The prosecutor suggested to the jury that the youth of Jacques La Brussiere and Jean Lascaux might be taken into account.

PICTURES SLOW, COSTLY FIGHT TO WHIP GERMANY

Troops Battling for Every Yard.

accountably, actually believe in an ultimate German victory. These men are fighting with even more fanaticism.

Except for battles of encirclement, when entire divisions were trapped in the earlier months of the campaign, it was not common to capture or kill regimental or battalion commanders. Now these officers are staying with their men—staying to be killed, wounded, or taken prisoner. This has put more steel into the enemy resistance.

Specter of Gestapo.

Behind many of them, too, stands the specter of Himmler's Gestapo. Many a commander, wanting to save the lives of a last handful of men when his position became hopeless, would consider a long time before surrendering, in fear that if he signed our unconditional terms he would be signing a death warrant for his wife and children at home. And that is another reason for these battles which grow tougher and tougher.

The professional German soldier has had a century or more to consider every possible problem involved in attack over German hills toward the Rhine. As a result, the defense has every advantage and the attack none, except that given by good weapons and well trained men—men with guts.

To our military minds it appears as if the extensive Hurtgen forest was planted deliberately to give the defense the advantage. The Germans apparently were prepared to give us the western end while digging their own positions in the eastern end.

On the German side the trees are thinner, he can bring in his vehicles, and the area is serviced by good roads. On our side the forest growth is so dense a jeep can hardly penetrate between the trees.

Roads Sink Out of Sight.

There were only north and south roads, none connecting east and west, so we had to build our own logging roads thru the wet gloom over quagmires into which the roads would sink out of sight. The use of tanks or any heavy weapons there becomes impossible.

So the Americans who had only this approach toward Duren from the south were pinned in their foxholes in the dank blackness of the forest.

The Germans knew this, and so their artillery fired nothing but air bursts to spatter shell fragments on the crouching men. Then there would come barrage after barrage of mortars, every shell exploding in the trees like the artillery air bursts. The dense canopy contained most of the explosive blast. Consequently, the men received more of the shock than if they had been shelled in open country.

These were the conditions, even under normal times, in forest fighting, but when the offensive started, the worst storm in 20 years deluged the area day and night with heavy rain and even snow. There could have been no more appalling fighting weather for any army.

Each Village a Fort.

Outside the forest, in small towns, the Germans had built stubborn strong points. We needed those towns and villages in order to get roads over which to move our equipment, so they had to be taken.

But each village, and there are hundreds of them, was a fort.

This was a scorched earth defense, for it meant that to take these forts our artillery must destroy them. And so each town has been riddled or flattened by artillery and dive-bombers, often to a degree far worse than the fate of any Norman village during the early fighting.

Each Soldier Gun Observer.

The defender has even another advantage. All of these hundreds and hundreds of square miles have been plotted accurately for artillery observation so that any soldier can become an artillery observer. He doesn't even need to observe the fire. If he can identify where he is, all the German needs to do is radio back "Fire on square so-and-so," and down comes the artillery on the advancing Americans.

This is the way it has been. This is what the Americans expect lies ahead of them on the road to Cologne. At Duren, for example, we believe the Germans have constructed a deep trench system arranged in depth at least five miles around the approaches to the city.

From the evidence of these trenches, it would appear Von Rundstedt hopes to pin the Americans down into static trench warfare as in 1917, at least for the winter, while the Germans can fill and train more reserve divisions. But Lt. Gen. Hodges of the 1st army and other American army commanders have no intention of complying with Von Rundstedt's intention if it can humanly be avoided.

The European war is by no means ended or even close to a quick victory. The Germans are ready to sell themselves dearly for their country.

YANKS WIN BIG BATTLE FOR NAZI SPORTS STADIUM

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 9.—After a week of [9th] bitter warfare thru mud and cold, American infantry men today cleared the Julich Sports stadium and neighboring farm land west of the Roer river.

Ending a battle fought in one of the strangest settings of this war, patrols tonight were at the river before Julich, giving Lt. Gen. Simpson's forces undisputed possession of the west bank as far north as Linnich.

For the last seven days the battle has raged about the Nazi arena where the Hitler youth and other Brown Shirted legions played, paraded, and strutted in years gone by.

Walls Withstand Shells.

The stadium's thick concrete walls banked with dirt absorbed the shock of American artillery shells and bombs which have been poured upon the structure by the ton since the fight began. Other strong points were a sandbagged swimming pool just outside the arena and a near-by farmhouse.

Infantry men had to wade thru bogs, then crawl in the chill winter winds to close in upon a stubborn German garrison composed of engineer units regarded as among the enemy's best. Part of their way was over a huge soccer field, flat as a table, and here was a time when crossing the 50 yard line meant more than a salvo of cheers from an onlooking sports throng. The Germans guarded the approaches with rifles, crisscrossing machine gun fire, mortars, and a heavy gun dug in inside the stadium.

Snow and Rain Fall.

Snow mixed with rain began falling today as the American units forced the last Nazi defenders to retreat across the river and rejoin the main body inside the town of Julich, from which they had been reënforced with supplies while the battle progressed.

The troops stormed inside the stadium walls from two directions, using bayonets and grenades to rout out remnants of the garrison, which had been under a constant day and night artillery bombardment.

The comparative smallness of the battlefield does not indicate the harsh character of the fighting in this weather. The fleeing Nazis left the soggy ground littered with their dead, while also reflecting the intensity of the fighting is the fact that all battalions of two American regiments took part in the battle at one time or another. Our casualties were from exposure as well as from enemy shells and bullets.

Germans Bring Forth Two Who Say They Saw Hitler

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP).—Nazi propagandists broadcast statements today attributed to a U-boat commander and a Hungarian army official who were declared to have visited Hitler's headquarters recently. Both were quoted as saying, "The fuehrer looks fresh and healthy."

7TH ARMY EDGES UP TO BIG TEST—NAZI WEST WALL

Bitter Street Fighting Merely a Prelude.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY IN THE HAGUENAU-NEIDERBRONN SECTOR, Dec. 9.—The Germans [7th] defending this area are again at their game of delaying action on another nation's terrain, but this time they are fighting with their own Siegfried line and their own Hardt forest border near their backs. At those fortifications, once we have conquered the approaches, could occur some of the bloodiest encounters of the war, in the opinion of observers.

Yank infantry today pushed some elements into Bischewiller and toward Marienthal, three miles southeast and two miles south, respectively, of Hauguenau. The enemy answered with tank, artillery, mortar, and sniper fire. He had some Mark VI. Tiger tanks around and his shelling was of the 170 millimeter variety. He was using 120 millimeter mortars.

Battle House to House.

Street fighting surged in the town and there was a repetition of house to house combats that have become so familiar in recent weeks. Snipers potted away from windows and roofs and some German self-propelled guns roamed the streets. We used mortar fire to support our infantry, but our artillery wasn't loosed; the battle lines were so close we could not drop a barrage that might hit our own men.

In the southern part of the town American engineers worked under fire to remove mines from the bridge across the Moder river.

German infantry and motorized units coming out of Haguenau and then swinging up to the forest north of the town were brought under our big guns' attack. So, too, was a battery of German guns located at Rohrwiller, southeast of Bischewiller.

2,000 Shells Hit One Town.

Below Neiderbronn there also was stiff resistance from the enemy, with his tanks, self-propelled guns, and mortars opening up against American activity. He developed a particular grudge against Mertzwiller, which we hold, six miles south of Neiderbronn, and poured in more than 2,000 shells.

Before any assault on the Siegfried line can be launched there are Maginot defenses to be cracked. These do not form a line in the common sense of the word, but rather a zone, and in this sector they run approximately from Neiderbronn eastward and southeastward to Woerth, to the Soultz Sous forest, across the northeastern tip of the Haguenau forest to Seltz, and thence to the Rhine. We are only a few miles from these fortifications in the Neiderbronn vicinity.

The Maginot position is still full of mystery. It takes advantage of all terrain features, such as rolling hills and thick woods. There is one report that the big guns which the French had pointed toward Germany were removed after 1940 and used to help bulwark Hitler's Atlantic wall. The anti-tank guns were of 37 millimeter caliber, a type that has not proved effective against modern big armor, and those weapons, too, may have been taken away. But machine guns with a full circle of traverse remain.

The Siegfried line is, of course, the Germans' main defense, and there, while he writes off a certain number of troops for the holding of the Maginot zone, he is concentrating his strength. He knows that a break-thru by another allied army into Germany might signal the end for him.

American artillery men have not yet observed fire on the Siegfried line but their long range shells are falling on "sacred" German soil in that vicinity.

PAPER GUNS?
Yes, it's true, the flying bazookas used so successfully in combat on Thunderbolt fighter planes are made of paper treated with plastics resins. This laminated plastic tubing has been adopted by the Army because of its light weight and ability to stand up under fire.
This is just one more example of the resourcefulness of the men responsible for the research and development work being carried on by the Plastics Industry. It is sound proof that here is an industry that is going to be an important factor in our post war economy—creating new materials, new applications, and new opportunities.
Plastics Institute offers to those interested in this growing field an opportunity to become acquainted with these versatile materials, to know and understand the possibilities, limitations and manufacturing techniques of the many plastics in use today.
Our Winter Class is now forming and will get under way shortly. Visit, phone, or write for booklet.

YANKS NARROW PINCERS AROUND JAPS AT ORMOC

Capture Mountain Town Six Miles from Coast.

MacARTHUR'S HDQ., PHILIPPINES, Dec. 10 [Sunday]—(AP).—The two American infantry divisions south of Ormoc concentrated yesterday on the job of destroying Japanese troops pocketed there, but rain hampered the operations.

Gen. MacArthur's bulletin today said the 77th division, which landed behind the enemy's Yamashita line in a surprise move three days ago, was probing southward, toward the cornered Japanese force.

On the south side of the pocket, the 7th United States division drove forward three miles, capturing Albuera, terminus of a road crossing Leyte Island from east to west.

Capture Field Battery.

The trapped enemy force was being squeezed into an ever-narrowing area and its losses were heavy, MacArthur said.

North of Ormoc, where the rain was the worst, the American 32d division kept up its pressure against the enemy, capturing a field battery and large dumps of munitions and supplies.

On the eastern side of the island Yanks with the aid of light tanks cleared Japanese paratroopers from two United States air fields, and the sky soldiers were pushed into a narrow pocket where they were contained, the bulletin said.

The paratroopers landed the night of Dec. 6, while a United States convoy was taking the 77th division around the south end of Leyte Island for the landing at Ormoc.

In Four Mile Area.

The greatest ground advance in the 24 hour period was the Albuera capture. This drive was made against intense opposition but it narrowed the space occupied by the Japanese between the 7th and 77th divisions' positions. This leaves the enemy force in an area extending four miles along the coast between Albuera and Camp Downs, pre-war United States army post on the outskirts of Ormoc. The Japanese remain in strength, however, to the north and east of Ormoc.

Gen. MacArthur sent commendations to Lt. Gen. Kreuger's 6th army, Vice Adm. Kinkaid's 7th fleet, and Lt. Gen. Kenney's airforce on the success of the Ormoc landing.

"BRIDGES BURNED": TOKYO.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Radio Tokyo yesterday told the Japanese people that the fighting in the Philippines represents "the decisive battle in which we cannot withdraw even a single step, for we have burned our bridges behind us."

The Leyte battle, Tokyo said, "is a great decisive battle on which the life of the GEA [Greater East Asia] war depends, for it decides whether we lose our sea routes to our southern regions."

GEN. IKE PLEDGES EQUAL JUSTICE TO GERMANS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A proclamation by Gen. Eisenhower yesterday told the German people that financial practices inside the reich discriminating against any person on account of race, religion, or political opinions will be abrogated and all persons will be treated with equal justice under the law.

The proclamation was the sixth in a series explaining allied plans for Germany.

German officials will be instructed to continue measures against inflation, such as rationing and price control, the proclamation said.

Existing German currency will be continued as legal tender, but allied military marks will be made legal tender, as well, and "must be accepted on the same basis as the reichsmarks."

700 U. S. PLANES HIT STUTTGART IN SNOW, COLD

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP). — Boring thru blinding snowstorms, in 54 degrees below zero temperature, more than 700 American war planes reached the German industrial center of Stuttgart in perfect bombing formation today and carpeted a strategic airdrome and congested freight yards with 1,500 tons of explosives.

Convoyed by some 300 Mustangs and Thunderbolts of the United States 8th air force, 400 Flying Fortresses dropped their loads both by visual aiming and instruments.

Four of the bombers were reported missing, but all the escorting fighters returned safely. Flak was reported light and, with the exception of one Nazi jet propelled plane which was shot down by Lt. Harry L. Edwards of Muncie, Ind., the Luftwaffe was absent.

Stuttgart, 70 miles east of Strasbourg, is the home of large truck and ball bearing factories as well as a transportation junction for the southern hinge of the western front.

13 JAP ADMIRALS KILLED; 32 LOST IN THREE MONTHS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The deaths of 13 Japanese admirals—many of them probably in the air and sea battles related to American reinvasion of the Philippines — were announced yesterday by Japanese headquarters at the Yokosuka naval station. Vice Adm. Hideo Yano, former chief of the navy press section, who on Oct. 4 himself announced the deaths of seven other admirals, was in the list. Tokyo thus has announced the deaths of 32 admirals since September.

Domei news agency identified the other dead as: Vice Admirals Takehisa Tsujimura, Yasunoshin Ito, and Ichimatsu Takahashi; Rear Admirals Senzaburo Tonomuta, Rinzo Kurosaki, Kakuo Kishigawa, Saburo Ashina, Migi Horiuchi, Shigeri Takeshita, Iwao Oka, and Masayasu Tsuji, and Surgeo Rear Adm. Yokichi Odajima.

The fact that Yokusuka, which covers the coasts off Tokyo, Aomori, Iwate, Miyagi, Fukushima, Karafuto, and Hokkaido made the announcement indicated the admirals were operating out of that largest Nipponese home naval base.

3 FOOTPADS GET $50 WATCH.

Three Negroes, one carrying a blue steel revolver, robbed him of a $50 wristwatch near his home, William O'Meara, 5730 Drexel av., told police yesterday.

Judge Cats Today

More than 150 cats, curried and brushed from whiskers to tails, are competing for honors at the 34th annual show of the Beresford Cat club in the Midland hotel. Champions will be chosen today, the final day of the show. The whole thing is for the benefit of the Anti-Cruelty society.

Included in the exhibit are the royalty of catdom, plus a few domestic shorthairs, which is just another way of saying alley cats. Some of the pedigreed breeds include Persians, Siamese, and tailless Manx. Mrs. E. F. Hamaker, Indianapolis, Ind., is the official judge of the show.

The Beresford Cat club is the oldest cat organization in America and was founded in 1899. Entrants will be exhibited from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. in the ballroom of the hotel, which is at 172 W. Adams st.

GREATEST MASS INSANITY SEEN AS JAPS' FATE

The greatest collection of mental crackups in any nation in the history of the world will accrue in Japan before the end of the war, Maj. Alvin E. Belden, of the army medical corps, said yesterday in Chicago.

Known as a world traveler, psychiatrist, and student of oriental philosophy, Maj. Belden, who lived in the orient for seven years, is making a speaking tour for the army. He will address the civil affairs training school at the University of Chicago today.

Maj. Belden, who has had intimate inside glimpses of Japan's customs, traditions, and home life, said he bases his prediction on the belief that utter disillusionment must befall people who have had such complete faith in the invincibility of their nation as the Japanese. "I expect," he said "that Japan will have a wholesale mental disintegration and that there will be mass suicides of those in authority."

B29s RAID TOKYO AND INLAND SEA AREA, SAY JAPS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

American Super Fortresses raided Tokyo again yesterday, the Japanese radio asserted, but said the attack was limited to the dropping of "a few incendiaries."

Tokyo added that Japanese interceptors had "accounted for" 19 of the B-29s which had attacked Mukden and other Manchuria targets Thursday. An American bulletin earlier said three B-29s were lost to enemy action in this attack.

In its report of yesterday's raids the Tokyo radio said the incendiaries were dropped by a single Super Fortress. Later, it added, two more of the big planes appeared over the city, one remaining about an hour, but neither dropped bombs.

Coastal Area Raided.

The broadcast also reported that the attack on Tokyo was followed an hour later by a raid on the "Seto Nakai coastal area." Seto Nakai is the Japanese designation for the inland sea, between the home islands of Honshu, Shikoku, and Kyushu. The large Kure naval base lies on the inland sea.

Iwo Bombed Again.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Dec. 9 (AP). — Navy bombing planes carried out a low level attack on the Japanese base of Iwo Island in the Volcano Islands Thursday, the navy reported today.

The attack, apparently a followup of heavy raids by army planes and bombardment from navy surface vessels on the same day, encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire. One plane was damaged but all returned safely.

A bulletin from Adm. Nimitz also reported air blows at the Marianas and Marshalls Thursday and at Babelthuap, in the Palaus, Wednesday.

New Task Force Created.

At Saipan Lt. Gen. Millard E. Harmon, commander of army air forces in the Pacific, disclosed that the army's forward air command setup in the Pacific, commanded by Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale, has been replaced by a new task force called "comstratair." [Command strategical air forces.] The new organization, commanded by Harmon, embraces all land based units in this area that can be used for long range offensive operations. These include medium bombers and long range fighters.

Brig. Gen. Truman H. Landon, commander of the 7th bomber command for three years, has returned to the United States. He has been succeeded by Col. Lawrence J. Carr, Chicago, who was chief of staff to Hale.

ALL CHURCHILL CHARGES DENIED BY GREEK EAM

Disclaim Intention to Seize Power.

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 9 (AP).—A spokesman for the EAM [national liberation front] made a blanket denial today of British Prime Minister Churchill's charges that the EAM and its military auxiliary, the ELAS, sought to seize power in Greece and terrorize the countryside. He said the present battle would continue until the government of Premier George Papandreou resigned. The spokesman declared:

"If the ELAS desired to take over the reins of authority by force it could have done so immediately after the liberation of Athens, when there were no allied troops or sufficient police or quisling forces in the capital."

[This dispatch came thru the allied censorship in Athens, which is under British and Greek government control. It does not identify the EAM spokesman.]

"For two and a half years," the spokesman said, "the sole effort of the ELAS was to exterminate the Germans, Italians, and Bulgarians.

"Churchill's contention that the ELAS had long prepared for a coup d'etat is unfounded. In fact, the ELAS has been attacking German garrisons and convoys continuously and relentlessly.

"On many occasions while the ELAS was engaged in a fight with the Germans, Zervas bands attacked the ELAS simultaneously."

[This was a reference to the EDES, anti-German group led by Gen. Napoleon Zervas. Churchill said the ELAS had fought members of this group instead of the Germans. The ELAS and EDES long were admittedly rivals.]

The spokesman asserted that the ELAS never had any dealings or contacts with the Germans, "whereas, according to evidence held by the ELAS, the Germans never harassed Zervas men when the EDES were attacking ELAS troops."

Paris Confirms Vatican Recognition of De Gaulle

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 9.—The French minister of foreign affairs tonight confirmed the Rome announcement that the Vatican has recognized the provisional government of France. The press says Msgr. Valeri, papal nuncio to the Vichy government, will not be the Vatican's representative in Paris. Recognition involves an agreement between the De Gaulle government and the Vatican about what to do with a large number of priests charged with having been collaborationists.

AMNESTY ORDER BRINGS CABINET CRISIS IN SOFIA

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Dec. 6 [Delayed]—[Reuter].—Several members of the Bulgarian government are on the verge of resignation following a decision by War Minister Damian Volcaeff to grant amnesty to all imprisoned military personnel who rejoin the army.

The central committee of the Communist party, known in Bulgaria as the Labor party, yesterday issued a declaration expressing dissatisfaction with Valcaeff's decision, and urging a purge of all fascist elements.

The government party published a statement signed by all its members saying the war minister's decision was unjustified, and was taken in the absence of communist ministers. It accused Valcaeff of exceeding his power.

CHINESE DRIVE JAPS INVADING KWEICHOW BACK

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The Chenese counter-offensive in Kweichow province has recaptured the railway town of Shangssu in an 18 mile advance from Tuhsan, thus almost completing the task of hurling the Japanese back into Kwangsi province, the Chinese high command disclosed today.

The pursuit southward is continuing, the Chinese said, and the new war minister, Gen. Chen Cheng, said "the crisis in Kweichow is passing, but we must be prepared for a resumption of the enemy offensive."

Shangssu is 82 miles southeast of Kweiyang, Kweichow's capital, and less than five miles from the Kwangsi border. Previously the Chinese had hurled another Japanese column back to the Kwangsi border farther east.

CHIANG AND CHINESE COMMUNIST LEADERS REPORTED TO AGREE

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 9 (AP).—It was reported authoritatively today that Chiang Kai-shek has agreed in principle to communist participation in his government and in military affairs. Gen. Chou En-Lai, Communist negotiator who recently returned to Communist headquarters at Yenan with proposals, is expected to return here soon to implement an agreement.

The Communists, who had sought a formal coalition of government and armed forces, believe that if properly equipped they would be able to make diversionary offensives against the Japanese in North China.

This agreement, following the appointment of Foreign Minister T. V. Soong to the additional post of acting premier, is the most important development which could have occurred in the present critical phase of Chinese history.

CHICAGOAN IS SANTA TO YANKS IN HOSPITAL SHIP

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

A DUTCH NEW GUINEA BASE, Dec. 9.—A former Chicago store detective prepared today to play Santa Claus to wounded Yanks returning from the Philippines.

Pharmacist's Mate Charles Hascall, 5447½ S. Racine av., came ashore from a hospital ship, visited the Red Cross warehouse, and drove away with a truckload of goods which will be distributed to patients on Christmas day. On his list were cigarets, candy, and gift packages. Hascall is assistant to the ship's welfare director, and is charged with stocking up on Red Cross supplies at each port.

GREEK LEADERS NEGOTIATE FOR END OF REVOLT

British Demand Rebels Quit Athens First.

which have broken away and started the revolution. But it is significant that R. A. F. planes yesterday strafed part of the Serafis forces around Hassia as a "precautionary measure."

Snipers Still Active.

British army authorities revealed today that after a week of fighting they have gained control of 20 per cent of the city's area altho it was admitted that this cleared area, located mainly in central Athens, still was subjected to sniper fire. The remainder of the city is occupied by the left wingers and no attempt has been made yet to clear them out. British and Greek police successfully keep the main roads open for the use of tanks and armored cars.

The guerrillas are strongly entrenched in the high ground near the city to which they could retreat if the laborious clearing of Athens should prove successful. Then, unless the almost impossible task of picketing the buildings were maintained, they could infiltrate back during the nights and carry on the battle next day.

It also must be remembered that a large percentage of the 10,000 guerrillas now fighting in Athens wear civilian clothes. The army must deal with men and women who snipe from the roof-tops until a British patrol nears them, then slip down and are apparently sleeping peacefully when the Tommies arrive.

Youth Brutally Beaten.

A little incident this afternoon shows the viciousness and brutality of this revolt. As I stood near Greek police headquarters a young boy staggered from the building, followed and guarded by a Greek policeman armed with a submachine gun. I followed as the guard forced the prisoner up a side street toward the 3d district police station three blocks away. During the walk to the station the prisoner, who was forced to keep both hands clasped behind his head, was kicked and punched in the face by shouting, angry civilians who encircled him without interference by the grinning guard.

Boy Tells Story.

Ten minutes after they entered the station I entered and asked to see him and I was told at first there was no prisoner there. When I described him and said I had seen him enter, a Greek police official reluctantly brought him from his cell. His nose apparently was broken and streaming blood and his lips and ears thickened by the blows. The boy sobbed steadily as he told me his story.

He was 17 years old. His name was Constantin Kaloyetonas. An orphan, he made his living selling cigarets on the street. He swore he was not a guerrilla.

The angry, gesticulating police official told his side of the story. The boy was arrested after a knife was found in his pocket. He also declared the youth had papers belonging to a Greek army lieutenant killed two days ago. Police stated that this proved the boy was a member of the ELAS. Still crying, he was led downstairs to his cell and I heard him yell the minute after he disappeared.

Americans Provide Relief.

Americans who have been standing by in the awkward position of neutrals in this civil war, today took their first active part. Volunteers from an UNRRA mission recently arrived in Greece, began the task of driving Red Cross trucks filled with medical supplies to the various Athens hospitals on both sides of the lines.

The UNRRA workers here include Donald Davis, James Harakas, Christopher J. Manus, and Willard Rogers Jr. of Chicago.

Scenes of Fighting in Athens

50 M. P.S GRAB NAZI GENERAL; START BATTLE

Washington, Dec., Dec. 9 (AP).—Fifty military policemen kept a German general prisoner, but it took some doing.

They fought off 1,200 of the general's soldiers who tried to rescue him. That precipitated a battle in which artillery, mortars, bazookas, and tanks were thrown in by the opposing forces. The fight lasted more than 14 hours and when it was over an estimated 350 Nazis were dead, 750 had been taken prisoner, and more than 200 German vehicles destroyed or captured.

The war department disclosed today a report from Maj. Frederick P. Field, Flushing, N. Y., provost marshal for the 6th armored division, showing the action took place Aug. 8 as the 6th was spearheading its way into Brest, France. The German was Lt. Gen. Karl Spang, commander of the 266th infantry division. Reënforcements finished the battle the M. P.s had begun.

BRITISH REACH TOWN 160 MILES FROM MANDALAY

New Delhi, India, Dec. 9 (AP).—British forces driving south in Burma along the North-South railway have reached the Naba station, 160 miles north of Mandalay in a seven mile advance from captured Pinwe, it was announced today.

On the Bhamo sector in the northeast the Chinese engaged in a minor action, while British East Africans on the Chindwin front continued a southerly thrust and made contact with the enemy towards Hwegyin.

It was announced that Maj. Gen. Frank Merrill, leader of the famous Merrill's Marauders, had been named deputy commander in the India-Burma theater under Lt. Gen. Sultan.

BOARD NAMED TO WRITE STATUTES FOR ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Argentine government announced today the appointment of a three man committee to draw up a statute governing political parties. The decree said "it is the intention of the government to return to normalcy as soon as possible and to restore to the citizens their political rights."

In order to assure a true democratic regime, the decree added, it is imperative to "improve the electoral system as well as eliminate political corruption and fraud."

Members of the committee are three judges without political affiliations: Rodolfo Medina, justice of the criminal court of appeals; Benjamin Villegas Basavilbaso, member of the same court, and Jose Manuel Astigueta, judge of the province of Buenos Aires.

WHIPPING NAZIS STILL TOUGH JOB, SAYS COL. LANZA

Battles of Attrition May Be Halted by Winter.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

According to reports from allied headquarters in Europe, there are 70 German divisions fighting along the west German front. Another 30 are opposing the allies in Italy. On the Russian front there are believed to be between 130 and 140 German divisions.

The latest Russian estimate of German strength was given in Marshal Stalin's speech of Nov. 6. He estimated that the Germans on the west front had 58 to 60 divisions with 24 more in Italy. Opposing the Russian armies there were 180 divisions, exclusive of 24 Hungarian divisions fighting with Germany.

Altho the two estimates are not alike, both agree that Russia is fighting far more German divisions than the allies in west Germany and Italy put together. It seems clear that without this Russian help, the allies on the west and south fronts would be up against a difficult task.

Aid Is Mutual.

On these two fronts together there are 100 German divisions according to allied estimates and 82 to 84 according to Russian estimates. They are presenting such stubborn opposition that the allied advance is slow. If Russia fell out and released at least 140 more German divisions for opposing the Americans, British, and French, the situation would be most serious.

On the other hand, the great Russian successes of this year have been made possible by the allies having drawn off between 82 and 100 German divisions who otherwise would have been available on the east front. In his speeches last year, Marshal Stalin asked for a second front which would draw off 60 German divisions. At that time he felt that if this were done, his armies would be able to drive the Germans out of Russia.

All Do Their Part.

The Americans and British have more than accomplished what they were asked to do. And Stalin made good on his promise that if the allies did their part he would expel the Germans from Russia. He has done more than that. He has expelled the Germans from most of the Balkans, a large part of Hungary, and from Finland. The British and Americans have liberated North Africa, about half of Italy, practically all of France and Belgium, and part of Holland.

Germany's own territory still is practically unentered by the allies. She holds a large part of Hungary, about half of Italy, more than half of Holland, nearly all of Norway, Cezchoslovakia, and a considerable slice of Latvia.

It seems clear that Germany is still a formidable opponent, and that it will take the united efforts of the Americans, British, and Russians to overcome her.

Batles of Attrition.

The great series of battles which started in mid-November have resulted in the recovery of most of Alsace and Lorraine. The small part of Alsace held by the Germans probably will be evacuated as fast as they can withdraw their troops and the considerable quantity of stores they have in that area.

The hardest fighting on this front seems to have been in the Aachen area. This has become an attrition battle. Only minor advances have been made by the allies. Hope has been expressed that the losses inflicted on the Germans have been so great that, if continued for a while longer, there will be no sufficient number of Germans left to hold the line. From this point of view gains of ground are of minor importance.

Nazi Losses Analyzed.

The chance of this policy succeeding within a stated time would require information as to how many men the Germans are losing, and how many replacements they have at hand. The only information on that has come from correspondents at the front, whose reports state that, on an average, the Germans are losing 9,000 men a day in killed, wounded, and prisoners.

Assuming that this may be correct, it would give the following results: The number of German prisoners taken in the current offensive have been published, and amount on an average to 1,000 a day. Of the 8,000 remaining, usually 2,000 would be killed, 1,000 so badly wounded that they would not return, and 5,000 wounded would return at an average of 60 days' absence.

540,000 Loss in 60 Days.

For the first 60 days, the German loss would be 540,000 men if the battle continues uninterruptedly at the present rate. Unless Germany has somewhere about this number of replacements available, as to which nothing is known, their line could be expected to crumble by that time. After that date about 5,000 former wounded would be coming back daily, and the net loss of men would be only 4,000 a day. This estimate makes no allowance for Germans required on the south and east fronts, which can be estimated in the same way. Taking these into consideration it would seem difficult for Germany to meet this requirement. But it is not certain that it will be possible to continue the battle thru the winter months on the present vast scale of the west German front.

FOUR EL SALVADOR POLICEMEN KILLED IN REBEL OUTBREAK

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador, Dec. 9 (AP).—Four policemen were killed and one was wounded yesterday when rebel forces attacked a telegraph office in the San Miguelito district and cut communication wires. Police reënforcements broke up the attack and captured the instigators, it was reported by authorities, who said calm had been restored.

Many Dead, Guatemalans Say.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Guatemalan radio said today that riots broke out yesterday in San Salvador, capital of El Salvador, between armed civilians and police and that many were killed and wounded. The Salvadorean government apparently is in control of the situation, the broadcast said.

Taca airlines announced that all flights to San Salvador had been suspended, altho Pan American said its planes were landing in the capital without difficulties.

FRENCH REACH COMPROMISE ON MILITIA ISSUE

PARIS, Dec. 9 (AP).—The government announced a compromise today with the left wing resistance groups on the militia issue by the creation of special republican security companies divided among 20 regional commands.

The new organization will be subject to orders of the secretary-general of police in each district. The authorized strength of each company is 70 men.

The security companies afford a place for members of the left wing militia. The government's recent order dissolving and disarming the militia evoked protests from the resistance groups.

NAZI PRISONERS NOT PAMPERED, PROBERS REPORT

PARIS, Dec. 9 (AP).—German prisoners are neither pampered nor persecuted—and they are not receiving any American cigarets, members of a United States house military affairs committee reported today after a visit to a camp at Chartres, 45 miles southwest of Paris.

"They are sleeping in warehouses, on straw pallets, with one blanket underneath them and one on top, eating in a mess hall with good cooking, but at no tables," Rep. Harness [Rep., Ind.] said. "They are being treated fairly under the Geneva convention, but if they could see that camp life a lot of them never would go to war," remarked Rep. Merritt [D., N. Y.].

"People at home have no grounds for considering prisoners pampered," added Rep. Elston [R., O.]. "They're given what they're entitled to and not a bit more."

Hero Commissioned, Then Starts Home for Leave

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 9 (AP).—This was a big day in the life of Staff Sgt. Walter D. Ehlers, thrice wounded winner of the medal of honor. The 1st division hero this morning was commissioned a second lieutenant and later in the day he was to start the long trip home to Manhattan, Kas., for a 30 day leave under the rotation plan.

RED SLATED AS VICE PREMIER IN ITALIAN CABINET

List Put Up to Allies; Sforza Appears Out.

ROME, Italy, Dec. 9 (AP).—Three vice premiers, including Palmiro Togliatti, Communist leader, will be included in the new Italian government headed by Ivanoe Bonomi, expected to be announced officially tomorrow, it was learned tonight. A list of ministers has been submitted to allied authorities for approval.

Authoritative sources said that Togliatti, who broke the deadlock in the two weeks old crisis by throwing his support to Bonomi, would share the vice premierships with Giulio di Rodino of the Christian Democrats, and a Liberal party member.

From the fourth party in the new government, the Labor Democrats, will be selected a minister who will head the newly created interministerial committee, which will supervise a program of economic construction, an Italian statement said.

De Gasperi Slated for Post.

Count Carlo Sforza, 71, opposed by the British and described yesterday by Prime Minister Churchill as not regarded as a "true and trustworthy man," apparently was out of the picture in the new government.

Slated to become foreign minister, the post for which Sforza had been proposed, is a Christian Democrat, Aldeide de Gasperi, a minister without portfolio in the former Bonomi government.

De Gasperi was elected to the Italian parliament in 1921, after which he succeeded Don Luigi Sturza, now in the United States, as secretary of the Popular party. He served as secretary until the Fascists ended the party, which has now reappeared as the Christian Democrats.

Sforza Explains Stand.

Regarded also as certain of appointment in the new government are Alexandro Casati as war minister, Raffaele De Courten as navy minister, Marcello Soleri as minister of the treasury, and Fausto Gullo as minister of agriculture. They held the same posts in the preceding Bonomi government.

Sforza said today that he had failed to adhere to a written promise to the United States state department to support Marshal Pietro Badoglio because under Badoglio's regime defeated Italian generals were attempting to create a new type of fascism.

Sforza, a leader of anti-fascism in Italy thru a score of years of exile, asserted that before his return in October, 1943, he wrote a letter containing the Badoglio pledge at the suggestion of the state department "in order to overcome certain oppositions raised from abroad to my return to Italy.

8TH ARMY TIGHTENS NOOSE ON FAENZA; NAZIS WIN, LOSE TOWN

ROME, Italy, Dec. 9 (AP).—A noose was steadily being tightened about the northern Italian highway coastal point of Faenza today by British 8th army forces in bitter fighting.

Already as much as five miles beyond the Lamone river, the town's water barrier on the south, the British seized San Prospero on the west bank only a mile southwest of Faenza. A parallel column fought to a spur less than a mile south of Celle, two miles west of Faenza and a mile from highway No. 9 running northwest to Bologna.

The withdrawing Germans, fighting hard to protect their flank, recaptured yesterday the village of Pideura, across the Lamone five miles southwest of Faenza, but allied tanks and infantry won it back after vicious fighting.

LABOR JOLTED BY CHURCHILL'S FOREIGN POLICY

Minority Party Split by Intervention.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP).—A potentially serious division among supporters of Britain's coalition government became apparent tonight despite the house of commons' vote of confidence yesterday on Prime Minister Churchill's determined policy of "intervention to keep peace" in liberated Europe.

The rank and file of the strong minority Labor party threatened to adopt a "hands off" attitude on Churchill's handling of the rebellious factions in Greece and on his denunciation of Count Carlo Sforza of Italy, altho few appeared ready to break entirely with the coalition.

The Conservatives with 363 members and Labor with 170 are the dominant parties in commons.

In an effort to relieve the tense situation created by the confusion of the Greek fighting, Churchill was reported planning to send to Athens one of his ace trouble shooters, Richard Law, minister of state.

Trades Council "Alarmed."

Even as the British press took sides — vigorously supporting the prime minister or voicing increased anxiety over Britain's policy—the London trades council this afternoon adopted a resolution expressing "alarm" at British armed intervention.

The Manchester Guardian, calling Churchill's denunciation of Count Sforza "the worst passage in his speech," said "reluctantly we shall have to assume that he [Churchill] may be an uncertain, even a dangerous guide in our passage thru the European maelstrom. Let us hope he does not wreck us."

The Yorkshire Post, taking an opposite view, declared the prime minister's speech "was not merely a defense: It was a vindication."

While Churchill won, 279 to 30, the vote against him was the largest in six tests of confidence he has undergone.

Labor Party Splits.

The Labor party split. Even tho Deputy Premier Clement Attlee, Labor party leader, urged his members to support the government, only 23, nearly all ministers and their parlaimentary private secretaries, voted for Churchill's policies. Most of the Labor members refrained from voting.

The party administrative committee adopted a more neutral attitude, advising Laborites not to vote against the government and leaving them a fre hand in going along with the premier.

In defiance of the party policy, 24 Laborites voted against the government.

The Labor party organ—the London Daily Herald — cautiously remarked:

"Mr. Churchill no doubt hopes that the vote will be regarded as an endorsement of his entire policy in relation to the liberated countries, and, in fact, to the European situation generally.

"It will not be so considered. The fact still remains that he is apt, by his utterances, to create an impression that he is biased in favor of regimes of the right."

Move to Define Position.

A movement was underway to bring before the Labor party conference opening Monday an emergency resolution defining the party's whole attitude to liberated countries.

A possibility arose, too, that the Labor ministers in the Churchill government would ask the party for a vote of confidence in themselves.

While there are 615 seats in commons, less than 400 attended yesterday's debate, altho it was the largest turnout for a Friday session in years.

The absentees included many of the 75 to 100 who are in the armed forces or away on other war assignments, many who stayed away purposely to avoid committing themselves, some who were ill, and some with previous business appointments.

REPORT FRANCO STEPS OUT STILL PUZZLES PARIS

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 9.—The war news was overshadowed in Paris today by speculation over the mystery of what has happened in Spain.

Reports that Gen. Franco had resigned as head of the Spanish government were published in three morning newspapers. These brought a denial from the Spanish embassy that there has been an upset in the Spanish cabinet. The embassy later denied that Franco had resigned. French official circles said they had received no information that would confirm reports of Madrid trouble.

After consulting Spanish Republican chiefs and members of resistance groups, Miguel Maura, minister of the interior in the first Madrid republican government, called a meeting of Spanish refugee leaders here. It was understood he intended to make an appeal to the Falange, the Spanish Fascist party, for a solution of "the present crisis."

One Ounce of Candy for German Kids Christmas

FAMILY'S SAVINGS, $2,000, STOLEN. While he was out with his dog, the home of Rudolph Dekrinis, 1342 S. Fairfield av., a steel foundry worker, was burglarized of $2,600, the family's savings, he reported to police yesterday.

CHICAGO TO SEE INFANTRY FIGHT MOCK BATTLES

Nine Days of Exhibitions to Open Thursday.

Spectacular infantry assaults, accompanied by the din of machine guns, mortars, bazookas, and the hiss of flame throwers, will thrill Chicagoans this week when the army's E bond show, "Here's Your Infantry," comes to town for nine days of exhibitions in 17 Chicago neighborhoods and suburban communities.

The show will be previewed on State st. shortly after noon Thursday and will be seen twice daily in various sections of the city to stimulate sales of individual E series bonds in the sixth war loan drive.

Attu Tactics to Be Shown.

The soldiers participating include an infantry unit of 39 men from Fort Benning, Ga., who will demonstrate tactics they used against the Japs on Attu Island. There will be 250 additional infantrymen in the mock battle. Each performance will require an hour.

The American troops will attack a camouflaged Jap pillbox, destroy it with mortar and bazooka fire, and drive out the defenders with billows of flame.

In Lincoln Park Thursday.

The first showing after the State st. appearance will be in Lincoln park, Thursday night, under the command of 1st Lt. George A. Birse. During its nine day stay, the spectacle will be exhibited in the following parks: Hamlin, Wells, Norwood, Portage, Douglas, Columbus, La Follette, Riis, McKinley, Garfield, Washington, Ogden, Hamilton, Jackson, Tuley, and Palmer.

Sale of war bonds to individuals in Chicago and Cook county totaled $133,436,000, or 56.6 per cent of the quota of $235,596,000, Francis M. Knight, chairman of the city-county drive, said yesterday.

For the state of Illinois, Renslow P. Sherer, war finance committee chairman, said over-all sales totaled $949,200,000, or 91.8 per cent of the 1 billion 34 millions quota.

In Washington, D. C., the treasury reported nation-wide purchases were 14 billion 464 millions, and said New York, Ohio, and New Jersey have topped their state goals.

Pegler Sued for $600,000 by Bridges and Union

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 9 (AP).—Harry Bridges, west coast CIO longshoremen's union leader, and union labor groups connected with him today sued Westbrook Pegler and Hearst Publications, Inc., for $600,000, charging the columnist had made libelous statements about them. The King Features Syndicate, Inc., which markets the Pegler column, also is made defendant. The complaint challenged statements in Pegler's column in connection with Bridges' fight against deportation.

PLANE RESCUES FLYER DOWN ON SEA 19 MINUTES

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 9 (AP).—The rescue of R. T. Rodd, 20, marine lieutenant of Kansas City, from a life raft, 19 minutes after he parachuted into the sea after his plane went into a spin 10 miles off Oceanside was reported today by the 77th naval district.

A coast guard rescue plane, piloted by Lt. Bernard A. Bailey, Grinnell, Ia., located the flyer and hauled him to safety. Rodd was back at his El Toro, Santa Ana, base 60 minutes after he bailed out.

Crew members of the coast guard plane included W. E. Fanckboner, Wilmette, Ill.

BRITISH DEMAND POST-WAR LIFE AT LEVEL OF U. S.

Plead 'If Yanks Have It, Why Can't We?'

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 9.—One of the post-war problems the British government will face can be summed up in the oft-heard expression: "If the Yanks can have it, why can't we?"

The impact of millions of American troops on the British little man has brought home to him for the first time the idea there might be places in the world where living standards are higher than in Britain.

Housewives Raise Question.

For centuries the average Britisher was sustained by a quiet, propaganda-nourished confidence that he had the best of everything, and if it seemed at times that somebody else had something better—well, there was obviously something wrong with it.

Every Englishman has long known, for instance, that central heating was unhealthful, and that mechanical refrigerators made food taste strangely.

Recently, however, newspapers have been publishing letters from housewives asking when they will be able to buy household appliances "like the Americans have."

Union Junket Amazed.

Such discussion was stimulated many months ago by three trade union members, sent by the ministry of information to the United States on a hands-across-the-sea junket. On their return, they held a press conference at which they said they were amazed at the high standards of American workers' homes. There must be some changes made after the war, they said. They were impressed also by the high wages paid in the United States.

The high pay of American soldiers amazed the British and annoyed many of them because they felt it was unfair the Yanks should be able to outspend the local boys. The story went around that the American fights for money while the Britisher fights for king and country. Nevertheless, plenty of people asked:

"If the Yanks can get good pay, why can't we?"

Newspaper descriptions of the motor industry's post-war "dream car" tell of car radios, sunken door handles, air conditioning, and no running boards, all pre-war features in America.

A letter to a London daily from the Burma war theater inquired, "If the Americans can have mobile motion picture units, why can't we?"

Fighters Speak Up.

A British correspondent said he wished British 2d army troops could have waterproof arctics like the Americans. A royal air force hero, writing in a Sunday paper of difficulties with oxygen mask microphones, said the R. A. F. often wished for throat mikes like those the Americans had.

Home Secretary Morrison has characterized British basic industries as "inefficient and backward." The Platt mission, which studied American cotton manufacturing methods, reported the British 25 years behind, and Morrison and many others said the coal, iron and steel industries must be drastically overhauled.

Most of the Americans are gone now, but they have not been forgotten by housewife or industrialist.

War Vets at 15 and 17

Pvt. James J. Garvin (left), 17, and Pvt. Raymond B. Wallace, 15, after discharge yesterday.

Pvt. James J. Garvin, 17, of 1821 Adams st., and Pvt. Raymond B. Wallace, 15, of 1429 Madison st., two of the nation's youngest battle-scarred veterans of the fighting in France and Germany, were civilians again yesterday after receiving honorable discharges at Fort Sheridan.

Their tunics bedecked with army awards, including the Purple Heart, the youngsters said they were glad to return to civilian life. Wallace, who was 14 when he enlisted, said he hoped to return to work on the farm of Thomas Fisk, near Verona, Grundy county.

Both were fighting in Europe when army officials learned their real ages and sent them home. Garvin was wounded last July 7, but returned to battle the same day. Wallace was wounded at St. Lo, and evacuated.

BELGIUM FACES HUNGRY DAYS, PREMIER SAYS

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 9 (AP). Economic conditions in Belgium are going to get much worse before they possibly can get better, Premier Hubert Pierlot said today.

Speaking with the aid of an interpreter, Pierlot said Belgium's shrinking food and coal supplies could not be supplemented until Antwerp harbor was opened to civil as well as military use.

"For Belgium the situation is very, very serious," Pierlot said. "We have a population of 750 inhabitants to the square mile and can produce only enough food during normal times to feed our people for six months of the year. Now it has been almost four months since our country was liberated and the harvest they saved from the Germans is almost gone.

"In less than a month oil for making margarine will be gone. In two months there probably will be complete exhaustion of meat and wheat.

"We don't ask to be given more than a chance to work on the allied side. We could pay for materials and food with our own money."

Norwegian Police Head Slain, Nazi Radio Says

CIO WOMEN WANT A MAN'S PAY, AND STILL BE LADIES

Insist on Keeping Those 'Extra Privileges.'

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9 (AP).—Rosie the Riveter wants a man's pay, but she expects industry to treat her like a lady for all that.

The 150 delegates to the first national women's conference of the CIO United Automobile Workers union made that quite plain today.

All that was needed to undam a torrent of feminine opinion on the subject was the suggestion of a male speaker that if Rosie wants equal pay she also should expect to turn out the same quantity of work and observe the same conduct as a man.

While industry generally has adopted the policy of equal pay for equal work for men and women, there still are instances where women receive less pay, according to Walther P. Reuther, UAW vice president.

Give Up Those Privileges?

At today's meeting Thomas A. Johnstone, acting director of the union's General Motors department, suggested that Rosie, for the sake of a man's pay, might have to give up some of the little extra privileges accorded her by employer and fellow employe alike in deference to her sex.

"If women insist on getting the same rate of pay plus rest periods, which men do not get, then the men will raise hell," Johnstone bravely said.

Women Tell Their Side.

That was all the women needed. One delegate after another leaped to her feet and forcefully recounted her beliefs. Here are some of the thinks they said:

"A man worker would not expect his wife or sister to do heavy lifting."

"Brawn should not be considered more important than brains."

"Management says women need close supervision, do they? Well, supervisors stir up more trouble than help."

Want CIO to Act.

The delegates adopted a resolution designed to spur the UAW-CIO executive board in the fight for equal pay for equal work; another urging abolition of separate job classifications for women; one pressing grievances in plants where advancement to top brackets is denied women; one advocating paid rest periods—two 15 minute siestas—for all workers, and still another asking 45 minutes for lunch with adequate "wash-up time."

The conference also went on record in opposition to the proposed equal rights amendment to the federal constitution, on the ground it would void state legislation governing working conditions for women.

HURT DISMANTLING FHA UNIT.

Rosiclare, Ill., Dec. 9 [AP].—Frank Bradley of Simpson, Ill., was seriously injured today when struck by a falling panel of one of the federal housing units being torn down at "Spardale" for removal to Decatur, Ill. The structures were built for Fluorspar miners.

PLEADS GUILTY TO CHARGES OF 12 YEAR GIRLS

Roy Venning, 59, of 221 S. West st., Waukegan, a lumber truck driver, pleaded guilty and waived examination yesterday when he was arraigned before Police Magistrate G. M. Bax in Lake Forest on charges of taking indecent liberties with two 12 year old girls. He was bound over to the Lake county grand jury in bonds of $10,000. Venning, who is unmarried, was seized Friday by Policeman Jack Robertson who found him and the girls in the cab of his truck. The girls said they had accepted candy to accompany Venning on rides on several occasions in the last three months.

IMPOSE CURFEW IN TOWNS NEAR POWDER BLAST

Pinole, Cal., Dec. 9 (AP).—An 8 p. m. curfew was ordered tonight for three towns nearest the Hercules powder plant explosion which rocked the countryside for miles around today, killed two workmen, injured nearly 50 persons and demolished two buildings.

Sheriff James N. Long ordered the curfew for Pinole, Hercules, and Rodeo, to avert possibility of looting Christmas shopping displays in stores with shattered windows.

Storage Buildings.

The dead were Andrew Hutt, 40, and Louis Saph, 26, both employed in the buildings used for storage of nitroglycerin.

Debris from the two wooden buildings which blew up shot so high that Lloyd Marshall, district manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company at Richmond, five miles away, said it could be seen from the office windows.

Most of the injured were hurt by flying glass, both in the buildings of the 850 acre plant, and in surrounding towns. Some nearer the explosion were severely hurt.

Les J. Bower, Contra Costa defense co-ordinator, said the list of injured probably would reach 50. Three eye specialists were hurried to the scene to treat face and eye cuts at the plant.

Dogs Frightened.

Residents of surrounding towns said the blast frightened all the dogs away, and many did not venture back to their homes for many hours.

Leroy P. Hall, plant superintendent, said he expected repairs could be made within a relatively short time. Plant operations were proceeding meanwhile. He made no estimate of damage. Cause of the explosion had not been determined.

VETERAN'S PAPER FOUND.

L. R. Benston, director of rehabilitation of the American Legion, said yesterday that the honorable discharge of Richard E. Mills, a World War I veteran, was found and turned into the American Legion office at 343 S. Dearborn st.

ST. LOUIS UNION SQUABBLE SHUTS 70 FILM HOUSES

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 9 (AP).—More than two-thirds of this area's theaters were closed tonight as a strike of film exchange employes and a sympathy walkout of union projectionists slowly paralyzed the motion picture industry here. Seventy of the city's 100 theaters were dark.

A deadlock prevailed between managements and the AFL Film Exchange Employes locals B-1 and F-1 and the Moving Picture Operators' local 163.

The strike started Dec. 1 when the operators demanded the exchanges should not send films to three suburban theaters which employ one non-union projectionist each.

The message, picked up by Gordon Thompson in Montreal, Canada, was telephoned to THE TRIBUNE and then relayed to Milewski's aunt, Mrs. Mary Trzaska of the Archer av. address, by whom he was adopted in infancy.

Only a few days ago, Mrs. Trzaska received the same information in a letter from a Miss Joan Scott of Kent, England, who had intercepted a previous German broadcast and wrote to Mrs. Trzaska.

Milewski has been in the army nearly three years. He was a steel worker before his induction.

130,000 Cigarets Get a Light as Truck Burns

Caldwell, Idaho, Dec. 9 (AP).—Approximately 130,000 cigarets — enough to supply every smoker in this city with one package — were destroyed when a truck burned yesterday. HOLY SMOKE! NO HOPE OF RAISING CIGARET SUPPLY

Wholesalers of the Nation Plan Rationing.

Accepting the cigaret shortage as here for the duration of the war, tobacco wholesalers will meet in Chicago next month to set up a system of sharing the limited supply as the best arrangement for the smoker. Rationing to retailers, in which Chicago wholesalers say they took the lead, will be established on a national basis with the aim of eliminating inequities in distribution.

Nothing can be done to increase civilian supplies as long as the manufacturers lack sufficient labor, the wholesalers said. But by setting up an allotment for each retailer on the basis of his pre-famine sales, they said, they hope to make it possible for smokers thruout the country to get their fair share.

Vary on Size of Supply.

What quantities are available for rationing appears difficult to determine. Joseph Kolodny, executive secretary of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors, in New York, said the supply was about 70 per cent of normal. Phil Fuchs, secretary of the Chicago association, affiliated with the national group, said that might be a fair estimate covering all brands over a period of time. But he pointed out that different manufacturers vary their output for civilians from week to week.

"Philip Morris gave notice last week that they would cut to 52 per cent and we haven't had more than 50 per cent of Camels any time during the shortage," Fuchs said. "Luckies have been around 70 per cent most of the time and Chesterfields have been about the same, but heavy government orders just recently have affected them. One or another is up or down almost every week."

Rationing Here Since 1943.

One purpose of the national meeting, which will be held in the Palmer House Jan. 15 and 16, will be to remind wholesalers of their responsibility to the customer, Fuchs said. Chicago wholesalers, he said, have had numerous meetings to discuss distribution during the emergency and have been rationing retailers since October, 1943.

"By and large, Chicago has done better than other cities," he said.

War time population shifts have upset the normal system of distribution, Kolodny said. There are eight retail tobacco outlets for each thousand of population, he said, but when people move in large numbers, the manufacturers and wholesalers find it difficult to keep their wares distributed evenly.

Kolodny said also that this is the first time cigaret rationing has been tried and inexperience is a factor. The Chicago meeting, he said, is expected to improve the experiment.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 9 (AP).—Seaman Jackie Cooper, former child actor, said today he will marry Actress June Horne sometime before he leaves here next Thursday. Cooper said details of the marriage have not yet been planned. He is to report back to Great Lakes naval training station Dec. 17.

CLARK FAVORS ASSESSORS FOR OTHER COUNTIES

Assessor Clark yesterday told the Illinois joint legislative committee on taxation, meeting in the Morrison hotel, that he was in favor of a county assessor or assessors' supervisor in each downstate county who would operate with present township assessors serving as deputies. Such an official, Clark said, would help to erase difficulties now found in unequal and hurried township assessments.

Clark reiterated his view that the ratio of assessed value to true value should be 100 per cent—a rule which he has applied in Cook county—and asserted that the state revenue department has power to order equalization of the tax rate thruout the state. The committee, headed by State Sen. Walker Butler, has held the view that the department does not have such power.

Representatives of the Illinois Assessors' association said they were opposed to proposed legislation to abolish the posts of 1,700 township assessors who function in a majority of downstate counties, but would not object to a centralization of assessment authority within the counties.

Treasurers' association spokesmen reported a poll of their group showed a difference of opinion on the 100 per cent assessment basis, but said most dissenters were reconcilable if proportionate rate reductions were put into effect. Butler said his committee would include such proportionate reductions in any recommendations.

900 SHIP WORKMEN AT PULLMAN YARDS CONTINUE ON STRIKE

Nine hundred workers employed in the construction of landing ships at the Calumet shipyards of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, on strike since Tuesday, remained away from their jobs yesterday, seriously curtailing production, company officials said.

Many of the strikers who at a mass meeting Friday booed down union officials who pleaded with them to end the walkout, again assembled yesterday at the same place, a combination tavern and hall at 205 E. 115th st., to discuss the issues. Joseph Germano and George Mischeau, international representatives of the United Steel Workers union [CIO], who were shouted down at the first meeting, were absent yesterday.

The strike was started when 175 pipefitters protested the promotion of a Negro workman, and rapidly spread to other departments when their members walked out in sympathy. The company contends promotion was made on the basis of seniority.

TAXIS VIOLATE LAW BY DODGING DISTANT TRIPS

Openly Seek Short Hauls for Bigger Profits.

The city ordinance which requires taxicab drivers to haul passengers to their destinations any place within the city limits was openly violated at five railroad stations yesterday as more than a dozen drivers passed up a prospective passenger who was bound for the far south side and picked up other riders whose shorter trips meant more profit for the drivers.

The prospective customer, who did not identify himself to the cab men, was a reporter for THE TRIBUNE who was assigned to investigate complaints that the ordinance is being violated. The reporter was forced to wait at the various stations more than two hours before finding a driver willing to make the long trip.

At Union station the reporter was shunted to one side on informing the cab starter that his destination was 108th st. and Michigan av. After a half dozen cabs had taken on passengers, the starter finally ushered the reporter into Yellow Cab number 71.

Cab Driver Balks.

A few blocks away, at the La Salle st. station, the cab halted at the cab stand while the driver discharged a woman passenger. The driver inquired the reporter's destination. When told again that it was 108th st. and Michigan av., the driver balked on the ground that his other passenger was going to the Grand Central station and it was time for him to check out.

The La Salle street station starter was pessimistic about the reporter's chance for a ride so far south. The first driver, a Checker man, refused to make the trip. The second driver, also a Checker, was sympathetic, tho not coöperative.

"You can't get drivers to go way down there," he explained. "They have to deadhead back, and it's a total loss for them."

Edges Into Cab.

At the Grand Central station, the driver of Yellow Cab number 1214 apparently failed to hear the starter announce the three passengers' destinations. Two were sailors headed for a half hour trip thru the loop between trains. The third was the reporter, who finally had edged himself into a cab.

"You boys want to go somewhere and do a little dancing?" asked the driver as the cab approached State and Van Buren sts. The sailors said they desired only to tour the loop. But the reporter had other ideas.

"When will I get out to 108th and Michigan?" he asked. The driver swung about in amazement.

A Mighty Far Trip.

"You can't get a cab to haul you way out there unless you make it interesting for the driver," said the cabbie. "It's mighty far and no one's going to start out unless he's assured of a good sized tip."

At Michigan av. and Van Buren st. the driver halted the cab, opened the door, and suggested that the reporter take an Illinois Central electric train to the south side. After paying his fare, the reporter trudged to Dearborn station, where a brace of cabbies in front of the terminal turned noses skyward at mention of 108th st. and Michigan av.

Driver of Checker cab No. 4146 explained that he had a full load, altho it was quite apparent that there was room for one more rider.

Calls It Murder.

Ten minutes later the driver of Yellow cab No. 1552 herded the reporter and two sailors into his cab. At Wabash and Van Buren he dropped off the service men, and then asked where the reporter was bound for.

"Brother," he exclaimed upon being told, "that's murder. If I stay in the loop, I can make myself $5 or $6 in the time I use in driving you out there."

The reporter was emphatic.

"Aren't you going to drive me there after picking me up?" he demanded. The driver replied, "Mister, put yourself in my shoes. I've got to eat."

"And I've got to get to 108th and Michigan," his passenger insisted.

After arguing a while longer the driver gave in.

At the Illinois Central Roosevelt rd. station the reporter got an idea. Why couldn't he catch the electric train south and save a lot of time and trouble? he asked the cabbie. The driver heartily agreed with the suggestion.

Starts All Over Again.

At the entrance of the Illinois Central station, the reporter's experiment started all over again, and ended only when Checker Cab number 4781 agreed to make the trip.

Ralph E. Stouffer, general manager of the Chicago Yellow Cab company, said last night that his firm would discharge any driver upon proper evidence that he was refusing to take long hauls. He said it was his opinion that other large cities had a greater number of complaints than those received in Chicago.

BONDS TOTALING $105,000 SET FOR 4 IN AUTO THEFTS

Bonds totaling $105,000 were set yesterday by Police Magistrate Clarence L. Brown of Waukegan in binding over to the Lake county grand jury four young men who Assistant State's Atty. George W. Field said had admitted six recent car thefts in Waukegan and North Chicago.

The men held are Hugh Tarnowski, 21, of 327 South av., Waukegan; Harlan Smith, 26, of 1939 Dickey av., Frank Bojniewicz, 17, of 1646 Victoria av., and Stanley Bemben, 15, of 1524 Stewart av., all in North Chicago. Tarnowski, who is accused in six thefts, was held in $30,000 bond. The others, each charged with five thefts, were held in $25,000 bond each.

After capture by Detectives William McDonald and Cal Hoff of Waukegan, the men admitted they had taken the cars, driven them at high speeds, and wrecked some of them just for a thrill.

NEW DEAL FOES HIT AT 'HOKUM,' PLAN 1946 FIGHT

O'Connor to Call Rally of Democrats Soon.

Democrats who opposed President Roosevelt's fourth term under the banner of the American Democratic National committee will be rallied soon to start a fight against the New Deal in 1948 and in the 1946 congressional elections. A five page letter outlining plans in bristling terms was received yesterday at the committee's national headquarters in Chicago from its executive chairman, John J. O'Connor, former Democratic congressman from New York and a leader of the President's 1932 campaign.

"To all that hokum about 'unity' we have not swooned," he wrote. "As far as continuing to give our all to the winning of the war and the setting up of a 'lasting peace,' we're in there, just as strong as ever, and with everything we have. But we do not propose to fall for that usual booby trap set by the winner, squealing for 'unity.' He means immunity from further fighting. He means he has had just about enough of battling."

New Organization Considered.

Possibly a new organization will appear to be the best means of carrying on, O'Connor said. "In that connection," he wrote, "one of the questions involves whether Republicans and other non-Democrats shall join us in some sort of a coalition or realignment of existing parties."

In Chicago, Dr. Robert E. O'Brian, secretary of the committee, said he believed a new party was "inevitable," and "in my opinion our group will undertake to form it unless, without undue delay, other elements opposed to the New Deal unite their forces."

O'Connor declared that the Republicans in their analyses of the Nov. 7 results have overlooked the support given their candidate by dissident Democrats.

Republican View Hit.

"The Republicans, by reason of long partial submission to, and acquiescence in, the New Deal philosophy, have taken a leaf out of the latter's prospectus," he said. "They claim sole credit for the fine showing Gov. Dewey made. They forget that of the total vote given their candidate, at least 7 million votes came from Democrats. For instance, in New York state it is estimated that Gov. Dewey received about 700,000 Democratic votes, 400,000 of which were in New York City. The 690,000 votes Hillman's Communist American Labor party and Dubinsky's pink Liberal party rolled up in New York City for their hero over here did the job in the state."

"This crowd," said O'Connor, "is now a political machine and can win again without Roosevelt," and "it is more than ever a contest between New Dealism and Americanism."

O'Connor's letter did not set a date for the proposed anti-New Deal mobilization. He pointed out that the holidays make transportation difficult.

U. S. COURT SETS UP 'NEW ERA IN HABEAS CORPUS'

Tells Judge to Hear Writ Plea.

A decision which may have a far reaching effect upon the appeals of convicts who charge they are detained illegally in state prisons was handed down yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The decision, written by Judge Otto Kerner and concurred in by Judge Evan A. Evans, remanded for hearing a petition for habeas corpus filed by Charles W. Potter, serving a life sentence in the Indiana state prison for rape. Potter appealed to the Circuit court when a hearing was refused him by Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert of the northern district of Indiana.

'Floodgates Lifted.'

The majority decision of the Circuit court held that the petition should have been heard by Judge Swygert. Judge J. Earl Major of the Circuit court, in his dissenting opinion, held that the ruling may result in swamping federal courts with similar petitions from convicts in Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin, the states included in the 7th district over which the court has jurisdiction.

The dissenting opinion ran to much greater length than the majority opinion, which was comparatively brief, and merely held that a serious charge had been brought and that it was the duty of the lower court to grant a hearing. Supreme court decisions were cited in support of the opinion.

"The majority opinion, in my view," wrote Judge Major, "marks the dawn of a new era of federal jurisdiction in habeas corpus. More than that, so far as the state of Indiana is concerned, the floodgates have been lifted and the federal courts will be deluged with petitions making every character of scurrilous attack upon the judiciary of that state.

Other Decisions Upset.

"The opinion, in my judgment, repudiates a long line of decisions of this court, notwithstanding the expressed statement to the contrary. Especially is this so as to the holding of habeas corpus in Indiana is a futile thing and need not be resorted to before coming to a federal court. . . .

"I should think that if we now are going to repudiate a rule of law so thoroly established by our previous holdings [in which every judge of the court has at some time participated] we should at least be frank and acknowledge the repudiation. This opinion will leave the federal District courts, at least of this circuit, in a hopeless quandary as to what is reputed to show jurisdiction in habeas corpus.

"If we pursue the direction we are now headed it will not be long until the Indiana judges will be on trial in the federal courts."

State Courts Used First.

Judge Major concluded that courts ordinarily have held in the past that writs of state prisoners have no place in federal court until all possible remedies have been sought in the state courts.

Potter had not asked an Indiana court for a writ of habeas corpus before applying to the federal court, but he charged that his confession was obtained by duress, that the trial court ignored his repudiation of the confession, and that it did not appoint an attorney to represent him, tho Potter had asserted he was unable financially to employ one.

PROSPECTS FOR BRITISH INDUSTRY.

Herbert Morrison, British home secretary, has termed Britain's basic industries "inefficient and backward" and, as a starter, has called for nationalization of the coal, cotton, and iron and steel industries by way of solution. He admitted that American industries "which are so far ahead of ours" are conducted by private enterprise, but didn't permit that to stand in the way of the proposed blueprint for socialism.

"America," he said, "today is in the progressive, thrusting stage of capitalist development, as was Britain in the 19th century. Tho we must aim at America's results and learn from her technical methods, we cannot copy her industrial structure. You cannot turn the clock back three-quarters of a century."

Mr. Morrison is a member of the Labor party and nationalization is a Laborite panacea. According to this school of thought, inefficient industries would undergo some miraculous conversion to become efficient overnight when government took over. The principal characteristic of apostles of reform is something close to religious faith in their own body of economic doctrine, and Mr. Morrison is no exception. He does not see that nationalization would achieve nothing, except, perhaps, to crystalize inefficiency in its present form.

Recently several studies have been made comparing the relative efficiency of particular fields of British and American industry. The latest of these was the report of a mission headed by Frank Platt which investigated the American cotton textile industry. Before that comparisons had been made of the building industry in the two countries. A group of American experts investigated the British coal industry, but its report was so unflattering that only the barest outline was permitted to become public. All of these studies emphasized the backwardness of British organization, methods, and management in comparison with American.

The cotton textile industry is one of those which Morrison proposes to nationalize, so the Platt report is especially pertinent. "With normal staffing," the report states, "British production per man hour is less than the American by approximately 18 to 49 per cent in spinning, by 80 to 85 per cent in winding, by 79 to 89 per cent in beaming, and by 56 to 67 per cent in weaving." In other words, the average American worker produces from one and one-quarter to 10 times as much in an hour as the average English worker.

The report compares the 95 per cent of automatic looms in the American industry with the 5 per cent in England, but emphasizes that mechanization does not wholly account for American superiority. Other factors are better utilization of labor, permitting a relatively large number of units or machines to be supervised by machine operatives; a younger labor force than in Britain; standardization of product and multiple shift working, and a much higher and more progressive American managerial talent.

The report shows that the great advance in efficiency of the American industry came 25 or 30 years ago, and that while this was going on and since then, the British cotton industry has shown almost no comprehension that methods could be improved and efficiency increased by adopting American methods. The same addiction to obsolete methods, machinery, and management was discovered in the surveys of the British building and coal industries. In the last six months the output of British coal miners, which already was very unfavorable as compared with American output, has fallen a further five hundredweight a week.

These comparisons of Britain's striking inefficiency in relation to American industry should be related to the present plans of the New Deal to grant Britain very large post-war credits so that it can become a factor again in world trade. There is considerable agitation to repeal the Johnson embargo on loans to nations which defaulted their first World war debts. Charles P. Taft, war time economic director of the state department, has proposed that we "finance England's post-war recovery" and assist her return to a "balanced basis." Only the other day Lord Halifax, the British ambassador, suggested in Chicago that the United States "marry your money and experience with ours."

The inescapable question concerning all these proposals is whether any good would come of it, the condition of British industry being what it is. Even as interested an observer as the London Economist is doubtful. It says that Britain cannot attain a sound balance of trade except by productive efficiency, and that even the acquisition of exclusive rights in certain foreign markets is no solution, because no nation can for long find a market for inferior goods at high prices. In the absence of any real solution to be reached thru modernization of methods and management, nationalization is the solution of the Left and cartel organization, price fixing, and surface revision of administrative structures within particular industries the solution of the Right.

Under the circumstances, America might find that its loans were going into a bottomless barrel, with no restoration of Britain's trade position which would benefit us or the world. In addition to this hazard, we are likely to find our loans being used to finance British experiments in state socialism which would compete with the enterprise system here which foots the bill. Whether this would prove distasteful to the New Deal planners is highly doubtful. They might interpret any improvement in what is by common acknowledgment an obsolete and inefficient industrial system in Britain as providing grounds for pursuing a similar course of nationalization here.

The fact that the British themselves admit that American free enterprise is running along at a peak of efficiency which they cannot approach would not enter into the question. Our planners have the itch, even if the planning would leave us as badly off as the British are now.

MR. BIDDLE'S BABY.

Atty. Gen. Biddle's subordinates in charge of the Atlanta penitentiary have found themselves the embarrassed custodians of a sitdown strike. A handful of hard case prisoners seized four guards as hostages, barricaded themselves within the prison walls, and long defied attempts to subdue them.

The affair may be taken as further evidence of Mr. Biddle's utter incompetence. Prison guards are all powerful. They keep an armed guard over unarmed men and they have behind them the authority of government which sanctions strict measures against breaches of discipline. Successful defiance of authority by inmates is a symptom of incapacity or corruption, or both, in prison administration.

Mr. Biddle has proclaimed that he is part of a labor administration and, in his view, amply demonstrated by his actions, "labor" and Communists are interchangeable. He has frequently shielded Communists against the laws he is supposed to enforce, and he has assisted and sponsored their infiltration of governmental offices.

His alliance with a party that uses lawlessness and treason as political weapons, and which constantly breeds disorder as a means of advancing its program, makes it difficult for any competent administrators whom he may have in the prison system to do their duty.

KINLEY THE ECONOMIST.

The accounts of the life of David Kinley, published since his death a week ago, were almost entirely devoted to his achievements as president of the University of Illinois during the period of its greatest growth. He deserves to be remembered for another reason, as well. Dr. Kinley was an extraordinarily able administrator who became a dean as early as 1894, and he was also one of America's outstanding economists.

His special field was money and banking. When a national monetary commission was created following the panic of 1907, he was selected as one of its experts. The reports of this commission made possible the creation of the system of federal reserve banks, without which neither the last war nor the present one could have been financed. He was often consulted by the government on South American economic problems, especially those relating to Chile, and was a delegate to several Pan-American conferences.

Prof. F. A. Hayek in his recent book, "The Road to Serfdom," which has been widely discussed both here and in England, observed that both countries have moved in the direction of a controled economy and that a continuation in that direction means fascism or communism, either one of which is serfdom.

Dr. Kinley was 30 years ahead of Hayek in pointing this out. Thus, in the American Economic Review in 1914, he wrote:

"The government, as such, once recognized as having a right to regulate economic conditions, will be pushed by the ruling class or classes toward regulation or control of the rights of others in politics, religion, and other ways; for economic privileges or rights cannot crystallize into custom and be cast into law in behalf of some as against others without imposing upon 'some' corresponding duties which become privileges or rights of the 'others.' This process means a slow crystallization of economic status and the production of classes in society."

At another time he warned:

"The destruction of individual initiative and freedom or of constitutional restrictions on government action is a high price to pay for a temporary, or perhaps even a permanent, increase in economic welfare deemed by the reformers to be desirable. Nor is such destruction necessary. Welfare can be attained without such a sacrifice."

Dr. Kinley was never the cloistered professor, and it was in his nature to speak out as he did in discussing communism, which he said was "economically unsound, religiously atheistic, socially destructive, ethically indefensible, and morally debasing." Dr. Kinley earned high rank for his acumen in economic matters and for the vigor with which he made his views known.

BONDS VS. IDLE CASH.

No one ever had any doubt that the treasury would be able to raise the 14 billion dollars sought in the drive which started on Nov. 20. Corporations stood ready to buy more government securities than in any previous campaign, and back of them were the banks. Francis M. Knight, director of the 6th war loan drive in Cook county, has announced that corporations have already exceeded their quota for the drive.

The government's purpose was not just to raise money, but to sell bonds to individuals. That is the principal test of success or failure, and at this point the bond drive seems to be lagging. For reasons that are not comprehensible, people are failing to do what they were asked to do, what they are well prepared to do, and what is best for them.

Only fools or slackers keep a lot of cash on hand or in the bank when they have no known early need for it. Cash is sterile. It does no good to any one. It bears no interest. Turned over to the government it yields a return, and helps to finance the war. Moreover, keeping idle, sterile cash on hand beyond one's personal needs forces the government to issue money to replace that which is withheld from circulation by hoarders. That diverts man power from essential war work, and if the hoarding should be carried on indefinitely, it might even undermine confidence in our money. And yet to meet the hoarding needs of the people the government has been obliged to increase the total supply of money from 7 billions in 1939 to more than 24 billions now.

The people of this community distinguished themselves above all others in the last drive. No other big city in that drive or in any preceding one met its "E" bond quota. But in the 5th drive Chicago did it. Cook county went over the top with 109.5 per cent of quota for "E" bonds. Our record on all kinds of individual bonds was also over par. It will not soon be forgotten that Chicago made a better response to a war appeal than any other city.

This distinction will be somewhat tarnished if we do not top our quota in the current drive. The money is here. The goal is attainable, and we cannot believe that everybody in Cook county won't exert himself again to keep Chicago America's outstanding bond-buying big city. An extra "E" bond for every member of every family will turn the trick.

A PRIMITIVE LAW REVISED.

[Elgin (Ill.) Courier-News.]

According to dispatches from our 3d army front, many of the Nazis' once-arrogant soldiers have taken to breaking their false teeth and glass eyes deliberately in an effort to get out of front line combat duty. Since they know how the world feels about Nazi arrogance, it is not surprising that these former supermen prefer to extract an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth by their own painless method, rather than leaving it to the rougher methods of their enemies.

AVIATION'S WAR ROLE

[Following is the address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

Before the outbreak of World War II. there was a variety of theories as to the role aviation would play in the next war.

There was the American army theory that aviation for the most part would obtain information and regulate artillery fire.

There was the American military aviation theory that it should be independent of the army. In England the army had no control of it, and in the earlier battles its aviation was either bombing objectives deep in Germany; or was in England, protecting London. It gave no help to the ground forces until they were badly beaten, after which it covered the evacuation of the remnants from Dunkerque.

Whatever theory the French had, they did not have the aviation to back it up.

There was the theory of the Italian general Douhet that the entrenched lines would be unbreachable, and success would come with aviation bombing enemy factories and other installations behind the lines.

The German theory was that bombers should attack military installations close to the front and, afterward, assist artillery to open a hole for tank penetration, and that parachute troops should be used to occupy bridges behind the enemy lines vital to German success. The successful theory the Germans used at the beginning of the war now is being used against them.

The American naval theory was that aviation should be the eyes of the fleet to find the enemy and also to watch the fall of shots. American naval aviation believed in its bombing and torpedo launching powers, but was so much out of confidence of higher authorities that no effort was made to protect the battleship fleet in Pearl Harbor from air attack while the carriers, fortunately, were not considered so valuable that they had to be protected behind the submarine net, and, therefore, were away when that attack occurred.

The British navy did not use airplanes either for observation or for scouting. It was an American plane that located the German battleship Bismarck and it was a clumsy, old fashioned airplane, catapulted from the deck of the British ship Ark Royal, that flew alone thru the Bismarck's anti-aircraft fire and dropped the torpedo which crippled her.

Airplanes had flown Franco's army to Spain, and they had destroyed the navy of the Spanish government, but the allied governments learned nothing from that.

The British navy had been driven from the coast of Norway by German planes and driven from the coast of Greece and from protecting Crete, which, however, was captured by paratroops before the water borne troops arrived.

Since then there has been a vast amount of experience both on land and sea. On land the success of aviation has been varied. It was given the principal credit for the victory at El Alamein. It prevented the evacuation of the German army in Algiers. In the battle of Normandy it was valuable in preventing the movement of German troops and supplies and, of course, it gave complete protection to the landing itself.

The great air bombardment at Monte Cassino abbey, however, was a complete failure, but such a bombardment was successful at St. Lo in that it sufficiently damaged the German defenses to permit the American armored columns to break thru.

At sea aviation has clearly become supreme. No surface craft saw each other at the battle of Coral sea; the attack on Marshall-Gilbert Jap navy bases; the Bismarck sea battle; the attack on Jap naval vessels off Rabaul; the attack on the Jap fleet between the Philippines and Marianas; the great battle of Sept. 14 off the Philippines; the destruction of the task force off Manila area in September, bringing to more than 520 the number of enemy ships sunk or damaged by aviation alone. The one surface battle in which cannon were used on both sides took place because at that time there were no carriers or land based planes available. But the Japanese fleet had been damaged both by submarines and by aircraft before the fleets came into contact and the eventual destruction of the Japanese fleet was caused by airplanes.

In the naval battle between Leyte and Samar when the Japanese surface ships—undetected by radar because of the presence of mountains—surprised a force of small carriers, airplanes from the carriers did great damage to the Japanese surface ships and it was airplanes from another force of carriers that completed the fleet's destruction during its retreat. Lately the German battleship Tirpitz was sunk by three six ton bombs.

Battleships and other gun firing ships, having lost their function to obtain command of the sea, have developed a capacity they were not supposed to possess—that of successfully engaging shore batteries. They have done this at Cherbourg and a number of islands in the Pacific. Their continuous and observed fire has been found more potent in supporting landings than the less frequent and less well directed bombs from the air. Men well entrenched are impervious to all except direct hits or very near misses. Those surviving aerial bombardment are free to use their arms until the return of the bombers, but men under heavy, continuous barrage not only suffer much greater casualties but become unable or unwilling to rise from their shelters to fire at attackers until too late. We may also conclude that the bombing of factories is effective because it is being continued by the allies.

It would seem to be a just conclusion that on land the air force is the principal but not by any means the overwhelmingly dominant arm of the service which it is at sea.

HOT AND COLD WATER IN ILLNESS.

NATURE provides many healing agents. Heat from the sun, ultra-violet, and thermal or mineral springs have long been looked upon as effective in the restoration of health. Ancient civilizations established communities and bathhouses wherever warm water gushed from the ground. Only a generation or two ago Saratoga, N. Y., Hot Springs, Ark., and numerous other localities were more popular as resorts for invalids than Florida, the southwest, or the Pacific coast.

But, with the advent of miracle-working chemicals, we have forgotten somewhat the stimulating and eliminating rôles of hydrotherapy. Perhaps we will return to this management. At any rate, there are signs of renewed interest in the subject.

Long before the coming of the white man, the American Indian employed the sweat bath. The device is as old as man and was used by the Finns beyond recorded history. The nomads of the plains considered it a ritual as well as a cure. The women would build a wicker enclosure eight or 10 feet in diameter, cover it with skins, and place therein a tub of water into which heated stones were dropped. The steam immediately induced profuse perspiration which the warrior was obliged to endure as long as he could. He would then dash out and plunge into a near-by stream. The Turkish bath is a modern survival of this custom.

What was accomplished? Great quantities of blood were drawn into the epidermis. Sweat glands poured forth enormous amounts of fluid, with the result that the output of waste was increased. Many a beginning infection was thus speedily curbed.

Every nurse knows the advantages of tepid sponges in the reduction of fever. Warm water to which perhaps a little alcohol has been added becomes a cleanser and cooler of the cuticle, bringing with it quiet, comfort, and a lowered temperature. The process was lifesaving in the typhoid epidemics of two score years ago. So valuable did this plan prove that James Currie of Liverpool, England, wrote a book 150 years ago on the usefulness of cold water in fever. It is still an excellent nursing aid.

Few of us can sense, unless we have been around a hospital, the utility of moist heat [which is more beneficial than dry] in localizing infections. When applied constantly, germs are destroyed because millions of white cells [bacteria killers] are drawn to the area. The procedure may change what would otherwise be a dangerous case of blood poisoning into one of comparative safety. It is similar to the poultice, so often utilized successfully by our grandmothers.

We have learned much about the relaxing effects of lukewarm baths and the stimulation which follows cold or hot immersions. Furthermore, we all appreciate the response of aching muscles, joints, and nerves to heat. Sitz baths, which may be prolonged 20 minutes or more, will alleviate congestion within the lower urinary tract and the pelvis.

Warm, hot, or cold compresses are all helpful in relieving pain. The application of ice will retard circulation. We have all observed what happens when a cold cloth is placed on the chest of a child suffering from croup or bronchitis.

The skin constitutes one of the important organs of the body and we can make it serve the system far more efficiently if we will study its capabilities. We must not forget that it contains millions of nerve endings, which will be influenced by water therapy.

VICTIM OF DEAFNESS.

Mrs. P. writes: So many of our service men will return with damaged hearing that I wish you would do everything possible to make normal people realize what a handicap we hard of hearing folk are under. I have been this way for 12 years and am sensitive about my defect. Every one feels sorry for the blind person, but we are avoided like the plague. So many times a group of women will be talking and when I come along one will turn to the others and say: "She is awfully deaf." Then they all turn and stare at me. It so happens that I read lips and I feel like replying, "Yes, and what physical trouble do you have?" Another thing, people walk up behind me [including my family] and tap me on the shoulder. This startles me and makes me more nervous. It would help so much if the speaker would stand facing me. I could write a book on my experiences.

REPLY.

Why don't you do just that? Books on every topic have appeared—why not on your problem? As you say, the deafened veteran will need the kindly thought and coöperation of all those about him.

COLITIS.

W. T. writes: What are the most important factors in the treatment of mucous colitis?

REPLY.

Good mental hygiene and dietary regulation. All roughage is omitted. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet giving more detailed instructions.

HEARS HEART.

Mrs. P. writes: Every night when I lie down to sleep I can hear a ticking on my left side. What is this?

REPLY.

Probably the beating of the heart, which millions of us can detect.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, The Tribune.

REPUBLICAN PATRONAGE.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—The Tribune, with its usual courage, points out that "the Republican organization in Cook county is no good."

There are scores of Republican appointees on the pay roll who never bother to attend a political meeting because they consider themselves "personal appointments." There are scores of Democrats, who served eight years under Horner, who have been kept on during the last four years, and who still possess a strange political immunity which keeps Republicans from replacing them. No one, including Mr. Dempsey, the former county chairman, ever could find out why this condition was allowed to continue.

Dissension and discontent are rife among the Republican ward committeemen. Patronage, the lifeblood of a political organization, is disgracefully parceled out. For example, the entire Cook county patronage of State Auditor Lueder was the private, personal concern of the late William Pacelli. He controled it. Upon his death it passed to his widow. Both of the Pacellis used Lueder's patronage to weld together a block of legislative representatives in Springfield, who vote with or against Gov. Green, as the bloc deems it best serves its interests.

To save the Republican party in Illinois in 1948, Gov. Green and other Republican state officials, owe it to the loyal Republican party workers to clean house: To fire the Democrats, who will be quickly taken care of by Boss Kelly; to eliminate political deadheads and alleged Republicans who are too lazy to join their ward organizations; to purge the Cook county organization of those fake Republican leaders who have one foot in Mayor Kelly's office, and, most important, to name a responsible patronage leader in Cook county, with powers to do the job properly.

If the Cook county Republican organization continues in its disorganized condition, the party is doomed statewide as it is now doomed locally. Mayor Kelly, with the billions of federal money behind the Democratic party, with the added power of a friendly state's attorney, now of Kelly's picking; with a 500,000 vote edge possessed by Cook county over the 101 downstate counties, instead of a former vote equality, will smash the Republican party to pieces, ably aided by the C. I. O., the P. A. C., and the immense colored vote, which, formerly Republican, is now about 80 per cent Democratic.

WISCONSIN'S SQUASH-PUMPKIN.

Delavan, Wis., Dec. 4.—I have read with interest your editorial on pumpkin pie and the letter of J. W. Donnelly of St. Joseph, Mich., who thinks you don't know much about "punkin pie." Anybody who would have you cook pumpkin "not less than 10 hours . . . adding more pumpkin until the amount is about 10 per cent of the quantity started with" as Mr. Donnelly suggests, knows much less. Let him try it once and see what will happen if no water is added.

Here in Wisconsin we have developed a wonderful pie pumpkin, a cross between a squash and a pumpkin which attains a size of from 60 to 100 pounds and has the hard shell and sweetness of the squash and the luscious pie pumpkin flavor.

After boiling from 15 minutes to half an hour and adding milk and eggs, a little nutmeg and allspice and just a bit of sugar, you will have the makings of as fine a pumpkin pie as any Chicago editorial writer, let alone a Lordsbury, N. M., or St. Joseph, Mich., citizen will care to eat.

ALEX SMALL ON INDIA.

INDIA, Nov. 24.—Congratulations to your Mr. Alex Small for his honest and revealing picture of war time India, shown so boldly in his articles. Since we are [perhaps wisely] forbidden to write home about India's political, economic, and social conditions, as we see them, it is gratifying to find Mr. Small so freely articulate.

Many others like myself are eagerly awaiting the last two instalments—which I might add come to us thru one of your subscribers.

SOLDIERS SAY FOREIGN WIVES BEST.

FRANCE, Nov. 6.—For quite some time we have been reading in old copies of newspapers and periodicals the complaint of the American girls that a lot of G. I.'s are marrying foreign girls, i. e., Icelandic, English, Irish, Scotch, Australian, and others.

From our experience and observations, we find the foreign girl is more the home type, who is content to stay at home at least several nights a week. After all, when a fellow does get married, one of the reasons is that he wants a home. Foreign girls are definitely better cooks and housekeepers and really appreciate little attentions which the majority of American girls take for granted. Then, unlike a lot of American girls, foreign girls don't think only of the amount of money a fellow has. They aren't as grasping and demanding for luxuries, which practically are a must for American marriages. They are content to work and share their lot with the partners they have chosen, and we haven't as yet seen one case of an alliance overseas that has gone on the rocks. Keeping up with the Joneses is practically eliminated.

Automobiles and fur coats aren't necessities when courting a foreign girl, who is just as content with taking a walk as she would be going to a fashionable night club. Over here the man with the money definitely is not the best.

Foreign girls are as modern as any American girl, but are not as demonstrative in displaying their emotions, nor do they go into any ecstatic state when they hear some banana-muscled crooner like Sinatra vibrate his tonsils. Naturally they like the idea of going back to America. Who wouldn't? We would. The majority of the men in our outfit have been overseas from two and one-half to three years, in Iceland, England, Scotland, and Ireland, and now in combat in France.

A great many of us had wives and sweethearts who vowed faithfully when we left for overseas duty to wait for our return. Then, after a time, letters started coming advising that divorce proceedings had been instituted and sweethearts couldn't wait for the romance that they felt they were cheated out of by the war so they had taken up with those rugged 4-Fs and U. S. O. Rangers.

These are only a few of the reasons. We think there will be a lot of old maids who gave their word that they would wait, and sent their sweethearts off to the war with the determination to give the enemy hell and get back as quickly as possible. But they couldn't or wouldn't wait, so what could we do? We did, some of us, and are happy.

You may get some lovely answers to this, but we can take it. We have for quite some time.

SAVED HER HUSBAND.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—On Nov. 22, around noon, on Adams street west of State street, my husband was suddenly stricken. Not able to breathe, he sat on one of the city refuse boxes to rest. While I hurried to the drug store for help, hundreds of people passed him by without offering him the slightest aid, except one man who went into a near-by store and brought him a stimulant and hot water, called a taxi, and assisted me in getting him into it.

I want to express my deep appreciation and gratitude to this unknown stranger who helped and to the very kind taxi driver whose name or number I do not know, without whose aid I never could have gotten my husband to a hospital, where they gave him oxygen and other medicine which saved his life. In this case minutes meant either life or death, and it is certainly good to know that there are a few kind and considerate people left in this world.

Mrs. H. C. Pagels.

FLOWERS IN HOSPITAL ROOMS.

Plainfield, Ill., Dec. 4.—Frequently working at a hospital, I have observed the great amount of time needed to care for flowers. Sick patients are much more important than sick flowers. All housewives realize that cut flowers need daily attention. Then, too, the hospitals are overcrowded, which leave little room for flowers. Dressers are very often needed for medication. One room I visited was so full of flowers there wasn't a spot to place a thermometer tray.

Won't relations and friends please give this some thought and consideration for an already overworked hospital staff? If you insist on flowers, please send them to the patient after he has returned home. May I suggest as war time gifts for sick folks: Personal letters, books, stationery, postal cards, stamps, playing cards, fountain pens, pajamas, slippers, robes, handkerchiefs, gowns, bed jackets, etc.

KELLY, COURTNEY, AND THE TRIBUNE.

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 28.—I have been a reader and admirer of The Tribune ever since I have been able to read. I have lived for over 50 years in Lake county and have held responsible positions here, and I am still an admirer and reader of The Tribune.

I noticed the anonymous letters you published recently, castigating you for your stand in the recent campaign. I admire you for this. I admired the campaign you carried against vicious elements in our country, but there are one or two matters to which I would like to call your attention, and I am sure you cannot complain.

All of the time that you were campaigning against the administration at Washington and the New Deal crackpots, you were assisting in palming off on the people of Chicago and Cook county a political racketeer by the name of Edward J. Kelly, who has had no equal in this country since the days of Boss Tweed. In addition to him you have also tried to pass off on the people as a statesman a stuffed shirt by the name of Thomas J. Courtney, and now the chickens are coming home to roost. So while I praise you, I wish you would in the future be a little more consistent.

It seems to me that you should start now to help defeat this Kelly-Nash-Courtney combination in Cook county and I don't mean that you can do it with lollypops, but you will have to get in there and fight with brass knuckles.

ROADS TO THE LOST ATLANTIS?

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Professionally I am a deep sea diver, and again that adventurous urge has crept under my skin. After examining several nautical charts, I ran across a site far down the coast of Central America worth exploring, that very same area which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew over and obtained his sensational and startling photographs of the Mayan ruins. Here, emanating from these lost cities, a road paved with hand-paved stones leads directly into the sea. And some 60 miles or so away there is another such road paved with similar stones which again leads directly out to sea.

Why do these ancient roads lead into the sea where the nautical charts show a depth range of 50 to 60 fathoms of water? And where do they lead to? What ancient cities, now dead for so many centuries, existed and rest submerged between and beyond these roads fathoms beneath the sea? I'd like to find out, when this war's over.

Lt. J. Rogers.

JOYFUL SURPRISE.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—I wish to express my sincere thanks for the splendid picture of my son, Raymond L. White, U. S. M. C., that appeared in The Tribune Nov. 27. The picture was the one of the marine veterans of Saipan and Tinian. To be reading the paper and see my own son's picture brought tears of joy to my eyes.

E. D. A. writes: "My application for a commission in the army medical corps has been returned marked 'quota filled.' I am over 38 now and wonder if doctors over 38 are still subject to being called for service?"

The selective service regulations were amended quite a long time ago to permit the calling of doctors in any age group merely by authority of executive order when and if they are needed. The navy currently has great need of at least 2,000 doctors up to the age of 60, and it is understood the necessary orders will be issued shortly to call the needed number of doctors from areas where there is a surplus, such as Cook county and Chicago where there is known to be one doctor for every 500 or 600 persons in contrast to the national average of one for every 12 to 14 hundred persons. The doctors known to be in "surplus" now have a limited time in which to tender applications for commissions in the navy medical corps, after which they will simply be called and put into service in an enlisted status.

T. T. I. writes: "I have qualified for both the combat and expert infantry man badge. Will I receive an additional $10 pay for each one?"

PLANS IN MAKING FOR SECTIONS OF CANAL HIGHWAY

County Proposes Paving of One Stretch.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

Impressed with the merits of the proposed super-highway along the Illinois and Michigan canal to connect with Chicago airport and U. S. route 66, county highway officials for several years have had detailed plans well along toward completion for part of the route.

The Cook county highway department, headed by Supt. George A. Quinlan, recently recommended that $402,000 be spent to pave 2.2 miles of the canal from Cicero to Kedzie avs. For that stretch, his plans are 50 per cent complete and have been studied by the Chicago plan commission, which has blueprinted the canal as a future super-highway.

Quinlan and his engineers said the county would be glad to cooperate with a program to push completion of the canal expressway, as proposed by Gov. Green with the approval of local officials and civic leaders.

Smith Praises Project.

"I don't know of any highway project that would be of more help to a larger number of people," said Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board. "The job could be finished early and it looks like a good place to give top priority. A canal expressway would serve the airport and be an outlet into most of the suburban country. Both are important."

The county plans were to construct parallel two-lane roadways on the banks of the canal, which hasn't been used for years. The driveways easily could be widened for three lanes or more if all or most of the ditch be filled in. Quinlan's men had planned to leave it at least partially open, since the canal was technically a navigable stream. Legislation is before congress, having passed the house under the sponsorship of Rep. Sabath [D., Chicago], to declare the canal nonnavigable within Cook county.

The county's $402,000 cost figure for 2.2 miles was evidence that a canal super-highway would be comparatively simple to build. Estimates are several times higher for expressways in other parts of the city where it would be necessary to demolish buildings and change grade levels.

City officials have proposed that the canal property be converted into a roadbed for several blocks past Western av., and some have held that the route can be followed all the way to its connection with the Chicago river at Ashland av. Those details are included in the scope of the survey being made for Gov. Green.

Quinlan's program includes another major unit for the canal super-highway—a $700,000 improvement in Summit where the route could be connected with U. S. 66, the Joliet road route to Springfield and St. Louis.

Some Favor Longer Route.

Robert Kingery, general manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association, advocates that the super-highway leave the canal at Summit. Elsewhere there is agitation to have it extend down stream to Joliet, and even as far as its terminal in Peru.

Daniel Ryan, chairman of the county board's finance committee and former highway chairman, praised the long range program laid out by Quinlan's department. It has mapped a system of expressways thru the suburbs designed to handle the heavy traffic expected when manufacture of improved automobiles is started after the war.

JAIL ACCUSED EMBEZZLER WHO FAKED HIS DEATH

Herman von Brandenburg, 47, of Dundee and Elgin, was in jail last night in Trenton, N. J., in default of $10,000 bond on a charge of embezzling $11,000 from the Peifer Electrical company there. Brandenburg had been in the company's employ two years under the name of Harry Brunner until last Aug. 5 when he left on his vacation. A few days later the company received a telegram stating he had been killed in a Chicago automobile accident. A routine audit disclosed a shortage first of $8,000, then $11,000.

Investigation showed that Brandenburg still was alive, posing as a navy lieutenant commander. He told his wife, Mrs. Barbara Rowe Brandenburg of Dundee, that he had been in the navy, and on his last visit, in early November, he thrilled Dundee and Elgin folk with a first hand account of the battle of Cherbourg.

On the strength of the imposture, the federal bureau of investigation was called in and its agents arrested Brandenburg in Providence, R. I., but the government declined to prosecute on the ground that the uniform Brandenburg had worn was an old naval reserve type and that there is no federal statute covering unauthorized wearing of it. Brandenburg was surrendered to Trenton authorities.

Stole to Give Raises

[Acme Telephoto.]

Mrs. Madeline Dunnigan, Brooklyn bookkeeper, in court after arraignment.

New York, Dec. 9 [Special].—Blonde Mrs. Madeline Dunnigan, the $40 a week Brooklyn bookkeeper who handed out raises to her co-workers without bothering to tell the boss, said today that she had the boss' interests at heart all the time.

"The people would have left their jobs if they didn't get more money," Mrs. Dunnigan explained as she was held for the grand jury in $2,000 bail by Magistrate Matthew J. Diserio in Felony court.

She was charged specifically with the theft of $800 from her emplyer, Oscar H. Gropper, owner of a luggage shop on Fifth av., but she has admitted peculations running to between $30,000 and $40,000 in the last 11 months.

Her composure broke when her husband, Joseph, a navy yard worker, stepped forward to arrange bail, but she quickly recovered and the Dunnigans left arm in arm.

1,000 U. S. DRAFT DODGERS BASK IN SUN OF MEXICO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—At least 1,000 draft dodgers from the United States, perhaps as many as 3,000 are basking in sunny Mexico, the federal bureau of investigation reported today.

They can laugh and play all day, gorge on tamales, strum guitars, and enjoy continuous entertainment from Mexican jumping beans. Here is what the department of justice adds:

Most of them are Mexican citizens, subject to the American draft because they were in the United States when the draft law was passed, some are men of dual citizenship because they were born in the United States of Mexican parents, and a few are Americans. And none of them, under penalty of arrest, can ever come back to the land of the big dough and bathtubs for which most of them were willing at one time to trade the romance they had south of the border, down Mexico way.

GLASS PARTITION BARS FLYER FROM STRICKEN BABY

A young father who had never seen his 5 month old son until yesterday stands for 20 minutes a day and looks at the sick baby thru a glass partition in the municipal contagious hospital. The father is Lt. Robert G. Straley, pilot of a Liberator bomber in the South Pacific, and the baby is his son, Robert, a victim of spinal meningitis.

Lt. Straley is home on emergency leave after completing a year's service and 35 bombing missions over Japanese held territory. He was stationed in the Marshalls and on Saipan, where he won the air medal with four oak leaf clusters and the distinguished flying cross with one oak leaf cluster. Yesterday, however, he was just a worried father seeking assurance from the doctors. Yesterday the baby was slightly improved, but doctors would not predict a recovery.

When his leave is up Lt. Straley will go to San Diego, Cal., for a month's specialized training before being sent overseas again. He is staying at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wiener, 3305 W. 61st st.

'THE CORK' BOBS UP TWICE IN DAY IN U. S. INQUIRIES

Linked to WMCA Sale; Defended by Biddle.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9. — Thomas G. [Tommy the Cork] Corcoran, a central figure in the justice department feud that impelled President Roosevelt to fire Asst. Atty. Gen. Norman M. Littell, bobbed up today in two congressional investigations.

The house committee investigating the sale of the New York radio station WMCA to a former aid of Harry Hopkins subpenaed Corcoran as a witness to testify at a hearing next week. Chairman Lea [D., Cal.] also reported the committee has obtained Corcoran's income tax records for study.

The senate immigration committee heard testimony regarding the justice department feud from Atty. Gen. Biddle, who denied he had been influenced by Corcoran in the conduct of department of justice cases, but defended Corcoran as "an honest man" and "a friend of mine."

Coercion Charged.

Lea's committee has been inquiring into accusations that Donald Flamm was coerced in 1940 into selling WMCA to Edward J. Noble, former undersecretary of commerce to Hopkins and present chairman of the Blue network. The committee recently heard testimony that the federal communications commission was told by the White House to "forget" an investigation FCC had begun into the sale.

Rep. Wigglesworth [R., Mass.] demanded in a house speech to know whether or not the committee had been gagged by the New Deal to protect New Deal "sacred cows." In the same speech, Wigglesworth mentioned Corcoran and asked whether Corcoran had helped force the station's sale.

Wigglesworth's speech was occasioned by the losing fight he and Lea made to continue public hearings of the case. Secret hearings were decreed for the rest of the inquiry when Wigglesworth and Lea were out voted by the other committee members, a lame duck Republican, Rep. Miller [Mo.] and two Democrats, Rep. Hart [N. J.] and Priest [Tenn.].

Query to Be in Secret.

Corcoran will therefore be questioned with the press and the public barred. Lea said the income tax records obtained include the year of the station sale.

Corcoran, a lawyer and former White House adviser, had been out of the capital limelight until the Littell-Biddle feud became public and Littell accused Biddle of trying to settle one of the justice department's major suits out of friendship for Corcoran, whom Littell said was associated with the opposing lawyers.

President Roosevelt fired Littell and Washington has been rocking ever since.

Turn Fire on Hopkins.

Meanwhile Democratic senators opened fire on Hopkins, accusing him of dictating the current reorganization of the state department.

Biddle confirmed Littell's assertions about Biddle's friendship with Corcoran today when the senate immigration committee was considering the nomination of one of Biddle's assistants, Ugo Carusi, for commissioner of immigration. The committee will act on Carusi next week.

Biddle spent most of his time testifying about the Littell feud, denying it resulted from Littell's testimony before congressional committees against projects Biddle favored.

Knox "Deeply Hurt."

Biddle testified that Littell "deeply hurt" the late Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox by branding Knox's Elk Hills naval oil reserve contract with the Standard Oil company of California "another Teapot Dome." Biddle said he told Littell the charge "points corruption" at Knox.

Questioned by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.], Biddle said today:

"I feel very keenly these stories about the 'Corcoran influence.' Corcoran's a completely honest man. He's a friend of mine. If that admission is discreditable to me, I stand by it."

In New York, Littell said in a statement:

"The attorney general's smoke-screen attack on a former subordinate whose integrity has never been questioned, except by Corcoran or Biddle, is another gross misrepresentation to a congressional committee, of which several are now a matter of record.

"I stated facts—names, places, dates—in serious charges against an attorney general. Why does he not reply in kind, instead of repeating idle gossip?

"I expected the attorney general to crawl out on the limb where his statements now place him. I shall saw that limb off behind him in another statement which I shall issue in the next day or so."

SHELLS WORTH MOST NOW, CAPTAIN TELLS WAR PLANT WORKERS

The message that heavy artillery shells delivered to the guns this month are worth five times as much as they will be next May is being delivered to war plant workers by five soldiers sent from the European front as representatives of Gen. Eisenhower. With them on some of their factory trips is Capt. Robert Olson of Alton, Ill., who was in the South Pacific 28 months.

Capt. Olson spoke to workers in the Batavia Metal Products plant in Batavia and told them that the eight inch shell they are making is "a remarkable piece of ammunition," which can be fused to explode on impact, in the air or after burying itself in the ground.

"One battalion can fire more eight inch shells in one day than this plant is making in one day at its present rate," he said. "One hundred thousand shell in December are worth more to us than five times that number next May."

RED SCIENTISTS FIND IRON AIDS IN CANCER STUDY

MOSCOW, Dec. 9 (AP).—Soviet scientists said today that use of iron compounds in the treatment of cancer has reached an advanced stage of research. The late Prof. M. Magat of the Kiev Radium institute is credited with beginning the study by testing complex compounds of iron and tartaric acid on mice and guinea pigs.

Magat lost his life during the German invasion, but his monograph was hidden just before Kiev was captured. It indicated that in mice artificially afflicted with cancer his preparation had resulted in complete disappearance of swellings in 37 per cent of the cases and continued unchecked in only 16 per cent.

Another Kiev institute professor, B. Goldstein, is carrying on the work. He reported his experiments had succeeded in introducing iron compounds into the diseased tissues to evoke oxidation.

Not Used on Humans.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, THE TRIBUNE'S health editor, said various researchers have used iron compounds experimentally. He added that there is no report, even in connection with the latest experiments in Russia, of the use of such compounds on humans.

U. S. SEEKS 800 ILLINOIS NURSES FOR ARMY DUTY

Fighters' Lives Depend Upon More Aid.

American soldiers and sailors may pay with their lives if additional nurses are not soon recruited for the army and navy, it was reported yesterday by high ranking medical officers. They said the need is critical and urged qualified nurses to alleviate the shortage by communicating with recruiting officers of the army and navy nurse corps immediately.

The shortage of nurses was revealed at a press conference called by the Illinois State Nurses' association.

"Most Desperate" Need.

The need for nurses for the army nurse corps was termed "most desperate," and the surgeon general has issued a call for 10,000 additional nurses to be recruited as soon as possible. The 6th service command seeks to recruit 2,000 nurses, while Illinois needs approximately 800.

Col. Don G. Hilldrup, chief of surgeons of the 6th service command headquarters, said: "We would hate to feel that any of our injured boys overseas have died because one nurse had more patients than she could care for adequately. That, however, is what well may happen if we don't get the necessary recruits. American men may die unnecessarily."

In a ward of one 6th service command hospital, one 23 year old Chicago nurse is caring for 40 soldiers who were wounded on D-day in Normandy, it was revealed at the conference. She stayed on duty until each of the men had been properly cared for and worked long, hard hours before assistance could be obtained for her.

Needed for "Push."

At the present time, army representatives said, there is an average of one nurse for every 20 patients. Until recent months, many patients in army hospitals were ambulatory, but a 300 per cent increase in the number of patients evacuated from overseas has made 75 per cent of them bed patients.

Altho the navy now has a sufficient number of nurses for its hospital patients, officers reported that there is a need for additional recruits so that the service will have at hand a sufficient number of navy nurses when the anticipated spring push begins. Comdr. Mary D. Towse, representing the navy nurse corps in the 9th naval district, said 4,000 nurses are needed.

Generous allowance for continuing their education, as well as other services, is provided veteran nurses of this war under the G. I. bill of rights. Most hospitals after the last war added 10 per cent to the grade on tests of any war veteran nurse.

Application to join the army or navy nurse corps should be made either at local Red Cross recruitment committee headquarters or to the surgeon general of either service, in Washington, D. C.

Donald Ryan, 22, who survived the sinking of the aircraft carrier Gambier Bay off Leyte gulf Oct. 25, is spending his first leave after more than four years in the navy at the home of his sister, Mrs. Irene Linklater, 12113 Perry av.

"We were in the water 41½ hours before our rescue was effected by an LCI [landing craft, infantry]," Ryan said yesterday. He clung to a plank which had been blown off the flight deck of the carrier.

A baker 3d class, Ryan has seen seven major naval engagements and was attached to another ship, the cruiser Chicago, when it was sunk Jan. 29, 1943. On that occasion he was rescued by a destroyer after being in the water only 25 minutes.

YULE BASKETS FOR NEEDY WILL BE POINT FREE

Chicago's needy will have Christmas baskets as usual this year—and point free—despite office of price administration regulations which call for ration points on some foods even if given in Christmas baskets.

"Our poor people don't want to give up points that mean so much for them," said Huldah Smith, commander of the Chicago Volunteers of America. "If you have to give something to receive a basket it isn't really a present."

The baskets will contain nonrationed foods: chicken, bread, coffee, cake, milk, potatoes, onions, fresh fruits, and vegetables. Funds are furnished by Santa's Helpers, now on loop streets with chimney boxes. Year round work for needy children is also supported by the group.

AVOID PHONING DOCTOR ABOUT TRIVIAL ILLS

BY GAIL COMPTON.

"Well, doctor, it was last Wednesday, I think, that I first started to get these dizzy spells. At bridge club when I leaned over to pick up a card everything got dark and the room whirled around and——."

The average physician spends about an hour and half a day listening to patients tediously explaining their symptoms over the telephone—an hour and a half wasted while his waiting room is jammed with patients needing treatment.

Acute in Rural Areas.

Such patients were mentioned yesterday by Dr. Harold M. Camp, secretary of the Illinois State Medical society, in an appeal to all civilians to conserve the time of their physicians while there is a critical war time shortage of trained medical aid.

Dr. Camp disclosed the physician shortage is most acute in the rural areas. In Calhoun county, for example, there are only two to treat the illnesses of 8,206 residents, Dr. Camp pointed out.

In one Illinois town a physician, 89, with a glass eye, went back to work. A Cook county physician came out of retirement to serve a small southern Illinois town where the only doctor had been drafted.

Advises Knowing First Aid.

Because of the shortage of physicians, Dr. Camp said it is necessary that every one know something of first aid and home nursing.

The society has prepared a set of easily understood instructions on how to handle an injured person in an emergency. The articles may be obtained free by sending a request to Educational Committee, Illinois State Medical society, 30 N. Michigan av., Chicago. A self-addressed and stamped envelope should accompany each request.

Dice Players Find Place Loaded with Policemen

FUND WORKERS HOPE TO REACH GOAL BY FRIDAY

Clarence B. Randall, general chairman of the Community and War Fund campaign, said yesterday that leaders of the drive expect a report of 100 per cent of the goal of $12,980,000 at the final report meeting Friday in the Stevens hotel.

The fund is several hundred thousands dollars from its goal, Randall said, but its 92,000 volunteer workers already have raised more money than has ever been subscribed in a charitable undertaking in Chicago.

Leaders of the drive have inaugurated a mail-in campaign, requesting Chicagoans who have been missed by solicitors to mail their contributions to the fund's headquarters at 11 W. Washington st.

TALKING FREES PENT UP MIND OF RETURNING G. I.

De Paul Test Also Calls for a Good Listener.

Heart to heart talks with returning war veterans who seek vocational guidance are proving more important than intelligence and personality tests at De Paul university, the Rev. Joseph G. Phoenix, C. M., chairman of the school's department of education, told the Chicago Society of Catholic Psychologists who met in Loyola university's downtown building, 28 N. Franklin st., yesterday.

In explaining the testing program which he has worked out to help World War II. veterans, who have enrolled at De Paul under the G. I. bill of rights, Father Phoenix asserted that the confidential talks are of more value if the psychologists are content to do most of the listening.

No "Cases" at De Paul.

"We have found that most of the boys are anxious to talk, not about the war or their experiences but about their hopes, ambitions, interests, prospects, and their families," Father Phoenix said. "The opportunity for a companionable, unhurried chat with a person for whose judgment the service man has regard and whose sole purpose is to help him, is of inestimable value. There are no 'cases' at De Paul—there are only men needing help."

The returning service man isn't quite certain what steps to take or in what direction to go, and it is to help him remove this uncertainty that a brief testing program should be set up, said Father Phoenix.

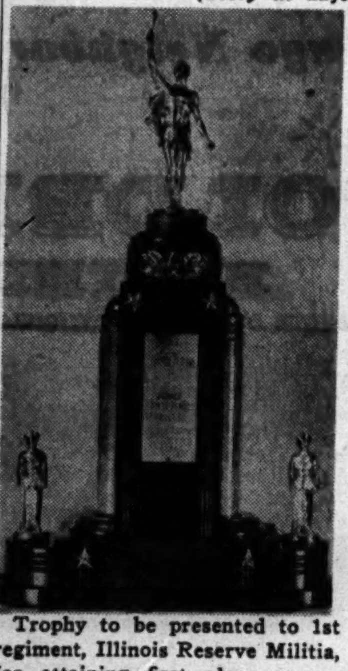
Other Tests Given.

Altho the heart to heart interview is of great help in guiding the veteran, intelligence and special tests also serve an important function, he said.

The intelligence test is included in the program because knowledge of a man's intelligence is a vital consideration in working out any plan designed to guide him, said Father Phoenix.

Tribune Trophies for Militia

(Story in adjoining column.)



Trophy to be presented to 1st regiment, Illinois Reserve Militia, for attaining first place among seven regiments in drill attendance.

Trophy to be given Company A, 1st regiment, for highest attendance within regiment.

MILITIA TROPHY CEREMONY SET FOR TOMORROW

The 1st infantry regiment, Illinois reserve militia, will receive the regimental drill attendance championship trophy tomorrow night in the Northwest armory, 1551 N. Kedzie av., from Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

The regiment, commanded by Col. George J. May, placed first in a six month state-wide drill attendance contest which ended Nov. 30. The contest was sponsored by THE TRIBUNE to stimulate enlistment in the reserve militia, and to increase attendance at drills.

The rifle company trophy, emblematic of the highest attendance at drills of any company in the regiment, will be presented by Col. McCormick to Company A of the 1st infantry. The presentation program will be held in connection with the 70th annual reunion and homecoming of the "Dandy First"—the 131st infantry regiment. Guests will include Gov. Green, Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, commanding general of the 6th service command, and Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, the state adjutant general.

Tuesday night a representative of THE TRIBUNE will present the rifle company award to Company A of the 3d regiment in Dixon, Lee county, which placed first in company attendance thruout the state, with a standing of 96.

YANKS' BALLOTS CAST ON NOV. 7 TOTAL 4,400,000

New York, Dec. 9 [Special].—A total soldier vote of about 4,400,000 in the Nov. 7 election was indicated by a tabulation completed here today. The figure is a projection of a survey of 30 states where tallies were kept of votes cast by members of the military services and is far in excess of pre-election estimates.

In seven states where separate canvasses of military and civilian voting were made, President Roosevelt received 59.3 per cent of the military vote and 51.5 per cent of the civilian vote. These states are Arkansas, Colorado, Maryland, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and Rhode Island.

New Jersey was the only state in which the outcome of the election was dependent on the military vote, the survey showed. The President won the state.

EMERGENCY PLAN DISCUSSED BY 400 MILITIA OFFICERS

Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, Illinois state adjutant general, author of the Illinois emergency and disaster plan, presided yesterday at a discussion of the plan's operation by 400 officers of the state reserve militia in the Northwest armory, 1551 N. Kedzie av.

Gen. L. M. Boyle.

The plan is designed to handle emergencies or disasters that might occur within the state.

The meeting, which was attended by Brig. Gen. William Gunther, chief of staff of the 6th service command, was held in connection with the second annual meeting of the Illinois Reserve Militia Officers association. Election of officers will conclude the two day meeting today.

NEW SCHOOL'S OPENING SET FOR TOMORROW

With a capacity of approximately 1,100 pupils, the new public elementary school at 41st st. and Michigan av. will open tomorrow, Don C. Rogers, assistant superintendent of schools, said last night.

The building formerly was occupied by the La Salle Extension university. It was purchased by the school board and reconverted to elementary school use by board architects.

"Actually, the school will serve nearly 2,000 pupils," said Rogers, "because it will permit five hour double shift classes for pupils who have been on four hour days in surrounding schools."

PLUNGES TO DEATH OFF PORCH.

Mrs. Lena Isaacson, 68, of 1131 Hyde Park blvd., plunged to her death yesterday from the second floor rear porch of her home. Police said she had been ill.

ORDER MOTHERS EXAMINED IN 2 NEGLECT CASES

Mrs. Frances Olzytski, 32, of 1421 Cleaver st., and Mrs. Constance Dziedzic, 18, of 1444 Cleaver st., wives of service men, accused of neglecting their children and spending their allotment money in taverns, were ordered examined by Dr. David Rotman, Municipal court psychiatrist, by Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Boys' court yesterday.

Mrs. Dziedzic was accused of neglecting her son, Albert, 2. Mrs. Olzytski was accused of neglecting two children, John Jr., 11, and Geraldine, 10.

Police last night held Mrs. Sylvia Wyrick, 20, of 1747 Barry av., who, they said, left three small children alone all night in an unheated apartment. Barbara, 10 months old, is in County hospital with severe frostbite. Two others, Donald, 2, and Lawrence, 3, were taken to the home of Mrs. Wyrick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Jones, 1720 Belmont av. Mrs. Wyrick's husband is in the navy.

PURSE SNATCHER'S LOOT TOTALS $190.

Mrs. Leiah Rex, 7253 Evans av., told police yesterday a Negro at 72d st. and Cottage Grove av. took her purse containing $65, two $25 war bonds, and $100 worth of postal money orders.

JEWS TO OPEN ANNUAL FEAST OF CHANUKAH

Gifts for Children Are Part of Celebration.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chanukah, the feast of lights, opens tonight thruout the Jewish community. It will continue eight days and recall the rededication of the temple of Jerusalem after it had been defiled by the Syrian Greek, Antiochus Epiphanes, who was defeated by Judas Maccabee [Judas the Hammerer] 165 years before the Christian era.

Chicago's most notable observance of the festival, often coincident with Christmas, will be held in the Stevens hotel Wednesday night under auspices of the Zionist organization of Chicago. It will be a $25 a plate event with proceeds from the sale of 1,500 plates allocated to educational and youth activities and to the enlargement of the Chicago forest in Palestine. The Chicago forest is now the largest in the Holy Land.

Moslem to Speak.

Dr. Syud Hossain, noted Moslem who has indorsed the founding of a Jewish commonwealth in Palestine, will be the guest speaker at the dinner.

The Chicago women's division of the American Jewish congress will hold its eighth annual Chanukah breakfast in the Hotel Sherman tomorrow at 10:30 a. m.

Gifts Are Exchanged.

In the Temple Sholom Bulletin, the festival is described as "one of the happy holidays of the year," which "carries with it all the beauty and interest that the holiday, Christmas, does for Christian children. The bulletin urged home observance of the feast.

"The festival spirit in the home, the daily lighting of the menorah [candelabrum], special holiday decorations of blue and white, are all a part of the scheme of Chanukah," the bulletin continued. "Gifts should be exchanged to celebrate the Maccabee's defense of the temple more than 2,000 years ago.

OPA Asks Gas Sales Ban on 3 Accused Violators

Suits asking that three filling stations in the Chicago area, accused of violating office of price administration regulations, be suspended from selling gasoline for the duration of rationing were filed by the OPA yesterday with John R. Allen, OPA hearing commissioner. They are the Sturges Pure Oil service station, 5847 Augusta blvd.; Perfect Power corporation, 1 Plumber av., Calumet City, and Barber service station, Sipley blvd., Calumet City.

Santa Claus came to the Hotel Sherman yesterday when 690 children were guests of the Junior Traffic club at its annual Christmas party. A huge Christmas tree where Santa passed out gifts was the center of attraction. Entertainment included dog and acrobatic acts. Among the guests were 30 boy orphans from the Angel Guardian German Catholic orphanage. More than 500 adults also attended the party.

Investigate Bomb Blast at Italian Recruit Office

ROME, Dec. 9 (AP).—Allied authorities are investigating a bomb explosion at an Italian recruiting station in Teramo the night of Nov. 29, the same night that manifestos appeared in the town urging youths not to enlist becasue the Italians are "a conquered and destroyed people." Two youths were taken into custody after the bombing, which smashed a wall of the station.

METAL GRINDER STOLEN.

Day time thieves who entered the garage of the Central Motor Sales company, 7615 Stony Island av., stole a metal grinder valued at $75. Alexander Banks, the owner, reported yesterday to police.

REBUILT MOTOR PRICE CAN GO UP $11, OPA DECIDES

Rae E. Walters, regional administrator of the office of price administration, said yesterday that an increase of $11 in the price of rebuilt motors had been granted to manufacturers in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Nebraska. This action would make the price to consumers range from $47.50 to $95, depending on make and model. Walters said the shortage of rebuilt motors had forced car owners to repair their engines by more expensive methods and had tied up their cars in busy garages for extended periods. Manufacturers must qualify for the increase by filing required information with the regional office in Chicago.

Motor truck operators will not be required to go to their local rationing boards for renewal of transport gasoline rations for the first quarter of 1945, Marion W. Isbell, Chicago metropolitan area director, said. He disclosed that boards would mail proper forms to all transport operators registered with the boards, which would mail back the forms when properly filled out. Previously operators had to submit in person their certificates of necessity to the boards.

Employers who plan to give turkeys to their employes and friends at Christmas were warned by Walters that they must pay no more than the processor or wholesale price. Grade A dressed turkeys are priced at 42½ cents a pound for the Chicago area. Sales by growers, processors, and wholesalers to commercial institutions at the retail price of 51 cents a pound is a violation of OPA regulations, Walters said.

4,500 Visit Safety Lanes After New Police Drive

A new police drive which left 203 motorists with summonses for failure to display safety stickers brought a rush of 4,500 automobiles and trucks to the city's safety testing lanes yesterday, said Edward J. Gorman, acting public vehicle commissioner. Since the first drive Nov. 30 more than 31,000 cars have been tested, Gorman said.

SOAPLESS SOAP TO KEEP RING FROM BATHTUB

Chemical Industry Has Other Surprises.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 9.—A cleasing agent developed for American fighting men to wash themselves and their clothes in sea water will be offered to the public after the war as a soap substitute which won't leave a ring in the bath tub. Without suds, it will also reduce rinsing requirements for dish and clothes washing and will function almost as well in cold as in hot water.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. here developed the ingredients for the synthetic detergent. It's a sulphonated compound now sold exclusively to the government under the unromantic name of MP476, a laboratory label. The cost, according to the company, can be competitive with that of soap.

It's American Free Enterprise.

This is but one of several new products developed by the chemical industry for the post-war market—demonstrations of ingenuity inspired by profit motive, the main spring of the American economic system of individual opportunities and liberties, which must succeed after the war to compete with a world-wide trend toward governmental absolutism.

As a result of this enterprise in war time, with private industry preparing for the post-war competition with other nations and other economic systems, housewives will find many other conveniences contributed by the chemists. DDT, the potent insecticide developed to combat the cooties of European trenches and the even more active pest life of the Pacific tropics, has been widely publicized but du Pont spokesmen warn that there is still much research to be done before the killer can safely be placed in the hands of the undisciplined civilian population.

Other Safe "Killers."

Research, however, has improvised foolproof forms for other killers of man's tiny enemies. There's an effective new mold abater that will prevent fungi from growing on fabrics and leather, destroying the material with white, green, or black parasitical growths. Our war against weather in the far Pacific inspired this innovation.

One mold abater is so innocuous to humans that it is being dusted as a white powder over loaves of bread after they are baked in the tropics. The chemists believe that it will prolong the palatability of bread in a peace time summer kitchen after the war. It's tasteless.

The chemical industry's preparations for the post-war era, to keep the wolf of unemployment away from our doors after Germany and Japan are defeated, also contemplate an expanded use for cellophane in moisture proof forms improvised for packages en route to overseas combat theaters. The manufacturers foresee two big fields for this transparent wrapper—for storage of foods in household deep freezers and for dispensing meats in the cafeteria style of so-called super-markets.

Housewives will enjoy new applications for nylon. They also will enjoy household applications for synthetic rubber. Other innovations by the chemical industry, while of benefit to all society by raising standards of living, are applied more directly to agriculture, to manufacturing, and to construction.

Junior Catholic Women Give Ball for U. S. Officers

Seventy-five members of the Junior Catholic Women's league entertained army and navy officers stationed in this area last night at a military ball given at the league's headquarters, 410 S. Michigan av. This was the fourth party of the year, the others being for enlisted personnel, Mrs. Edward Bourke, sponsor of the group, said.

Fight Over $62,000

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Helen Berg, one of Wetstone will contestants, and her attorney, James A. Dayton.

Hearing of the controversy over the $62,000 will of H. C. Berthold Wetstone, loop barber who died last January, was concluded yesterday by David J. A. Hayes, appointed special commissioner by Judge John F. O'Connell of the Probate court to investigate the case. Hayes heard seven friends of Wetstone testify the barber often had told them he had no relatives.

Wetstone's will, drawn in 1941, left $1,000 to a Masonic orphanage, $1,000 to a Pennsylvania friend, and $60,000 to Dr. Louis D. Moorhead, chairman of the medical board of the Chicago Catholic arch-diocese, former dean of the Loyola university school of medicine, and an old friend of the barber.

The will was contested by Mrs. Martha George, 70, of 3002 Davlin ct., who claims heirship as a second cousin; Mrs. Helen Berg, same address, who says she is a third cousin, and others. Hayes said he would report his findings to Judge O'Connell in 10 days.

OUSTED POLICE OFFICERS PUSH FIGHT IN COURT

Cases of several more of the seven Chicago police commanders who were dismissed by the city civil service commission last July 16 on charges they failed to suppress gambling were expected to reverberate this week in the Superior court of Judge Joseph A. Graber.

Judge Graber last week held Chairman Walter L. Gregory of the commission, and William F. Clarke, a member, guilty of contempt for signing false documents in connection with the appeal of Capt. Thomas Harrison for a review of his case.

Yesterday, Atty. Milton Gerber, representing Capt. Louis Klatzco, served notice that tomorrow he will ask a rule to show cause why Gregory and Clarke should not be held in contempt in Klatzco's case also. Lt. and Acting Capt. William J. Drury has asked a similar rule, and Judge Graber will hear his motion Tuesday. Similar actions by the other ousted captains are expected to follow. Judge Graber has granted Gregory and Clarke a stay of sentence until next Saturday.

PLENTY OF ROOM IN MIAMI—IF YOU HAVE THE PRICE!

BY MARTHA MURPHY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 9.—Service men and hotel men alike are burdened with housing troubles in this area as the Florida winter season opens. Miami Beach hotel men claim they can find few occupants for their rooms while service men know from footsore experience that they can find no accommodations for their families.

A mass meeting has been called by the Miami Beach Hotel Owners and Operators association to discuss means of filling their vacancies. Most of the hotels with empty rooms are the smaller beach hostelries which were returned to civilian use by the army air forces last summer. Hotel men estimate there are 7,000 more hotel rooms available on the beach this year than last.

Rates in these smaller hotels average $10 per day now with increases up to $15 per day after Jan. 1. The larger, ocean front hotels with present rates of about $20 to $28 per day and rates from Jan. 1 of between $27 and $37, have few rooms available now and almost none after Jan. 1. Miami hotels are well filled.

ODT Says Stay Home.

The office of defense transportation, however, continues to warn travelers to stay home. Train reservations have been sold out on both north and southbound trains 30 days in advance.

With January rent increases approaching, service men with families are growing more desperate. No houses or apartments are available in Miami. The Miami chamber of commerce housing bureau lists only a few rooms in outlying districts, none of which will take families with children. A few apartments may be had in Miami Beach at seasonal rentals ranging from $125 to $900 per month.

$200 a Month for One Room.

A lieutenant stationed at the naval training center in Miami has seen the rent on his one room "efficiency" apartment jump from $60 to $200 per month. An army officer assigned to the air force redistribution station on the beach was warned that the rate on his bedroom apartment would rise from $75 to $500.

The wife of a navy man just back from sea duty was evicted from her apartment when the landlord discovered she was expecting a baby.

The Miami Beach Service Men's Housing corporation, a nonprofit organization with a fund of $50,000 to be used in leveling off rents in line with the ability of service men to pay, has succeeded in securing only 145 apartments for service personnel since its incorporation Sept. 21. At least 500 more are needed to meet demands of the redistribution station men alone.

MRS. SIMMS HAS 2D GRANDCHILD; GAINS IN FIGHT

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, fighting for life in the Albert Merritt Billings hospital after an adbominal operation last Monday, became a grandmother a second time yesterday when her daughter, Mrs. Peter Miller of 219 Lake Shore dr., gave birth to a daughter in Wesley Memorial hospital. Dr. J. P. Greenhill of Winnetka was in attendance.

At Billings hospital, authorities said Mrs. Simms had gained strength for the third successive day and is much improved, tho her condition still is regarded as serious.

2 ILLINOIS NAVY OFFICERS DIE IN BOMBER CRASH

Lake City, Fla., Dec. 9 (AP).—The Lake City naval air station announced today that a land based navy bomber on a routine mission crashed near Lake Butler yesterday, killing the crew of four. The dead included Ensign John M. Archambeault, operational trainee, Joliet, Ill., and Ensign John L. Birong, operational trainee, Skokie, Ill.

John L. Birong.

FORMER AIRCRAFT WORKER.

Ensign Birong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Birong, 4827 Greenleaf st., Skokie, was born in Evanston and was graduated from the Niles Township High school in 1940. After working for the Douglas Aircraft corporation in Burbank, Cal., for a year, he enlisted as a navy air cadet. He won his wings at Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 10.

Ensign Archambeault was the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Archambeault, 1022 N. Raynor av., Joliet. He was graduated from Joliet-Catholic High school in 1938 and attended junior college there. He was awarded his wings last Oct. 12.

IT'S AN ORDEAL TO TELL 2 YANKS ABOUT SNOOKY

When Louis Blecke left his farm home near Addison, Du Page county, for the army four years ago, Snooky, a cocker spaniel, was disconsolate. For weeks the dog moped about the house. Louis' brother, Elvin, tried to revive Snooky's flagging spirits.

By the time the next hunting season rolled around, Elvin believed he had succeeded. Snooky accompanied him on daily hunts and she seemed happy again.

Then, two years after Louis had gone away, Elvin was inducted, and Snooky again was heartbroken. Louis, in a letter to his mother, Mrs. Lena Blecke, suggested letting Snooky accompany hunters on the farm. Yesterday Mrs. Blecke faced the ordeal of writing her sons that two hunters had taken the dog.

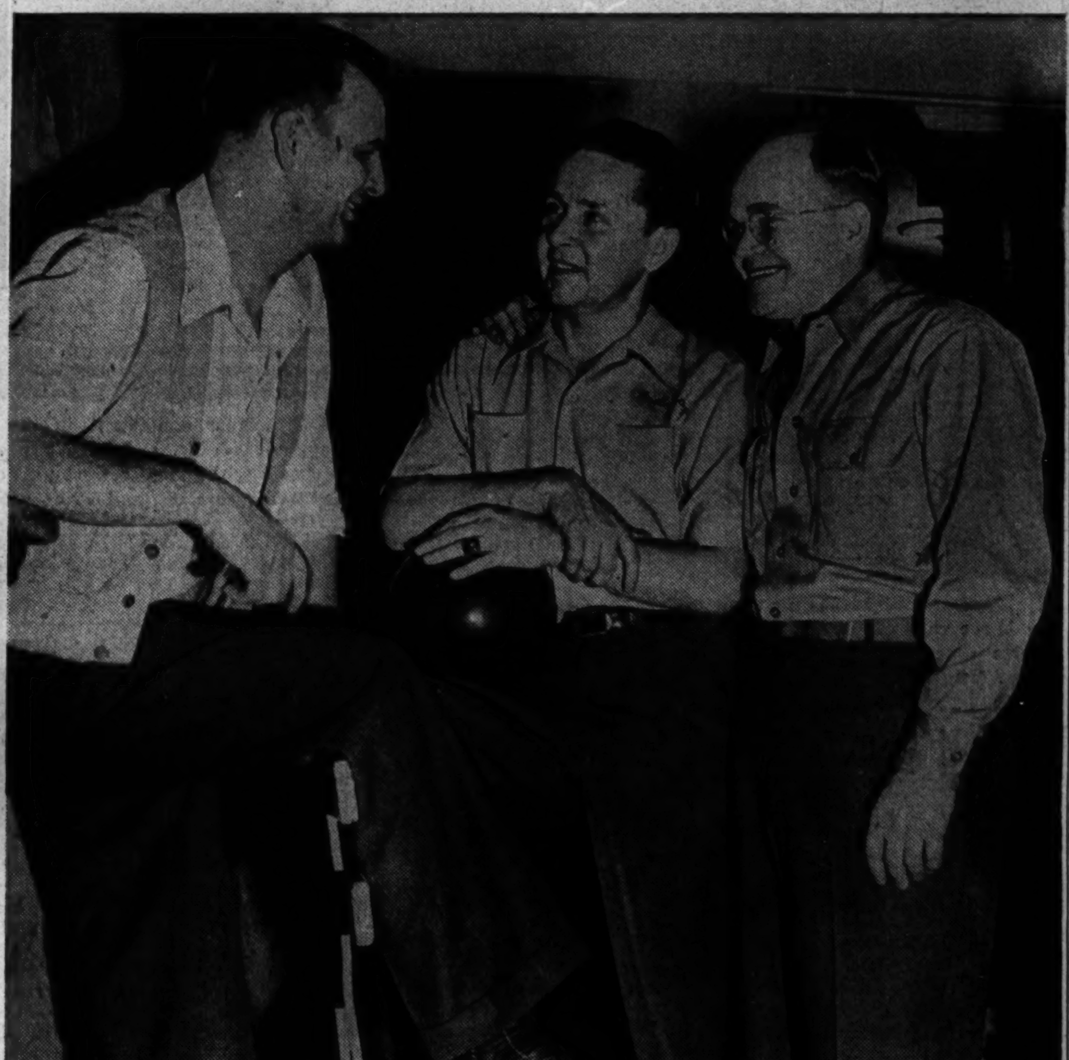
CROWN ALL-STAR TENPIN CHAMPION TONIGHT

ILLINI BEAT GREAT LAKES, 56-53; N. U. WHIPS DE PAUW

THEY ALL HAVE TITLE AMBITIONS IN BOWLING'S WORLD SERIES

Fred Bujack of Detroit (left) has his bowling ball fanned by Adam Plunge of Chicago after rolling a hot 279 game against Joe Sinke of Chicago in the All-Star bowling tournament on the alleys of the Auditorium service men's center yesterday. Bujack's 279 equaled the tournament record for a single game and kept him, along with Plunge, up among the tournament leaders going into the last day, today.



Joe Sinke of Chicago (left), Ned Day of West Allis, Wis. (center), and Pvt. Joe Wilman, former Chicagoan now stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., talk things over while awaiting their turns on the All-Star tournament alleys. Sinke repeatedly has forged into the tournament lead, and Day, who won the national match game title in this same event in 1943, is making a great effort to repeat. Wilman is among the leaders. HOWIE JUDSON PACES ILLINOIS TO 2D IN ROW

Wildcats Conquer Tigers, 56-43.

The University of Illinois basketball team has a 1.000 percentage against the Great Lakes Bluejackets in two games played on consecutive nights. The Illini went to the Naval Training center last night and humbled the Sailors, 56 to 53, in a second half rally. They had employed the same tactics in beating Great Lakes, 44 to 40, in the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Friday night the Illini were trailing by 19 to 16 at half time; last night they again were behind at the same stage, this time by 28 to 26.

Jim Ove, the Sailors' lanky center, had the satisfaction of winning game scoring honors. Jim piled up 17 points on eight baskets and a free throw, while Howie Judson was pacing the Illini on seven field goals and a point from the free throw line.

First Home Loss in Two Years.

It was Great Lakes' first setback on its home floor in two seasons.

Shortly after the second half opened, the teams were tied at 42-all. Paul Cloyd put the Sailors ahead with a hook shot, but the score was tied again when Johnny Orr of football fame took a long pass and dropped one thru the net without being molested.

Then the Illinois power began to pay off. Orr's basket gave the visitors the lead and they held it the rest of the way. With two minutes to play, Cloyd connected to narrow the winners' margin to 55 to 53, but Cloyd fouled Jake Staab and the latter sank a free throw to clinch matters just as the game ended. Lineups:

WILDCATS WIN OPENER

Max Morris and Frank Wright, both sophomores, paced Northwestern university's basketball team to a 56 to 43 victory over DePauw in the Evanston High school gymnasium last night in its season's opener. After a nip and tuck first period in which they held a 29 to 27 lead at half time, the Wildcats ran up a 10 point lead early in the second half to which they added in the closing minutes.

Morris led the Wildcats in scoring with 18 points on six field goals and six free throws. Wright scored 12 points for the Purple. hree of his six baskets came near the end of the game.

High scoring honors, however, went to Stan London, shifty DePauw forward, who scored 19 points on nine baskets and a free throw. Five of his goals came in the first period.

MICHIGAN WINS, 50-17

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 9 [Special]. —Michigan's basketball team ran up its fifth straight victory here tonight, defeating an inept Kellogg Air field [Battle Creek, Mich.] quintet, 50 to 17.

The Wolverines won as they pleased against the hapless Flyers, who could score only five field goals.

Coach Bennie Oosterbaan sent every man on the winning squad into the game but the Flyers could do no more against the substitutes than they did against the regulars.

Bob Geahan paced the Michigan attack with 11 points on five field goals and a free throw. Michigan will go to Kalamazoo for a return game with Western Michigan next

WISCONSIN AND IRISH QUINTETS SCORE VICTORIES

Madison, Wis., Dec. 9 [Special].—Ray Patterson scored 25 points tonight to pace the University of Wisconsin to a 45 to 40 victory over Marquette university before 10,000 fans.

The game was closely contested all the way, the Hilltoppers putting up a stiff defense in the first half and scoring nine of ten free tosses to stay in the game, 23 to 21. Patterson, aided by Don Rehfeldt, freshman center, went on a wild scoring spree in the first 10 minutes of the second half, racking up 19 points between them as the Badgers pulled away to an eight point lead. From there to the finish the Badgers were content to keep possession of the ball and coast in.

Rehfeldt played a fine game under the basket, getting numerous rebounds and scoring six baskets and two free tosses for 14 points. Gene Berce paced the losers with 10 points and Joe Evans and Bill Chandler had nine each.

The Irish first team ran up a 47 to 10 lead before being withdrawn from the game early in the second half. Coach Clem Crowe gave his entire squad a chance to play.

Notre Dame was led by Johnny Dee, who was high scorer with 15 points, and the all around brilliance of Guard Billy Hassett. Irish reserves finished the game with George Benigni and George Ratterman, both freshmen, starring. Jerry Evans, Miami freshman, was high man for the losers with 12 points.

7,000 Attend Opening of Horse Show

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Chicago's horse show, with all the pomp and glitter of the gay '90s, returned to the Coliseum last night after a lapse of 42 years. Its splendor was reminiscent of the days of John W. [Bet-a-Million] Gates, William H. and J. Hobart Moore, Sidney Love, Arthur Caton, and other immortals of Chicago's tanbark ring who participated in the last Coliseum show in 1902.

The crowd, fashionably attired and cognizant of the fine points of some 139 smartly trained horses and ponies, reached capacity by the time the opening event was trumpeted into the ring. The attendance was announced at 7,000 by Paul Butler, president of the Chicago Horse Show association.

World's Greatest.

The show, hailed as the world's greatest, drawing 435 entries from all parts of the nation, competing for $80,000 in war bonds, was highlighted on the opening program by a $1,000 stake event for single harness horses which went to Wensleydale Pilot, an aged gelding owned by the Hawthorn Farms of Libertyville. Its conformation, soundness, style, manners, and all around action impressed the judges to the point that one of the pre-show favorites, the Argyll Stable's Perfection, from Mount Carroll, was forced into second place.

While the harness exhibition, which drew seven entrants, was given top billing, the opening event for jumpers over the Oakbrook course stole the show as evidenced by the acclaim given Mr. Si Jayne's Hialeaha, a 7 year old gelding ridden by Mrs. Martha Jayne.

Twenty-eight Take Jumps.

Twenty-eight animals were taken over the jumps and three were returned to battle it out a second time for first prize after registering perfection on their first appearance. Second place went to Camalot, a big black gelding ridden by Cadet G. F. Gallagher Jr. of Culver Military academy. Third place was awarded Springfield, 25 year old gelding owned by C. G. Speidel of Chicago, and ridden by Ted Mohlman. Springfield was injured on his first appearance and was unable to enter the jump-off.

Matinee Today.

The show continues with a matinee at 2 o'clock today and a night program starting at 8 o'clock. It will continue thru the week, closing next Sunday night. Matinees also are slated for Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and next Sunday.

Flight Officer Gene Autrey, the singing cowboy, who was scheduled to appear at the opening with his trick horse, Champion, was unable to appear. His plane from California was grounded at Albuquerque, N. M. He was forced to resume his journey by train and is scheduled to appear at the show today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Tomorrow's the day of decision, maybe, in the eastern portion of the National Football league race, which started way back yonder on Sept. 17.

The simplest way to bring it to a finish would be for the New York Giants to take the top prize with a victory over the Redskins in Griffith stadium.

Eagles on Hot Spot.

At Philadelphia, the Eagles are experiencing nervous expectancy, somewhat frantic over the knowledge that a victory over the Cleveland Rams in Shibe park tomorrow will not guarantee them the eastern title. They need help in the form of a Washington victory or tie with New York.

Unless weather conditions interfere there will be capacity crowds in both cities, more than 40,000 at Philadelphia and the customary 35,540 in Washington.

New York by winning, will be the

MIAMI IS AWARDED FRANCHISE IN NEW ALL-AMERICA CONFERENCE

New York, Dec. 9 [Special]. —Miami, Fla., was admitted to the All-America Football conference as the eighth member and the application of Seattle, Wash., for a ninth franchise was taken under consideration today at the organization meeting of the new professional football league in the Biltmore hotel. Lt. Comdr. James Crowley, who recently was elected commissioner of the conference, presided for the first time, tho it will be necessary for him to turn over active direction of the league to some one else until he completes his service with the navy.

The Miami franchise was awarded to a group of business men in the Florida city, who were represented by Harvey Hester. The group includes members of the Orange Bowl committee which has given the holders of the new franchise an option on the use of the Orange Bowl for professional football. Doug Wycoff, former All-American full back at Georgia Tech, will be associated in the operation of the Miami club.

Tunney Buys N. Y. Franchise.

The application for the franchise to operate a club in Seattle was filed by William Cox but no definite action on this application will be taken until the next meeting of the league.

It was announced that Comdr. Gene Tunney, who originally was listed as one of the operators of a Baltimore club in the new league, will transfer his activities to New York. Ray Ryan, who held the New York franchise, has sold it at a profit to Tunney, after deciding that his extensive oil interests in Mississippi, Indiana, Texas, and Illinois would make it impossible for him to operate a football club also.

Baltimore to Change Hands.

This, of course, means that Tunney will have to dispose of his Baltimore franchise and he said that three business men in the Maryland city already are negotiating to take it over. They have asked that their identity be not revealed until the transfer is completed, which probably will be within two weeks.

In transferring the New York franchise to Tunney, Ryan said that he volunteered with it the contracts of players whom he already had signed. These include Glenn Dobbs, the sensational forward passer from the University of Tulsa; Bill Daley, who was an outstanding full back at Michigan and Minnesota, and a pair of regulars on the powerful Randolph field team of this season, Jack Russell and Morton Ruby. Russell was an All-Southwestern back at Baylor, while Ruby earned fame as a tackle at Texas A. & M. Tunney said he had an understanding with Ray Flaherty, former coach of the Washington Redskins.

Hope to Operate in 1945.

Arch Ward, sports editor of The Chicago Tribune and a leading figure in the organization of the league, turned over all correspondence incident to the organization of the conference to Crowley, with the statement that he felt he had completed his work for the league.

"My job is sports editor of The Chicago Tribune," Ward said. "I think there is room for two major football leagues and I was in a position, thru contacts, to bring substantial people together. I've done this and now I'm finished. I received no money for my part in this and did not even accept expenses."

The league hopes to operate in 1945 if the war in Europe has progressed satisfactorily enough to alleviate present transportation restrictions. As it now stands, it has members in Baltimore, Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago, Miami, New York, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. In every case the backers are wealthy individuals who are ready to back their clubs in major league style.

Set Player Limit.

It was agreed that the league shall have a player limit of 33 men with an over-all salary maximum of $70,000 a year per club. All players will be signed to yearly contracts.

The Chicago club was represented at the meeting by John L. Keeshin, president of the Keeshin Motor Express company, third largest motor freight haulage company in the country, and also head of the Sportsman's Park race track in the Chicago area. With him was Joseph Donovan, vice president and treasurer of the transfer company and an associate in the race track enterprise.

Farrington Given Post.

Tunney said that Lt. Comdr. Max Farrington, former athletic director at George Washington university, Washington, D. C., will be his business manager in New York. Both, of course, will have to wait until they complete their naval assignments before taking active part in the direction of the club.

Don Ameche, movie star and radio announcer, controls the Los Angeles franchise and Christy Walsh, formerly business agent for Babe Ruth, is his business manager. In San Francisco, the club will be owned by Arthur J. Morabito, president of the Lumber Terminal company, of that city, with Buck Shaw, former

As the fourth annual All-Star bowling tournament finals reached to within one squad of the three-quarter mark in the Auditorium service men's center last night, it was Buddy Bomar of Chicago, once a resident of Dallas, Tex., who led a closely packed field toward the finish line, which will be reached tonight. By virtue of winning nine of his 12 games thru the day's first three squads, Buddy owned a Petersen point total of 207.22, one point and 22 odd pins more than that of Pvt. Joe Wilman, Chicagoan stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Bomar, in the course of his day's activities, took four straight games from Connie Schwoegler of Madison, Wis., former champion, won three of four from Therman Gibson of Detroit, and broke even in a spirited contest with Chicago's Adam Plunge. It was a fitting celebration for Buddy, who was observing the first birthday anniversary of his son, Robert Bruce Bomar.

Pvt. Wilman Gains.

It was Bomar's match with Plunge, and the outcome of it, which enabled Wilman to gain on both. With Bomar leading and Plunge running second, they met on the third shift. Bomar won the first game, 217 to 211, lost the second, 166 to 156; won the third, 235 to 205, and dropped the final, 255 to 220. Meanwhile Pvt. Joe was making the most of his opportunity, or nearly the most of it, as he took youthful Rudy Pugel of Milwaukee for a three game ride and shot a nice 826 series in doing it. Previously he had taken three from Andy Varipapa, Hempstead, N. Y., and broke even in his match with Cleveland's Walter Ward.

As a result, Plunge dropped to third with a Petersen count of 205.37, while Joe Sinke, another Chicagoan, was in the fourth slot with a 202.22 rating. Ned Day, the former champion, from West Allis, Wis., was fifth with 201.02.

Kissoff, Ward Hit Stride.

Two of the boys whose performances to date in the tournament had been below their customary quality of work found themselves on the third squad and one, Joe Kissoff of Cleveland, was responsible for Sinke's drop in the standings. Kissoff turning in an 841 series, starting off with games of 242 and 227. Walter Ward of Cleveland was the other, he coming up with a great series too, another 841, which embraced games of 205, 221, 243 and 224, losing only the first to his opponent, Schwoegler. Day also gained a little ground on this shift, taking three from Nelson Burton of St. Louis, shooting four games all in the 190's and losing the last one to Burton's 222.

Today the last three rounds of regularly scheduled competition will take place, with the fourth set being a position round in which the rivals in each match will not be known until the completion of the third shift. Then the No. 1 man will face the No. 2 man, the No. 3 man will engage the No. 4 man and so down the line.

Bowling Showdown

The national match game bowling champion for 1944 will be determined on the alleys of the Auditorium service men's center, Congress st. and Wabash av., tonight, when the fourth annual All-Star tournament, sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, will be concluded.

Sixteen men out of the original field of 125, assembled from coast to coast for the opening of the tournament on Dec. 2, will compete in a round robin, man-to-man series on this, the final day. The first squad will bowl at 11:30 a. m. and the last at 9:50 p. m. Matinee tickets are honored from 11 a. m. until 5 p. m. and holders of tickets to the evening sessions are admitted from 5:50 p. m. until 11 p. m. Two thousand five hundred seats are available for each performance and the prices are:

VOTE THIS WEEK ON BIG NINE'S MOST VALUABLE

Winner Will Receive Tribune Trophy.

Honor Roll

PLAYERS selected by their teammates as candidates for the Chicago Tribune Silver football, which will go to the most valuable player to his team in the Western conference during the 1944 season, follow:

ILLINOIS—Claude [Buddy] Young, back.
PURDUE—Boris [Babe] Dimancheff, back.
MINNESOTA—John Lundquist, back.
WISCONSIN—Clarence Esser, tackle.
MICHIGAN—Don Lund, back.
INDIANA—John Tavener, center.
IOWA—Robert Snyder, center.
NORTHWESTERN—Max Morris, end.
OHIO STATE—Leslie Horvath, back.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The winner of the silver football, annually presented since 1924 by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to the most valuable player in the Western conference, probably will be announced next Sunday. This is the customary date and will be observed again this year if all ballots are tabulated by that time.

From 1924 to 1929, inclusive, all conference players were eligible for the award. Since 1930, however, the final selection has been made from a panel of most valuable players each chosen by his teammates. These nine men constitute the honor team of the conference.

Committee Votes on Players.

To select the most valuable of the group, votes are cast by the nine Western conference football coaches, nine veteran officials, Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, and the writer. Each elector votes for a first and second choice. These are scored 2 and 1 points, respectively, and the total determines the final standings.

Success of a team has no particular bearing on the final voting. Indeed, it has been 10 years—the selection of Pug Lund, Minnesota half back, in 1934—since the winner of the silver football played on the conference championship eleven. The only factors considered are the value of the recipient to his team and his qualities of leadership and sportsmanship.

Graham Won 1943 Trophy.

Otto Graham, Northwestern's triple threat back, won the 1943 award decisively. The Wildcats trailed Purdue and Michigan, co-champions of the conference, but the electors believed that without Graham Northwestern would have been mediocre. Graham also was a team player who gave his best performances under pressure.

All conference teams except Purdue has had players win the silver football and Cecil Isbell, the Boilermakers' great half back who now is head coach at his alma mater, failed by one point to tie Corby Davis of Indiana for the honor in 1937. In event of a tie, which never has occurred, duplicate awards will be made.

Grange Only Illinois Winner.

Indiana, Iowa, and Michigan have had three men judged most valuable in the conference in the 20 years of competition. Ohio State, Chicago, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Northwestern have had two each, while Red Grange of Illinois, 1924 most valuable player, is the only Illini ever named.

Graham and Joe Laws, Iowa's winner in 1933, are the only players on the list still actively engaged in the sport. Graham played this season for North Carolina Pre-flight and Laws continued to star with the Green Bay Packers, who this year won the championship of the western division of the National league. Several of those who entered coaching now are in service.

Each of the nine most valuable players chosen annually receives a miniature white gold football in mates.

87th St. Navy Plans Entry in Golden Gloves

Capt. William O. Gallery, commanding officer at the 87th St. Naval Training school, has approved plans to have members of his station compete in the annual Chicago Golden Gloves sectional boxing trials next February, it was announced last night by Lt. Gene Rankin, divisional officer at the south side school.

Lt. Rankin, who is assisting in the boxing program at the station and N. C. A. A. lightweight champion while at the University of Wisconsin in 1939, 1941, and 1942, said station trials for the tournament will be held Jan. 8, 10, and 12. Winners at the station will qualify for the Golden Gloves competition in the Open class, while runners-up and others will enter the novice division.

POST GRADUATE, REALIZATION WIN STARLET STAKES

Inglewood, Cal., Dec. 9 (AP).—Realization and Post Graduate were crowned the 2 year old co-champions of the Hollywood Park season with victories in the double feature $20,000 Starlet stakes today.

Racing a trifle wide, Northway stud's Realization was never far back and nosed out E. B. Johnston's War Allies for the winning position. C. S. Howard's Bismarck Sea was third. Post Graduate began slow in the second division but raced wide to beat out Sea Swallow by three-quarters of a length. A. Drumheller's Gold Bolt was third.

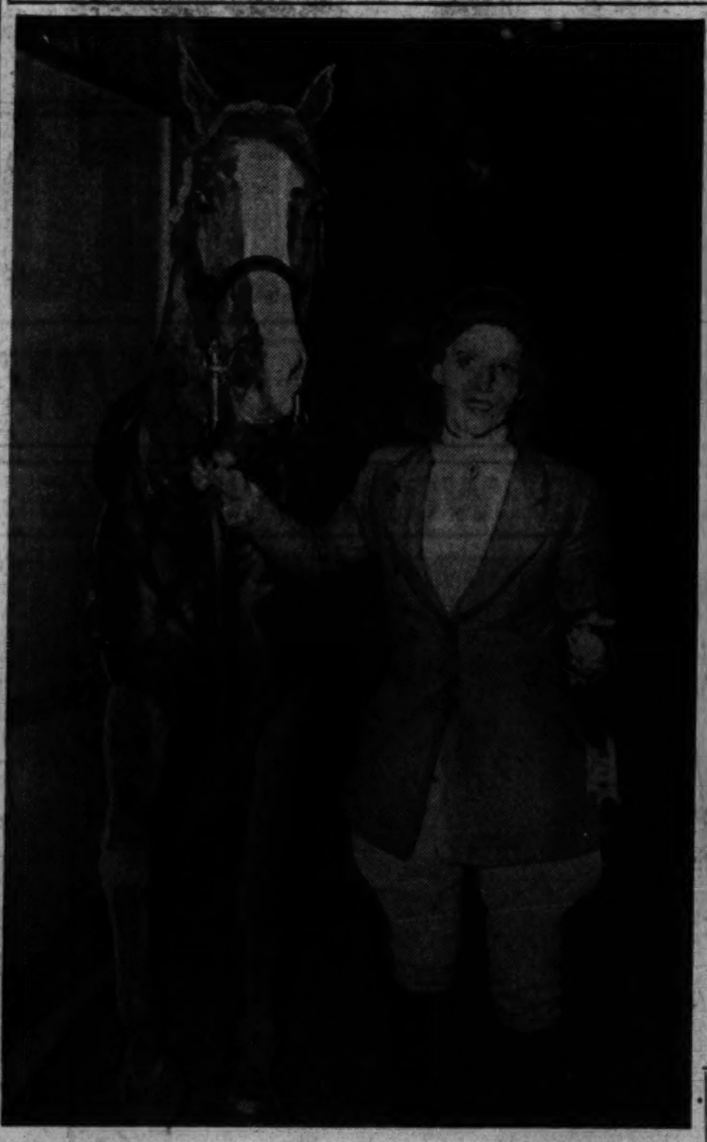
YOUTH AND EXPERIENCE AT HORSE SHOW



Martha Jayne leaves the show ring at the Coliseum with Hileaha, the horse with which she won first place in the jumpers' Oak brook course event in the opening session of Chicago Horse show last night. The horse is owned by Si Jayne of Elgin.

Youngest contestant in the show is Joan Light Callner, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Callner, 1525 N. Astor st. She is shown with Pandora, the 6 year old mare she rode in the three-gaited saddle horse class, and Trainer F. Reardon.

A.A.U. SUGGESTS FITNESS SET-UP FOR ALL PUPILS

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 9.(AP)—A seven-point physical fitness program was recommended to the national A. A. U. today by a committee headed by Avery Brundage of Chicago, after the delegates had voted approval of 37 national records and rejected 12 others.

Brundage's committee recommended that pupils in all schools get credit for health and physical education; that every child submit to an annual physical examination; that schools set aside at least one hour a day for physical education; that the program be for all and not for the athletically inclined only; that it be made attractive and not compulsory; that it be supported from the school budget, not gate receipts, and that facilities also be provided for older citizens.

The report won unanimous approval from the delegates.

Nine Records Rejected.

Nine of the records for which approval were sought were rejected because they already had been superseded, and the 1,000 yard free style swim mark of Ann Curtis, San Francisco, was turned down because it was not made in a race. The remaining two were turned back for further study of the timing.

The delegates inscribed Claude [Buddy] Young's name in the championship shield by passing without a dissenting vote the report of the track and field committee. Young, University of Illinois sprinter, won the 100 meter dash championship last summer in a race run after all six finalists had been disqualified for false starts.

Willard N. Griem of Denver was nominated for president in the annual caucas that is tantamount to election. He will succeed Di Benedetto, who has served for five years. The election will be held tomorrow.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY ROBERT BEACH.

THERE seems to be a wave of high bowling scores passing around Chicago. It was especially noticeable Monday night. On that evening the Thompson Restaurant team of the North End Traveling league went strike crazy in their match against the Keeleys at Kaadland and ran up the highest men's total in these United States to date this season. They shot a 3,432 score and Herbie Freitag led the way with a 742 series.

On the same night the girls who bowl for the Mario Restaurant again claimed attention and much more emphatically than they have done on several previous occasions this season. They shot what is, to a fair degree of accurate reckoning, the third highest total to be rolled by a women's team in the nation this season.

It was a 2,888 score, which many men's teams would be thankful for in any endless number of instances. They were bowling against the Double Colas in the Bowling Lanes ladies' major and, needless to say, they won three games, ending up with a margin of 160 over their rivals, who turned in a highly respectable 2,728. Here's how the Mario's scored:

Cecelia Winandy	193	211	193— 597
Lee Garrity	186	191	238— 615
Hank Wilman	163	181	174— 518
Irene Engel	184	219	192— 595
Lee Liepe	221	189	153— 563
Totals	947	991	950—2888

There's a little secret to the success of the Mario's however. It's their sponsor. Says Sponsor Mario, "I've always told 'em not to mind how they shoot; they know I'll sponsor them again next year and the next year and the next and the next."

National Tournament Notes.

One of the most talked of men in this year's tournament is youthful and lithe Johnny Supple, an army corporal stationed at Fort MacArthur, Cal. Johnny has one of those high powered balls which works well on almost any lane. Consequently he has experienced as little difficulty as any one entered in changing from one pair of alleys to the next. . . . Something always happens to Frank Benkovic of Milwaukee. This year it was a charley horse which caught up with him in the early stages of the eliminations and caused him no little trouble. He still did a lot of smart bowling, however. . . . It was Marvin Ashley of Los Angeles who had one of the most peculiar stances and pre-delivery styles of the tourney competitors. He faced the pins sideways, took a long look at the pins, stroked the ball with a caress or two, pulled his foot back and then walked slowly to the foul line. The effect is tremendous, it seems, for he had one of the sharpest breaking hooks seen on the Auditorium drives. . . .

Joe Sinke Makes Crowd Moan When He Misses Spare.

Joe Sinke had the crowd with him all the way, being a Chicago favorite. When he blew a five pin in the fourth block, the moan could be heard in Evanston. . . . Jack Ripple, the Bill Stern of the Auditorium, thought he was the victim of a practical joke, but he wasn't. He was handed a note to read over the loud speaker system announcing the stag party for the bowlers last Wednesday night. After stating that the bowlers would be guests of the tournament committee, some one nearby tugged at his sleeve. There was a hurried consultation, following which Jack came back to the microphone with "Footnote, fellows—it'll cost ya two bucks."

Miami Given Franchise in All-America

McBride Owns Cleveland Club.

Arthur McBride, owner of all the taxi companies in Cleveland, and Ray Miller, former mayor of that city, have the Cleveland franchise. Miller is an elder brother of Don Miller, famous as one of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen. The Buffalo interests are in the hands of James Brulle, president of the Frontier Oil company, and Sam Cordovano, former wrestler and Columbia university line coach under Lou Little. He now owns a Buffalo construction company and will coach the team.

Tunney had sole control of the Baltimore franchise until he made the shift to New York which was announced today. Mrs. Eleanor Gehrig, widow of Lou Gehrig, New York Yankees' iron man first baseman, had an interest with Ryan in the New York club.

The new conference also has solid foundations in the way of large stadiums which have been lined up as home fields for the various clubs. Among these are: New York, Triboro stadium, with a seating capacity of 23,000, which may be increased to 43,000; Buffalo, Municipal stadium, 54,000; Cleveland, Municipal stadium, 83,000; Baltimore, Municipal stadium, 63,000; San Francisco, Kezar stadium, 52,000; Miami, the Orange bowl, 38,000, with plans to boost it to 70,000, and Los Angeles, Wrigley field, 32,000, with a possibility of moving into the Coliseum, which seats 100,000.

FRICK, HARRIDGE, O'CONNOR DRAFT BASEBALL PLANS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 9.—Will Harridge, president of the American league, Ford Frick, president of the National league, and Leslie M. O'Connor, secretary to the commissioner thruout the 23 year term of the late K. M. Landis, got together this afternoon for the first time since the death of Landis last month in an effort to predict what will happen during the major league convention scheduled to open here Monday.

None of the aforesaid gents being a clairvoyant, mindreader or astrologer, the warmup getting gave no key as to what the moguls may be up to.

Neither Harridge nor Frick graced the minor league convention in Buffalo with his presence — the minors had been a bit uppish in their original planning of the Buffalo — so the meeting here today was No. 1 in the group taking over as successor to Commissioner Landis.

O'Connor Wants Commission.

Whether the members of the trio will have many huddles as the absolute tops in baseball officialdom is one of the things expected to smoke up much attention here. The betting is that the trio will so serve and Mr. O'Connor, if not the others, is on record as hoping there will be no new commissioner, whether or not he continues in baseball officialdom.

Here are Secretary O'Connor's words on the subject: "I hope the club owners ultimately decide upon a high commission rather than a high commissioner. The greatest possible monument to Judge Landis would be to have him go down in history as the only commissioner baseball ever had."

There are moguls, however, who are saying that Landis should be replaced by some prominent personage, to be selected at the earliest possible moment. Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, and always one of organized baseball's most active figures, winter and summer, is said to be among the leaders in the demand that the czar system be continued. It is expected that when the convention opens he will forward his ideas and, furthermore, will present a candidate, possibly with a Washington or world background.

Moguls Want Squirming Room.

There is a bloc which is said to be in favor of requesting the Harridge-Frick-O'Connor triumvirate to reign until the present major league agreement expires Jan. 12, 1946, thus giving opportunity to seek a successor to Landis and possibly to write baseball rules which will take some of the handcuffs out of the code under which Landis operated so effectively and so well. It is said the moguls don't want to apply any handcuffs to a new commissioner but would like to have a little squirming room for themselves — something they haven't had for the last 23 years.

As most of the important major league officials barged into town today — either from Buffalo or their home bases — there was a lot of gabbing about possible trades. Vice President Harry Grabiner arrived from Chicago this morning and forthwith held a conference with Manager Jim Dykes anent the swap market. The Sox still hope to do some trading with the Cleveland Indians, as per the propositions which Dykes discussed in Buffalo. Grabiner revealed he had been interested in Outfielder Jeff Heath, but added he didn't think the Sox could get him. Dykes had said in Buffalo that Heath's name had not been mentioned. Conversations there involved Pitcher Jim Bagby, Outfielders Roy Cullenbine, and Orris Hockett of the Indians and Pitcher Bill Dietrich and Outfielder Guy Curtright and Catcher Mike Tresh of the Sox.

Confusion Still Reigns.

Headquarters of the convention is the New Yorker hotel, which is the stopping hostelry of the Sox during the regular ball season. Dykes is at the New Yorker and Grabiner at the Commodore, a cross-town establishment where the Cubs are now and where the team stops in the summer time. Harridge has his residence at the Commodore and rooms at the New Yorker. The convention itself was scheduled for New York then Chicago then New York.

There is to be no further confusion about where the convention is to be held, even the confusion possibly will be the keynote of what goes on at the convention. There never has been a winter baseball meeting without at least a modicum of confusion.

NEW YORK EYES EAST DIVISION HONORS TODAY

eastern champion. Philadelphia by winning, plus New York losing, will take the crown. The best Washington can get with a victory is a tie for first and this isn't guaranteed. The Redskins must beat the Giants and the Eagles must lose to the Rams for Washington to tie New York for the top.

Baugh Spells Trouble.

A victory by the Eagles and only a tie for the Giants will deadlock these two and force a playoff a week from Sunday in New York.

The Giants will see Sammy Baugh in their dreams tonight because last Sunday he completed 25 or 35 pitches against them.

It may be New York's misfortune that it meets the Redskins just at the time Baugh has fathomed the mysteries of the T formation.

Betting Odds Favor Redskins.

The Giants, slight underdogs in the betting odds, came into town today confident their power, generated mainly by Ward Cuff and Bill Paschal, plus a superior line, will more than equal the damage caused by Baugh's air attack.

The Giants play a conservative game and this may be even truer tomorrow because of the stakes involved. They've scored four shutouts this season and opponents have averaged only eight points in nine games. The Giants' main attacking weapon are reverses by Cuff and Paschal.

Bears Are to Blame.

If the Eagles fail to win their first Eastern title tomorrow they can blame the Bears, who came east two weeks ago and ground out a 28 to 7 victory. This is the only Philadelphia defeat of the season, but the Eagles have been tied by the Giants and Redskins.

The East gives Aldo [Buff] Donelli's Rams little chance to beat the Eagles, who last week crushed Brooklyn, 34 to 0, in a convincing rebound after the Bear defeat.

SPEED OF DUCKS EXAGGERATED BY MOST HUNTERS

BY BOB BECKER.

Whenever the waterfowl season is on you can be sure that the duck hunters sometime during their trips will get on the subject of the speed that various species of ducks attain in flight. During recent weeks when we have been sitting in duck blinds along the Illinois river we have wished many times that we could have clocked accurately the speed of flocks of green winged teal which whizzed past us or, heeding the high pitched call "Ke-ke-ke-ke" which all of us were giving, suddenly reversed themselves and swooped over the decoys.

As a rule most duck hunters are inclined to assign a speed rate to birds that is just about twice as fast as they are traveling. In recent years scientists have devoted considerable time to gathering records on the speed of birds, so it's known pretty well just how rapidly they can zoom thru the air.

For example, speeds of 50 to 60 miles per hour have been recorded for mallards, but this bird, the common duck here in Illinois and six times as hard to kill as a sprig, may drift around a stool of decoys listening to a good duck caller at 25 to 30 miles per hour.

Pintails and canvasbacks are faster than mallards. Ornithologists using planes have recorded 62 miles an hour for the sprigs and 72 miles per hour for the canvasbacks.

Practically every duck when badly scared or otherwise in a spot calling for a quick getaway can increase its speed about one-third. Geese, however, are too big to "step on it" very much.

Because wind, atmospheric conditions, the age and condition of waterfowl affect their speed, the ornithologists tell us that it's impossible to lay down any hard and fast rules on duck speeds. Even normal, healthy ducks of the same species vary greatly in the pace they use daily.

White Owl Cigars now 2 for 15¢

Why the OPA has authorized this change in price

During the past two years, you've seen many popular-priced cigar brands disappear from the market. Others have raised their prices to 10¢ and more.

White Owl has resisted this trend . . . because we believe that, in the long run, the smokers' good will is more valuable than immediate gain. Until now, to hold White Owl's price at 6¢ without lowering quality has been possible only by a tremendous sacrifice of profit. In fact, for several months we have made no profit at all on White Owls.

Meanwhile, costs of tobacco, labor and packaging materials have continued to rise . . . to a point where we are no longer able to give you a cigar of White Owl's quality at 6¢.

After careful study, the Office of Price Administration has confirmed this fact. Therefore, it has authorized an increase in White Owl's price to 2 for 15¢.

We regret that this change in price is necessary. But we sincerely believe that White Owl, at 2 for 15¢, is still America's greatest cigar value. For despite present-day production difficulties, White Owl has maintained its high prewar standards of tobacco and workmanship.

When you buy White Owls at the new price of 2 for 15¢, we believe you'll still be getting the outstanding cigar value on the market.

BY OFFSIDE.

Unable to break a deadlock in two extra periods a week ago, the Hakoah-Centers and Hansas will replay their semi-final game of the National Soccer league's class C division this afternoon in Key Branch stadium at 2 o'clock. The winner will battle the Schwabens in the championship game next week.

The Schwabens will swing into action in the first round of National Open cup play, facing the Swedes in Yates stadium at 2:30 p. m. in the second headline attraction on today's soccer schedule.

Hakoahs Lose Two Regulars.

The Hakoah were handicapped last Sunday when Eric Klaber and Dr. Julius Brandt left the game due to injuries and each is a doubtful starter today. It will be the final contest for Klaber, if he is able to play, since he will report for induction into the services next week.

Manager Harry Field has secured the services of three new players from Detroit to strengthen the Hakoah lineup. Mannfred Lehman, a regular last season, returns to his old post at center forward. He will be accompanied by Louis Adler and Alfred Strauss, who were teammates of several Hakoah players on a European team a few years ago.

The Hansas will make some changes in the starting lineup, sending Art Benesch, center forward, who was unable to play last week, back to his regular position. Arch Streader will be at full back along with Herbert Sack.

Swedes Battle Schwabens.

South side fans will have an opportunity to witness the opening game of the National Open cup series in the battle between the Swedes and Schwabens.

The Swedes have finally hit the form expected of them earlier in the campaign and loom as one of the contenders for top honors. Manager Herman Rapp of the Schwabens, who holds down one of the half back positions, will have Skippy Janik back in the lineup. Janik is home on leave from duty in the army air corps. Ernie Schaaf also will rejoin the club after being absent for several weeks because of injuries.

Plan Change in Lineup.

There will be one change in the Swedes' lineup, finding John Petek at center half in place of John Regga, who was injured last Sunday, and Tage Swanson filling Petek's right half spot. The forward wall will include: Billy Fraser, Tommy Reilly, Ki Johnson and Frank Trimmel.

The Chicago Sports association juvenile program includes a playoff for the second place title in Sparta stadium which sends Smith Field against Portage Park at 12:30 p. m.

MOURN MAJ. GRIFFITH

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

An excellent example of the interest management feels in industrial recreation is the program sponsored by the Austin Executives club, an organization of long standing which has its headquarters at the Austin Y. M. C. A., 501 N. Central av. This group includes presidents, other executives and foremen of most of the industrial concerns in the Austin and Cicero areas.

At present, one of the club's chief interests is its 12 team industrial bowling league which holds forth weekly on the National Recreation alleys in Berwyn. No basketball league is being operated this winter because of lack of gymnasium space, a matter which will be remedied before another season, if program reorganization plans now being considered go thru. Last summer a 10 team softball league was operated in the Sparta stadium, with Hotpoint winning the championship by beating Danly Machine in the playoff.

Getting back to the bowling league, that organization is in the midst of a hot race with 10 of the 12 teams so closely bunched that it would take no more than a slight slump by some of the leaders or a spurt by the lower ranking teams to bring about a somersault in the rankings. The teams in the league are Pheoll Manufacturing, Harrington and King, Templeton, Kenly & Co., International Harvester, Polhemus company, Austin Y Directors, Revere Copper and Brass, H. E. Burton Insurance, Hubbard & Co., Miller Roofing, Chicago Flexible Shaft, and Electro-Motive corporation. Recent averages compiled by Frank J. Broucek, the league secretary, showed William Gahl of Templeton, Kenly & Co., leading the individual rankings with a 181 average.

Executives of Flexible Shaft Meet on Monday Nights.

There are other phases of the Austin Y industrial program which are worthy of mention. For example, some 20 executives of the Chicago Flexible Shaft company have been meeting each Monday night for the last three years, with volleyball and gymnasium work their regular routine. On Tuesday evenings the two gymnasiums are turned over to the Galvin Manufacturing company which has a 2½ hour program immediately after work, including general calisthenics, followed by basketball and volleyball leagues, with handball, swimming and other activities on the side.

Minneapolis-Honeywell and Continental Can employes take over the early evening hours on Thursdays for a similar program and on Tuesday and Thursday noons office workers and executives from Meyercord, Hotpoint, and Glidden company who are able to get off at that hour have gymnasium classes.

Four Teams Tied for Lead in Association of Commerce.

Conditions around first place in the Chicago Association of Commerce Industrial Bowling league, which had been crowded for some time, became downright congested last week, when the former two team tie for the lead became a four way deadlock. This resulted when Thompson Elevator and Electric took three straight games from Illinois Bell Telephone and Workman Calculators administered the same treatment to Pyott Foundry and Machine. That put the two winners on a par with the former leaders, Kemper Insurance and Hohman and Hill, which could do no better than two out of three from Fellowship Forum and Globe Furniture and Stationery, respectively.

IT'S A MONOPOLY!

Coach Podrasa of the Illinois Tool Works basketball team does not have to worry about second guessing by the press of the way he handles his squad. If a "fire the coach" campaign should start in the columns of the plant publication, Tool Works Topics, all Coach Podrasa need do is to call on Sports Editor Marion Podrasa and suggest that after all, he and his boys are doing their best.

Last week the I. T. W. quintet opened the campaign in defense of its North av.-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. Industrial league championship and both Coach Podrasa and Sports Editor Podrasa were there. So was Player Marion Podrasa, who made 14 points as the I. T. W. boys beat Gits Molding, 45 to 34. [In case you haven't guessed it, it's just one fellow tripling up in three jobs].

Marion Podrasa.

In the Division St. Y. M. C. A. Industrial Bowling league the margin of the first place Thordarson Flashtrons was cut to a single game when they lost two out of three to Rauland corporation, while the second place Chicago Rawhides won three from the Thordarson Filters. Ewald [Tiny] Eckblom of the Flashtrons rolled a 279 game, high in the league this season.

Another industrial activity of the Division St. Y—its basketball league—opened the season Wednesday with five teams on the list. The Chicago Silents beat Thorsdarson Electric, 40 to 36, and Bendix Aviation won from Ekco Products, 28 to 8. Eicor, Inc., the fifth team, had a bye.

Clearing Industrial Basketball League to Open Play Tomorrow.

The Clearing Industrial association's basketball league of six teams will get down to serious business tomorrow night at the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 6545 S. Union av. Pairings are Johnson and Johnson vs. American Gear [Lindahl Foundries] and A. B. Wrisley company vs. Great Lakes Spring corporation, with the other two teams, United Air Lines and Mechanical Handling, playing their scheduled opener at a later date by agreement. Several of the teams in this league expect to book games with outside quintets.

Judging by results of early games, competition in the North Av.-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. Basketball league will be unusually close this season. The three teams which won their openers the previous week all were beaten last week. Illinois Tool and Motorola Radio, which were a week late getting started, got going with victories and as a result are tied for the lead. Illinois Tool beat Gits Molding, 45 to 34, and Motorola won over J. P. Seeburg corporation, 30 to 27, in an overtime. In the other games, the Eugene Dietzgen company beat Oak Manufacturing, 44 to 35, with Bob Werderitch getting just half of the winners' points, and Russell Electric outscored Utah Radio, 22 to 19.

LAST RITES ARE CONDUCTED FOR JOHN L. GRIFFITH

Funeral services for Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference for 22 years who died last Thursday, were held yesterday afternoon in the Congregational church, Winnetka, Ill. Dr. Samuel Harkness conducted the service and delivered a brief euology.

Dr. Harkness spoke of Maj. Griffiths' life of service and of his honesty, courage, and simplicity. The major was not granted time in which to say good-bye, Dr. Harkness said, "but he would have approved of this gathering of his friends and the simplicity of these prayers and the reading of scriptures."

Directors of athletics of the ten Western conference universities were honorary pallbearers. Scores of other university and college coaches attended. The active pallbearers were: David Levinson, William Sizer, P. A. Walters, Dr. Russell Herrold, Charles Hammacherr, and Frank Winter.

The body will be taken today to Mount Carroll, Ill., bithrplace of Maj. Griffith, for burial.

Lowly Hawks Meet Rangers in New York

Still Trying

CHICAGO.		NEW YORK.
Karakas	G	McAuley
Seibert	L. D.	Heller
March	R. D.	Labrie
Smith	C.	Watson
Mosienko	R. W.	Warwick
Horeck	L. W.	Scherza

The Chicago Blackhawks will attempt to climb out of the cellar spot in the National Hockey league standings tonight when they battle the Rangers in New York's Madison Square Garden. Even a victory won't enable the Hawks to move out of the bottom berth but it will push the Rangers down to a tie for that position.

Each team has two victories to its credit but the Rangers have recorded three ties against a single draw for the Hawks and that accounts for the difference of two points in the rankings.

First New York Meeting.

Tonight's meeting will be the first between the teams in New York and an edge in the season's play thus far belongs to the Hawks, who captured the first game, 8 to 3, and then battled to a 4 to 4 deadlock in the second Chicago contest.

Both teams have added players since the last engagement, the Hawks signing Wilf Fields, who will appear tonight for the first time, and the Rangers have two new defense men in Guy Labrie and Bill Moe.

Rangers Have Improved.

The New Yorkers have shown considerable improvement in their last three league battles, losing to Detroit by one goal, 3 to 2; to Toronto by the same margin, 5 to 4; and then surprising the Montreal Canadiens, 7 to 5.

Costner and James Meet in Marigold Bout

George Costner, Cincinnati welterweight, who scored his 20th straight victory when he beat Sgt. Lou Woods on a disqualification in the third round in Chicago Stadium on Nov. 24, will return to action in a 10 round bout with Tommy James, former city Golden Gloves 147 pound titleholder, in Marigold Gardens tomorrow night.

Ted Christie, New York junior lightweight, who registered his third straight triumph by beating A. C. Lee last Monday, will clash with Eddie [Kid] Carson in a six round secondary feature. An additional six round event will bring together Roland Hopp, Indianapolis, Ind., middleweight, and Mike Sopko, Indiana Harbor. Walter Holba, Milwaukee lightweight, is paired with Tommy Graham, Wichita, Kas., and Paul Frazier, Chicago light heavyweight, with Buddy Rose in four round encounters. Rose is from Cincinnati.

REFORM IN TAX IS CLOUDED BY CLASH IN PLANS

Seek Program That Will Win Support.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

So many conflicting proposals have been offered for recasting federal taxation that business groups are growing apprehensive that genuine tax reform will be lost in the confusion.

Because of the vital influence taxes will have on economic developments after the war, business groups are exploring the possibilities of calling a conference of tax experts which would seek to reconcile the important differences in programs now before the public. Congressional leaders have made clear that no important changes will be made in the tax laws in 1945. Therefore, groups interested in tax reform have time to whip into shape a program to which business and other groups could give united support.

Place System Above Rates.

Some observers believe that those seeking tax reform have been too preoccupied with rates. They have made detailed rate recommendations, suggesting that some be jacked up and others reduced.

More important, in the minds of some experts, is to reach agreement on a sound tax system, leaving to congress the job of fixing rates in accordance with revenue needs of the government. Such a formula would be expected to include recommendations for elimination of some existing levies.

The proposal that has received widest attention is offered by the committee on economic development. It would almost eliminate taxes on corporations and put heavy reliance on the individual income tax. Some other proposals suggest maintenance of existing high corporate taxes, but substantial relief for individual tax payers.

Penalty Levy Held Unsound.

The CED plan also carries the suggestion that elimination of taxes on corporation profits may require enactment of some type of penalty levy to deter corporations from retaining so much of their earnings as to permit stockholders to avoid heavier individual income taxes.

Tax students believe this suggestion is one of the vulnerable points of the CED plan. They contend that a sound tax system should put no pressure on a corporation either to pay out or to retain earnings, leaving this decision to the business judgment of the directors.

The large number of small incorporated business enterprises as a group are far more important economically and as tax producers than are the General Motors, Chryslers, and International Harvesters. But the authors of the tax plans get into the habit of writing their formulas on the assumption that all business is big business, critics assert.

Dividend Policies Conservative.

Under existing high individual income tax rates small corporations, few of whose shares are publicly traded, have followed conservative dividend policies.

Nearly all the proposals for tax reform have carried some recommendation for eliminating or modifying the so-called "double taxation" of corporation earnings. Overlooked in some of the proposals, however, is the fact that the double taxation means little to individuals in high income brackets.

The effective rate of taxation on individuals in the high brackets would not be changed substantially by elimination of the corporation income tax. On the other hand, individuals in the lower income brackets receiving dividend income now carry a disproportionate load.

Bare Faults, Lack Basic Plan.

Tax men consider it entirely feasible to write a formula which would minimize the double taxation of corporation earnings without making it possible to use the corporate form of doing business as a means of avoiding taxes.

The proposals so far offered have served to call attention to the weaknesses and contradictions in the tax system, but agreement on a comprehensive plan of basic reform which congress is likely to accept has not yet been approached, it is held. That is why those interested in achieving reform hope to bring together proponents of the various plans in an effort to reach an agreement on common objectives.

Assails Cartel as Threat to Public Rights

International cartels were denounced last night as a threat to the public's right to decide United States tariff and other trade policies. Whether international trade shall be subjected to tariffs and embargoes is a matter for public decision, Corwin D. Edwards, professor of economics at Northwestern university, last night told the University club of Evanston.

Cartels result in business stagnation that induces governments to peg prices and wages, embark on public works programs, and tangle international trade in a network of subsidies, barter arrangements, exchange controls, and other trade barriers, he said.

Prohibitive Tariff Set Up.

Edwards, who has served in the justice and state departments, said cartels set up the equivalent of a prohibitive tariff by allocating markets to domestic producers. If they allocate markets to designated foreign producers they establish the equivalent of a preferential tariff, and by agreeing on export or import quotas, they limit and direct trade, he said.

"Whatever may be the merits of state socialism or state capitalism," said Edwards, "there can be little merit in a state control dedicated to the protection of private interest groups by a combination of public charity and public restrictions on trade."

He warned that cartels serve the interests of totalitarian states and endanger the military security of the United States.

Dictators Force Compliance.

"Whereas business men in the democracies take part in cartels for business reasons," he said, "business men in totalitarian states are required to subordinate their business policy to the government's political and military policy.

"Cartels were used by the Germans before the war to limit foreign industrial development, to make the industry of neighboring states dependent upon Germany for military supplies, to obtain secret military information, to spread Nazi propaganda, and to prepare ways of evading the future warfare measures and alien property controls of Germany's enemies."

WITHHOLDING TAX RATES.

The difference between the income tax rates for use in compiling form 1040 returns and the withholding tax rates applying to wages paid on and after Jan. 1, 1945, is confusing to many taxpayers. For individual returns, the normal tax is 3 per cent, first bracket surtax 20 per cent, second bracket 22 per cent. For withholding the normal rate is 2.7 per cent, first surtax bracket 18 per cent, and second bracket 19.8 per cent. Why are these differences, it is asked.

The reason is that the withholding rates are adjusted so as to make allowance automatically for the optional standard deduction permitted for charitable contributions, interest, taxes, and other items. This standard deduction amounts to 10 per cent of total income if the latter is under $5,000. It is $500 if the income is $5,000 or more. Accordingly, the withholding rates are 10 per cent lower than the regular income tax rates. The optional standard tax table in form 1040 and the new wage bracket withholding tables also give effect to the 10 per cent allowance.

The employer uses the withholding rates if he figures the tax by the percentage method. However, employers generally will continue to find it convenient to determine the tax by means of the wage bracket tables.

Withholding tax exemptions likewise differ in amount from the personal exemptions deducted in compiling a return on form 1040, if the optional standard tax table is not used. On the return each surtax exemption is $500, but for the withholding tax each exemption after Jan. 1 will count as $556, because it is adjusted to give effect to the standard 10 per cent credit. Prorated to a weekly pay roll basis, each withholding exemption is $11.

The normal tax applies to the entire compensation in excess of a single exemption. All allowable exemptions, including those claimed for wife or husband and dependents, are deducted before figuring the surtax. On a yearly basis, the maximum amount of wages to which the 18 per cent rate applies is the first $2,224 in excess of all exemptions; on a weekly basis it is the first $44. The 19.8 per cent rate applies to any remainder after deducting the sum of all exemptions and $2,224 on an annual basis, or $44 for a weekly pay roll period.

FLOOD CONTROL BILL APPROVED BY CONFEREES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9. (AP)—A billion dollar post-war flood control bill was approved by a conference committee today, accepting all projects added by the senate to the house bill. Conferees said their report would be ready for the house Monday. Approval there would send the bill to the senate for final congressional action.

The bill authorizes development of the Missouri river basin under an integrated program prepared by the reclamation bureau and the army engineers. Calling for an initial authorization of 200 million dollars, the program, was recommended by President Roosevelt who also suggested establishment of a Missouri valley authority as the administrative agency. The MVA proposal was sidetracked for action by the new congress.

Strike Spread Threatens in Ward Stores

Detroit, Dec. 9 (AP).—Four Detroit area stores of Montgomery Ward & Co. were affected today, in the midst of a Christmas rush, by an employes' strike which a union regional official said was likely to spread to other cities by Tuesday.

Ray Scoggins, Detroit regional director of the CIO United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes, said the strike has "full authorization of the international union," was the "beginning of a strike on a broader scale."

Scoggins and Lawrence Steinberg, Ohio regional director, announced the strike was called to protest what they said was Ward's failure to recognize war labor board directives covering union maintenance of membership, dues check-off, back pay demands, and arbitration of grievances.

Reginald W. Rosevear, manager of Detroit area stores, said many clerks remained at work and "business is going on as usual." Scoggins and Steinberg maintained that nearly all employes struck.

"MAY HIT CHICAGO."

In Chicago, Leonard Levy, international executive vice president of the CIO union, said the strike "may hit Chicago," including both retail and mail order operations.

Levy said union officials were in session yesterday and would meet again tomorrow to "determine whether the Chicago house would close to enforce compliance of the WLB directive order." He said he would go to Washington, D. C., today to consult WLB "on this development."

Sewell Avery, Ward chairman, maintained "There is no justification for a strike."

"There seems to be some confusion regarding the WLB orders which have been determined by the courts to be purely advisory," he said. "The thing the company will not agree to is the closed shop. The company is trying to preserve the right of an employe to join or not join, or to resign from a union. This is a permanent policy."

The Chicago mail order plants were involved in a strike which began April 12 and which culminated in government operation from April 26 to May 9, but the company stood pat on its refusal to grant maintenance of union membership.

Cripple Bomber Plant.

Teterboro, N. J., Dec. 9 (AP).—Production of flight instruments and aviation accessories at the Eclipse-Pioneer division plant of Bendix Aviation corporation halted today when 1,800 of 6,000 employes quite in protest over a new work schedule, a management spokesman said.

WFA WILL SELL SHELL EGGS ON CHICAGO MARKET

Government owned shell eggs will be offered for sale by the war food administration on the Chicago Mercantile exchange tomorrow, WFA and the exchange said yesterday. Sales will be limited to not less than 100 cases, delivery guaranteed on the day the sale is made.

The eggs, remaining from government purchases to support prices during heavy production last spring, will be only those in storage in Chicago and the midwest, WFA said. In making sales thru the exchange, WFA will consider discounts up to 10 per cent of ceiling prices.

December egg futures rose to the highest price in more than four months on the Chicago mercantile exchange yesterday, advancing 0.55 cent to 38.75 cents a dozen. Later the contract declined to close at 38.50 cents, up 0.30 cent.

U.S. INTEREST IN INVESTING IN MEXICO COOLS

But Flow of Capital Is Substantial.

The interest of United States citizens in Mexican investments has cooled recently, but substantial amounts of capital continue to move there, Chicago bankers said yesterday. During the last two years American capital has flowed steadily across the border from interests optimistic over Mexico's future.

Charles F. Glore.

One group of Chicago capitalists headed by Charles F. Glore, senior partner in Glore, Forgan & Co., investment house, has been among those investing in Mexican industrial and business enterprises.

Various reasons have been given for the present slackening of interest in Mexican enterprises. The severe inflation gripping the nation has given pause to some interests which had planned to make investments. Difficulty in obtaining materials and machinery for Mexican plants has caused others to hesitate.

Enforce Mexican Control.

A warning by the American embassy in Mexico City that United States citizens cannot obtain embassy protection for their investments unless they report these interests also has been a deterrent, said one banker.

Another adverse factor is the more rigid enforcement of the Mexican law which requires that at least 51 per cent of the ownership of companies operating in Mexico be held by Mexican nationals. The government is making stronger examinations of company books to force compliance, he said.

"However, our connections in Mexico report that the outlook for American capital continues to be favorable over a long term," he said, "and we note that considerable capital continues to move into the country. The present government of [President] Manuel Avila Camacho has been coöperative with American interests. We are further informed that Waron Saenz, a big sugar producer, is scheduled to succeed Camacho, and Saenz has said coöperation with Americans will be continued and extended.

Development Proceeds.

"We have been informed that American business men are continuing to move into Mexico in substantial numbers."

Glore said that the enterprise in which he is interested, Impulsora Comercial e Industrial, S. A. [Industrial and Commercial Development company] is extending development of its operations. He said he had heard of no American interests withdrawing from Mexico during the reported recession.

Glore said American are showing increased realism in planning Mexican ventures. They are beginning to realize that foreigners must start business operations in Mexico on a small scale and work up, he said.

AMER. EXPRESS AUTHORIZES $2 EXTRA DIVIDEND

American Express company yesterday declared an extra dividend of $2, with the quarterly of $1.75 bringing 1944 payments to $8, compared with $9 in 1943. Home Heating Firms Prepare for Large Post-War Market

Home heating units—coal, oil, and gas—in general will not be radically changed after the war in appearance and efficiency from the pre-war models, altho there will be improvements and refinements, a survey of the heating industry disclosed yesterday. Some manufacturers said they were planning new lines to meet the expected post-war expansion in demand.

Coal stokers will be more compact, more appealing to the eye, and will be available in smaller sizes than before the war, it was said. The gas heating industry in general will produce units that will be similar to pre-war models, but the trend will be toward smaller units and better quality, engineers predicted.

Small Changes Planned.

Minor changes are planned in some oil burning heater equipment, altho most of the early post-war models will be virtually the same as those before the war.

The use of the convector radiator, recessed in the wall, will provide more efficient heating of homes, thus permitting a reduction in the size of gas heating equipment, members of the gas heating industry said. They explained the trend would be toward smaller boilers and to increased efficiency from small combustion chambers.

A new post-war product for which they predicted wide acceptance will be a self-contained winter heating and summer cooling unit for single family dwellings, operated thru thermostatic control and with the heating and cooling provided by the same gas flame. The cooling is effected thru an absorption type refrigeration system.

It was explained that this year around air conditioning system can be used only with gas, for no other fuel can be adapted to the abrupt changes involved in the operation.

Midget Stokers Predicted.

Stoker producers reported that immediately after war restrictions are lifted their products will be the same as before the war, but within a few months refinements, the result of war time research, will be incorporated.

Some producers said they may develop midget stokers for water heaters in small homes. Several are planning 15 pound stokers which feed 15 pounds of coal each hour.

One oil burner manufacturer said his company would make after the war a "fully modulated flame" unit, which would provide more even temperature in the home. This burner's operation involves the partial lowering of the flame after the initial full application. Its effect would be to narrow the range of temperature fluctuation between the turning off and on of the heating unit thermostatically.

Wheat Climbs to Peak; Aids Other Grains

December wheat sold at an 8 month peak and the deferred deliveries rose to seasonal highs yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Mills were leading buyers, but professional traders also bought on a belief the office of price administration would announce a 4 cent a bushel increase in the ceiling price over the week-end. Closing trades were at the top, with gains of ⅝ to 1⅛ cents.

Strength in wheat helped boost other grains. Corn and oats futures closed ¼ to ½ cent higher. Rye was up ⅛ to 1 cent. Active barley contracts gained ⅝ cent.

Subsidy Increase Expected.

Mill buying of wheat futures was regarded as a result of flour sales to the army earlier in the week. offerings were light on rise.

An upward revision in the government subsidy to flour mills and in the ceiling on wheat futures was expected as a result of the advance in cash wheat maximums.

Kansas City and Minneapolis wheat futures prices were stronger than in Chicago, gaining 1 to 1½ cents. Advances in securities and reports of further unrest in Germany had little effect on grain.

Rye was fairly active, but the market was irregular. The December future was relatively weak, and closed at about the same price as May, compared with a premium of 1 cent a bushel Friday.

Uncertain on Rye Tenders.

Uncertainty as to whether grain would be tendered on December rye contracts had some effect on traders' views. When trading started yesterday uncompleted contracts totaled 5,554,000 bushels. Trading in this future will cease Dec. 21.

Country offerings of corn were not as liberal as on Friday, purchases aggregating 175,000 bushels. Brokers were expecting much larger receipts of corn this week as the result of liberal purchases in the country and weather conditions more conducive to shelling.

LIBERALIZE SENIORITY RULE TO AID VETERAN, CIO UNION IS ADVISED

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9 [Special].—The Automotive Council for War Production today criticized the CIO United Automobile Workers' "model contract clause" on veterans' seniority because, the organization said, it is not sufficiently liberal. It urged that the auto industry afford veterans without pre-war employment records job opportunities equal to those of workers hired after May 1, 1940.

The present UAW-CIO plan is to credit a veteran lacking a previous employment record with seniority rights based on the length of his military service. However, such seniority could not be used as a basis for hiring and would not be applicable until after each had found a job, the council said.

A statistical survey determined that veterans who went directly from school into military services and others with no exercisable reemployment claims would have a large number of workers hired for war production standing between them and job opportunities if present contract seniority provisions were retained, it said.

In addition, the council proposed that disabled veterans be given "special consideration." These men should be assured of an opportunity to obtain and hold a job thru the insertion of another clause which not only would place them in a suitable job but would guarantee their retention of that job regardless of the relation of their seniority to that of other employes.

STOCKS EXTEND GAINS; MILLION SHARES TRADED

Industrials, Rails Are Leaders.

New York, Dec. 9 (AP).—Pivotal industrials, aided by rails, today lifted the over-all stock market average to a new seven year peak for the third time in three days in the largest Saturday dealings in more than six months. Profit cashing on the week's strong upswing handicapped the rise.

Heavy buying and selling orders came out after a quiet opening and the ticker tape, for a short time, fell two minutes behind floor transactions for the first time since the invasion sprint of June 16 when volume touched the year's top of about 2⅛ million shares. The pace soon slowed, but the turnover of 1,044,800 shares, compared with 705,650 a week ago, was largest for a Saturday since June 17.

Average Gains 0.3 Point.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.3 at 57.3, highest since September, 1937. For the week the composite was ahead 1⅛ points, widest advance since the week ended June 17. Both the industrial and rail averages also reached new highs for about seven years, the first time the industrials had topped the seven year peak. Of 859 issues traded. 461 were up, 174 down, and 224 unchanged.

Stocks advancing included Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern railway, Great Northern, Westinghouse Electric, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, Kennecott, Douglas Aircraft, and du Pont. Fractions lower were New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Sperry, Republic Steel, American Telephone, International Nickel, and Consolidated Edison. Steels, motors, rubbers, and oils did little either way.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices advanced again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in turnover of 26,000 shares, the largest Saturday volume since June 17. Volume leaders included Butler Brothers, which closed up ¼ at a 1944 peak of 14⅛; New York Central and Nash-Kelvinator, each up ⅛, and Standard Dredging and Libby, McNeill & Libby, both unchanged. Other stocks reaching 1944 highs included Santa Fe, up 1, and Pennsylvania railroad, up ⅛.

RAIL BONDS EXTEND GAINS.

New York, Dec. 9 (AP).—Continued active buying of rail loans made today's bond market one of the largest for a Saturday in recent months and lifted prices of favored carriers fractions to about 2 points. Dealings were $6,233,500 against $6,432,000 last Saturday.

Among the widest advancers were Boston and Maine 4s, Milwaukee general 4s of 1989, Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s, Georgia, Carolina and Northern 6s, Illinois Central 5s, M-K-T adjustment 5s, and New York Central and Hudson River 3½s.

RFC WILL ERECT WAREHOUSES TO STORE SURPLUS

New York, Dec. 9 (AP). — A chain of warehouses for the storage and display of surplus war goods will be erected by the Reconstruction Finance corporation in key industrial centers thruout the country, RFC officials said today.

The announcement said the buildings would not be sales centers, but would be used primarily for storing the goods and displaying them to prospective buyers.

The war department has awarded contracts for construction of more than 1 million dollars of storage facilities near Jersey City, Newark, and Linden, N. J., and bids will be received Monday for construction of a similar project near Pelham Bay park in the Bronx.

BUILDERS AWAIT GO SIGNAL FOR 32,000 HOMES

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Construction of 32,000 homes will start thruout the country as soon as war restrictions are lifted, a country-wide survey made by the National Association of Home Builders of the United States showed yesterday. Plans have been completed for these living units, 368 builders reported, and work will start as soon as L-41 [a war production board order which stopped all except war building in April, 1942] is rescinded. Prices will range from $4,500 to $30,000.

George F. Nixon.

Philadelphia led cities reporting in number of homes awaiting the federal go signal, with 2,860 ready for construction. Miami was second with 2,304. Pittsburgh followed with 2,040, and Chicago was fourth with 1,635. "Immediate construction," of course, is subject to availability of materials and labor, it was pointed out.

Covers 300 Cities.

The survey which covered 300 cities and towns from coast to coast, was made in connection with the builders' exposition to be held in the Hotel Sherman beginning Jan. 15 as a feature of the association's annual convention.

It showed that more builders were interested in heating and air conditioning, with kitchens a close second, than in anything else. Materials were third on the list, and construction next. Plumbing and wiring, pre-fabrication, and bathrooms followed in that order.

Builders approved a suggestion that a series of home designs, approved by authorities in their own field, be made available to them by the association. Most of them balked at "modern" architecture for residences.

Want Traditional Design.

"We don't think the public is interested in 'modernistic' house designs," one builder wrote. "Traditional architecture with refinements in materials, appointments, and the like is what is wanted."

A California contractor said: "Not modern design, but modern adaptation of traditional architecture will attract the most home buyers."

Among a flood of protests against the "magic house," the "dream cottage," and other of the galaxy of glamor residences, this came from a Pittsburgh builder: "Expose the 'miracle home as an impossible and expensive nightmare."

"These comments are from the men who will build perhaps 10 million homes in the first post-war decade," said George F. Nixon, chairman of the convention.

Chicago Heights Building Leased by Government

The government has leased until 1949 the three story building at the northeast corner of Arnold and 14th sts., Chicago Heights, containing 200,000 square feet of floor space, and 300,000 square feet of land adjoining, from the Chicago Heights Realty company. The ordnance department is taking possession. Alfred L. Miltenberg & Co., agent for the property, negotiated the lease.

At the Realty Boards

The North Side Real Estate board will hold its annual smoker Wednesday evening in the Chicago Town and Tennis club, 1925 Thome av. Supper at 7 p. m. will follow a 6:15 reception. The chief item of entertainment will be a precision military drill by the junior marines drill team under leadership of Frank Lynn, former president of the board. The 20 boys on the team are sponsored by Marine post, No. 273, American Legion.

48,000 SLUM ACRES NEED DEVELOPING IN U. S., SURVEY SHOWS

More than half the cities reporting in the 43d semi-annual survey of the real estate market made by the National Association of Real Estate Boards estimated total blighted areas needing redevelopment at 48,000 acres, or two acres for each 1,000 of population.

"Clearing blighted areas is considered by many cities essential to starting post-war building on a large scale and for sound city growth," the survey said.

Altho a shortage of single family homes had increased in 95 per cent of cities reporting, 78 per cent said residential rents were insufficient to justify investment in rental housing because of construction costs. "Continuation of federal rent control after the war would put a dead hand on construction," they said.

PUZZLED BY AIR PARLEY'S WORK? HERE'S ANSWER

World Board May Advise but Not Regulate.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

The questions most frequently asked of any one who attended the international civil aviation conference concluded last Thursday in the Stevens hotel are: What happened? Was anything accomplished? What was it all about? How did the United States come out?

Lawyers, diplomats, newspapers, and governments will be studying, evaluating, and disputing these questions for a long time to come. It is possible now to give only general answers.

The conference of 54 allied and neutral nations was called Nov. 1 by the United States state department, at the request of England, to lay the groundwork for a permanent world aviation organization and to make it possible to put commercial aircraft on international runs immediately after the war.

No Power to Regulate.

More than 700 persons spent 37 straight days working on this agenda. They produced a permanent world aviation organization which has power to consult and advise, but not to regulate. They produced a mass of "technical standards" for international aircraft operation which were recommended for use by all nations but cannot be forced upon anybody.

Military air transports are flying daily between all of the allied nations under the rules of war. The conference was supposed to make it possible to put commercial air liners on these same runs, and many others, the minute the last shot is fired. Here it had only qualified success.

The United States came to the conference determined to make it possible for any aircraft, competently operated, to fly, land, set down passengers, and pick them up any place in the world. America has an enormous supply and virtually the total capacity to build transport aircraft.

Berle Switches Policy.

Great Britain came to the conference with few transport aircraft of her own, and almost no capacity to build them.

The British proposed that for every airplane Americans put on an international route, the country flown to would have the right to operate one of equal size. No operator could add more planes unless he first produced the traffic to fill them. Even then, the traffic he produced in foreign countries for transportation to other foreign countries would not count in his quotas. At one time Adolf A. Berle Jr., chairman of the United States delegation, was ready to accept all of the British restrictions, except the last one on foreign pick-up traffic. The British held out, and Berle executed what is known in diplomacy as a "demarche" to the original United States position that there should be complete air freedom and no restrictions on the number of planes flown.

Separate Documents Drawn.

From this deadlock came an "air transit" document and an "air transport" document, both separate and apart from the world organization treaties and laid on the table for each nation to sign on an optional basis. There are no restrictions on the number of aircraft to be flown, or division of the traffic, in either. The first allows freedom to fly over and to land for refueling or emergency in the territory of the nations signing it. The second allows the complete air freedom—right to pick up and set down passengers anywhere—that the United States demanded.

Twenty-five nations, including Great Britain, signed the first, altho the British specifically excluded Newfoundland, thus blocking America's right to use valuable trans-Atlantic bases there for refueling unless separate negotiations are made on this point. The "air transport" document was signed by 16 nations, including Sweden, and in this section of the world the air is opened wide for commercial travel on United States terms.

Satisfactory, Americans Say.

High officials of two large American air lines which hope to fly intercontinental planes after the war say they do not believe American air transport companies are any worse off—and they may be a little better off, considering the signatures obtained on the transit and transport agreements—than they were before the conference opened. At least there are no global restrictions on the fleets of giant low-cost air liners these men hope to put into the skies when the war ends.

Had Berle and the American delegation settled for the restrictive formulas they offered to the British at one point during the negotiations the international air program of the United States might have been crippled, they say.

Medical Society to Hold Obstetrics Symposium

A symposium on obstretics will be held in the John B. Murphy Memorial auditorium, 50 E. Erie st., at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday under the auspices of the Chicago Medical society.

TAKE CARE, YOU! TO AVOID PLACE ON LIST FOR '45

Remember the story about the automobile in Winslow, Ariz., that crashed into the rear of a city bus and injured nine persons? And how Mrs. Adaline Clasby, the driver, explained that she didn't see the bus in time to stop because she was nursing her baby? This was one of the freak accidents of 1944, as selected by the National Safety Council.

Chicago had its share of representatives in the parade. Mrs. Rita Hatfield, for instance, stumbled over her dog as she ran to answer the telephone and fell thru a glass-topped coffee table. The caller represented an accident insurance company.

Suffers Broken Neck.

Gregory Stingle, 13, also of Chicago, struggled so strenuously to remove a football jersey he had put on backwards that he suffered a broken neck. In the same category, Mrs. Pauline Strother of Indianapolis suffered a dislodged vertebra while brushing her teeth.

Army men weren't immune to freak accidents, either. Pvt. Charles Smith went home to Claudell, Kas., after three South Pacific invasions. A power lawnmower tossed an old spoon with such force that it penetrated his leg and had to be removed by a surgeon.

Pvt. Harley Paul Collins of Kansas City, demonstrated to his wife how he made booby traps and then tripped over his own invention and was shot in the leg. A navy plane plowed thru the bedroom of Margaret Morton, in Groton, Conn., and whisked her blanket off the bed. She wasn't injured, the pilot only slightly, and the blanket, undamaged, was found in the wreckage of the plane in a schoolhouse.

Set Phone Switches Afire.

Too many party line gossipers used the Washington Court House, Ohio telephone exchange, overloaded eight switches and set them on fire.

A jitterbug dancer, Pvt. Ernest Olivier of McCook, Neb., one night grabbed for his partner's hand, missed and plunged thru a second-story window.

And finally, a strip tease dancer, Betty Rowland, was so enthusiastic in her bumps and grinds that she bumped one of her hips against a wall and suffered partial paralysis. Yes, this happened in Hollywood.

REV. GUTHRIE, 76, DIES; SPONSORED GAUZE DANCERS

Clashed with Bishop on Lack of Orthodoxy.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP).—The Rev. William Norman Guthrie, 76, whose introduction of gauze clad dancers before the altar of historic St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, N. Y., in 1920, become the center of an ecclesiastical storm, died today following an operation.

As head of St. Mark's, Dr. Guthrie, self-termed "church radical," also presented poets, American Indians, Hindus, and actors to his congregation, declaring, "You can't count on people coming together unless there is excitement and a band."

"If a church is doing ordinary work there will be ordinary people near it," he said. "But if it's doing unusual work it finds unusual people."

Stirred Wrath of Bishop.

His unorthodox services invoked the wrath of his Protestant Episcopal bishop, William T. Manning, and resulted in a long standing disagreement between the two clergymen. A court move, backed by the bishop, to have him ousted, was defeated.

When he retired from St. Mark's in 1937 Dr. Guthrie told his congregation in his concluding sermon:

"In my 26 years here I have tried to bring the greatest possible variety and Catholicity into worship, and that could not be done by freezing to the prayer book."

Breakable Church Laws.

He characterized the book as "a masterpiece of obsolete devotion," and said "the Episcopal church was founded by gentlemen for gentlemen and you can break every law of the church if you know how."

A native of Dundee, Scotland, Dr. Guthrie received his early education in Italy and Germany, and upon coming to the United States studied at the University of the South at Sawanee, Tenn., where later he became professor of general literature.

PLENTY OF TREES FOR CHRISTMAS EXPECTED HERE

Chicago retail dealers will have a plentiful supply of Christmas trees and at reasonable prices this season, Gust Relias, 22 South Water Market, said yesterday. Relias, who is known as Chicago's Christmas tree king, said ideal weather in Montana, where the best trees are grown, was a big factor.

Relias, who will have 25 carloads of trees for his customers, said prices for the best quality evergreens will range from 50 to 75 cents for three and four foot trees to $2 and $2.50 for 10 foot trees.

"When you consider that prices in World War I. were as high as $2 and $3 in Chicago for a single Christmas tree branch, today's prices to the consumer are cheap," said Relias. Supplies of trees from Canada and Maine, he added, are also good. Dealers have started to place their orders, he added, but aren't going to be caught overstocked as they were a year ago.

PICK DELEGATES FOR CONFERENCE ON LABOR LAWS

Robert L. Gordon, acting director of the state department of labor, and two prominent union officials appointed by Gov. Green will represent Illinois at the 11th national conference on labor legislation called by Secretary of Labor Perkins to be held in Washington, D. C., Dec. 12, 13, and 14.

The other delegates are Earl J. McMahon, secretary of the Chicago Building and Construction Trades council, and Walter James of Springfield, secretary-treasurer of district 12, United Mine Workers of America.

The problem of meeting present critical war needs by speeding up lagging production will be the first issue to be considered by the delegates, a spokesman for the federal department of labor said. Plans also will be discussed for maintaining maximum employment and purchasing power during the reconversion and post-war period, he said.

BURNS FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Mildred Batchelor, 44, of 7445 Addison st., died in Belmont hospital yesterday of burns suffered when the gloves she wore while stuffing newspapers into a furnace caught fire and the flames spread to her clothing.

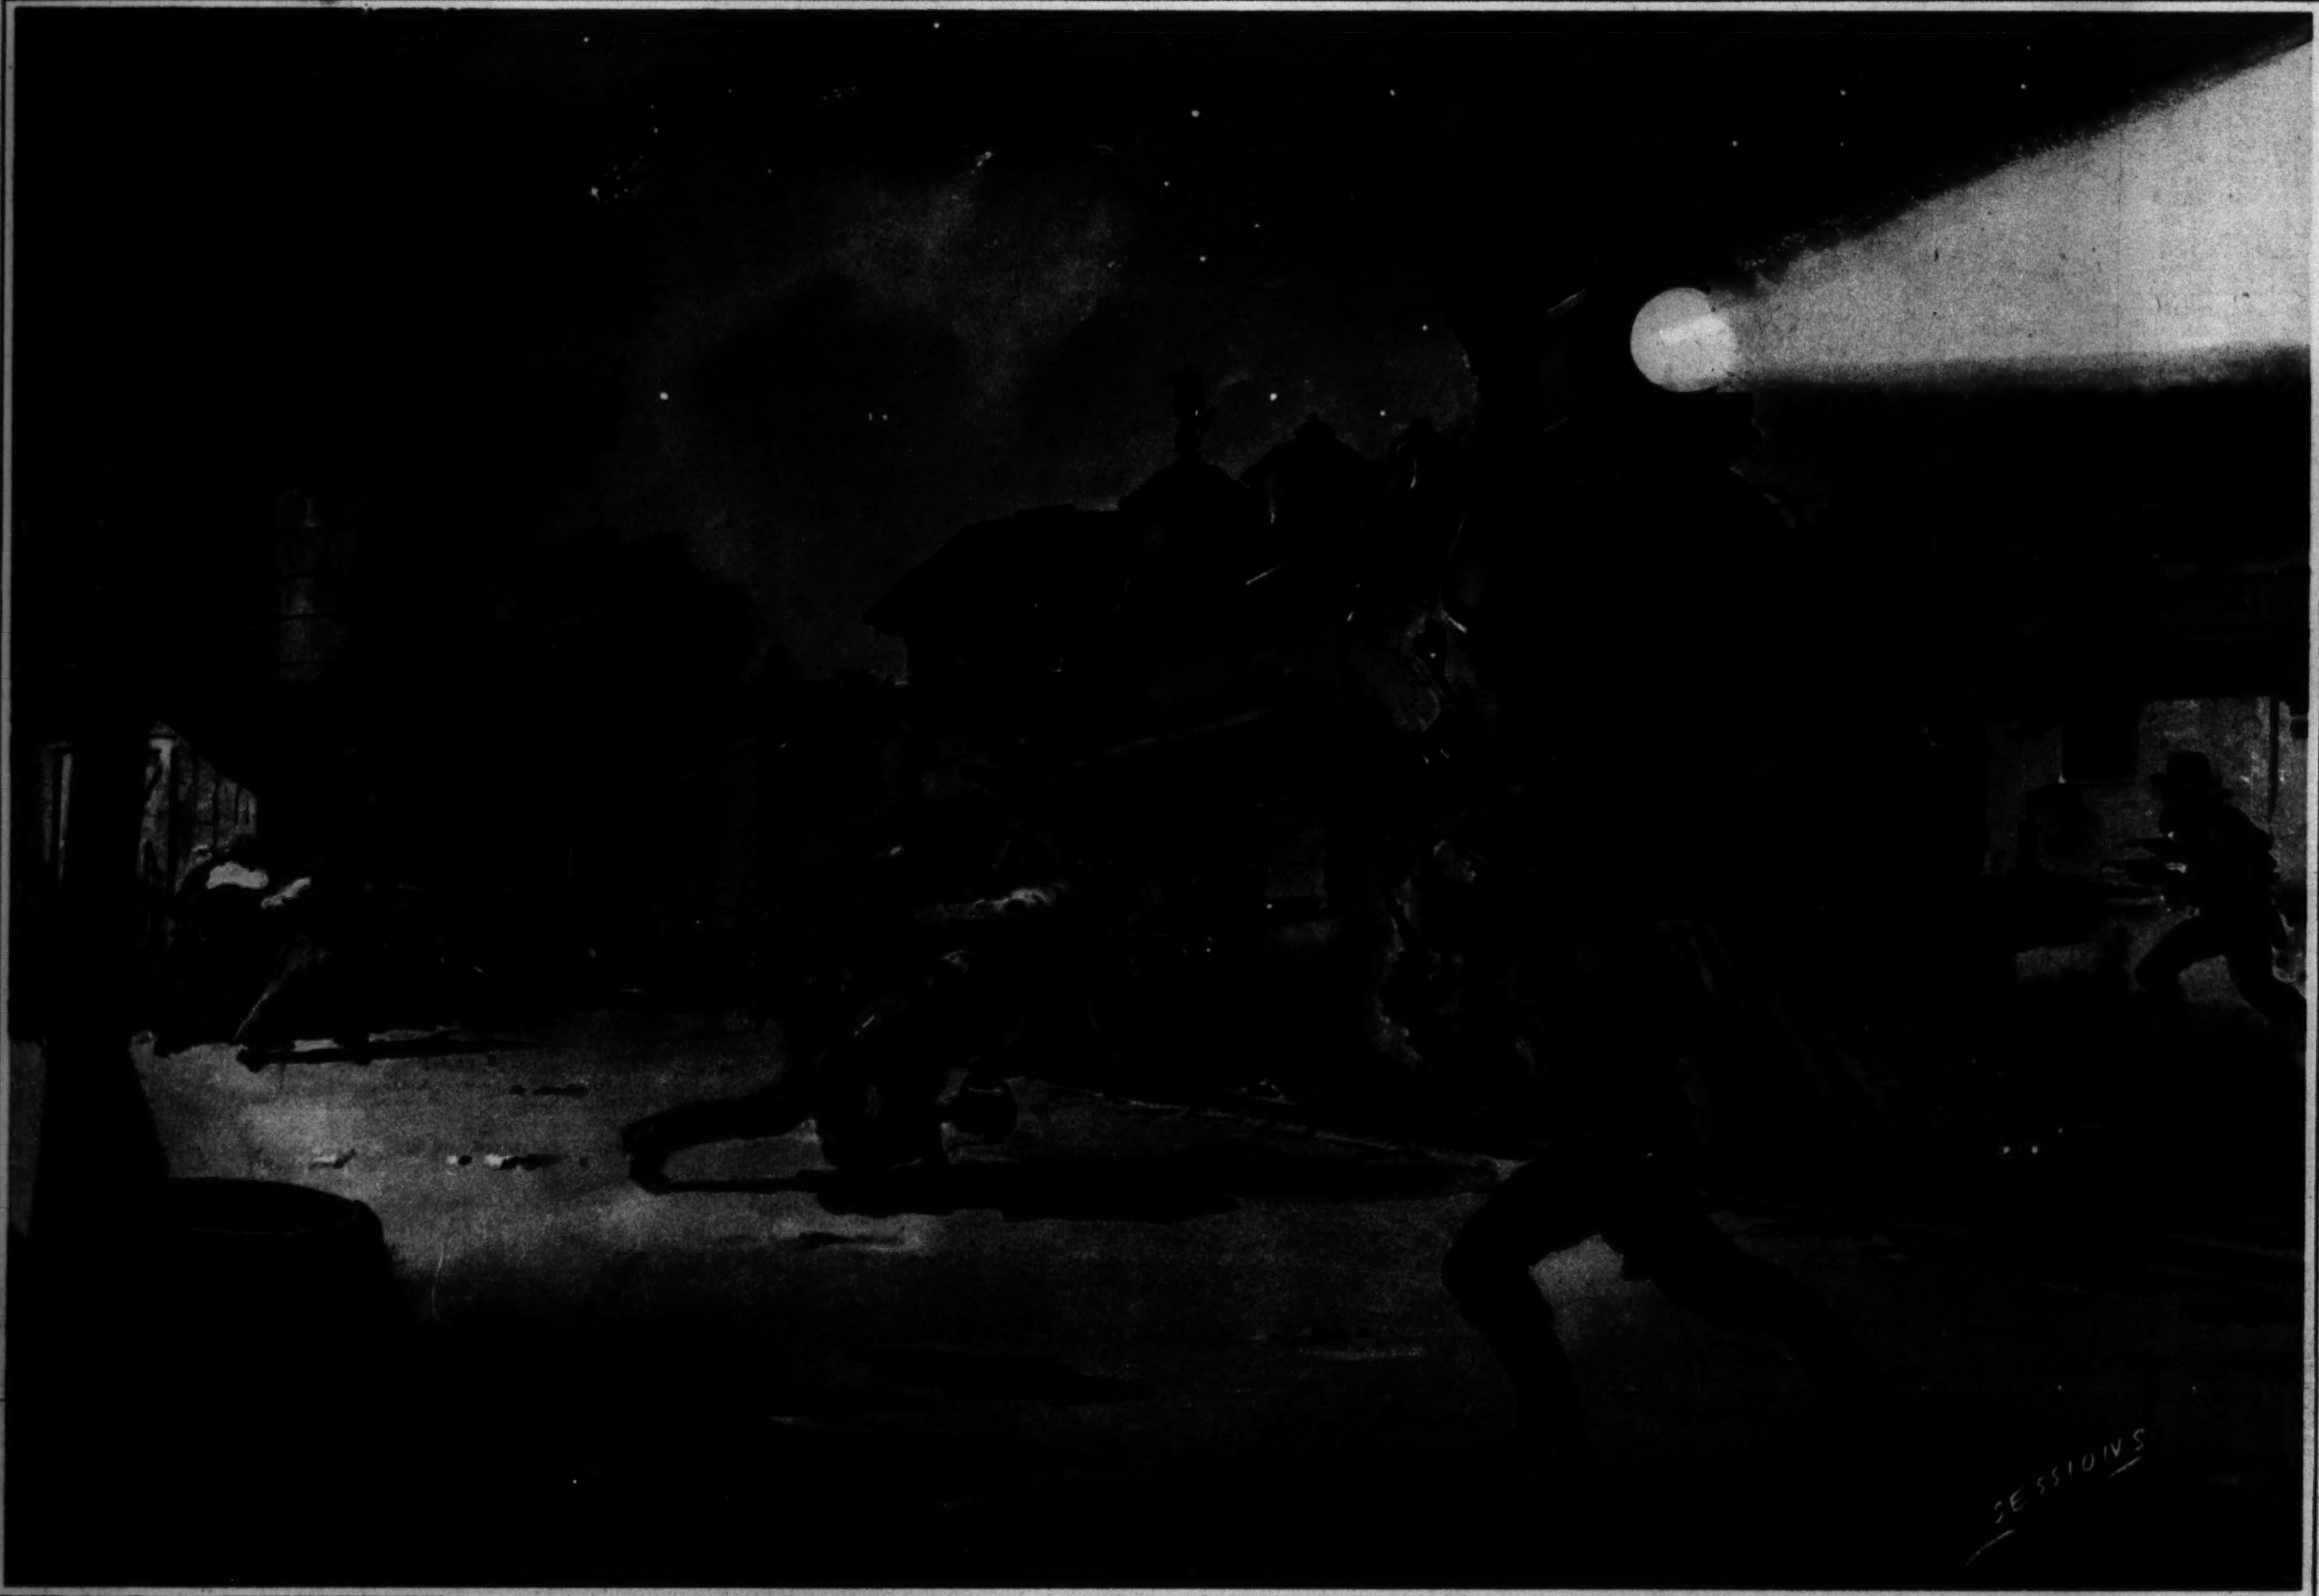
Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

DECEMBER 10, 1944



An artist's conception of the action at Marshfield, Ind., when the notorious Reno brothers staged the train robbery which is the subject of the accompanying story. Painted expressly for The Tribune by James M. Sessions, famous Chicago artist.

THE GREAT TRAIN ROBBERY!

By DELOS AVERY

SEVEN OUTLAWS, all armed with pistols, lay in hiding near the railroad tracks at Marshfield, Ind., on a Friday night, May 22, 1868. Rumbling in from the south, drawn by a wood-burning locomotive that lurched and tugged, its wide funnel belching black smoke and little red tongues of flame, came a passenger train of the Jefferson, Madison, and Indianapolis line, due in Indianapolis at 2:40 o'clock Saturday morning.

Marshfield was a wood and water stop, and the only persons waiting for the train were the outlaws, who had taken strategic positions. Two of them were behind the pile of corded wood where the engine would stop. Two were behind trees on the right and left of the tracks. Two more were a little farther back, waiting in a shadow. And the seventh, probably Frank Reno himself, had a look-out post from which he could observe the whole scene, including any interference that might come from the coaches.

Action was swift, the first chapter ending in a minute or two. As the train squealed to a stop the engineer with his oilcan climbed down and was knocked unconscious with a blow from a pistol butt. At the same moment two outlaws swarmed into the cab and overpowered the fireman, while two others darted to the couplings behind the Adams Express car, which was next to the tender.

From one of the passenger coaches the train conductor, a man named Whedon, stepped down and saw the men at the couplings. He drew a pistol and fired. A bullet from a Reno gun passed his ear. He fired two more shots, and a return bullet cut thru his coat. He sprang aboard the train again, out of range. And now all seven of the outlaws were in the locomotive cab, where one of them, believed to have been Charles Anderson, who knew the mechanics of the engine, opened the throttle.

The passenger cars were left behind while the locomotive and express car gathered speed and plunged northward—"at a fearful rate," according to a description telegraphed to The Chicago Tribune. It covered 20 miles in a little more than 20 minutes and stopped three or four miles south of Seymour for the action of the second chapter, robbery of the express car.

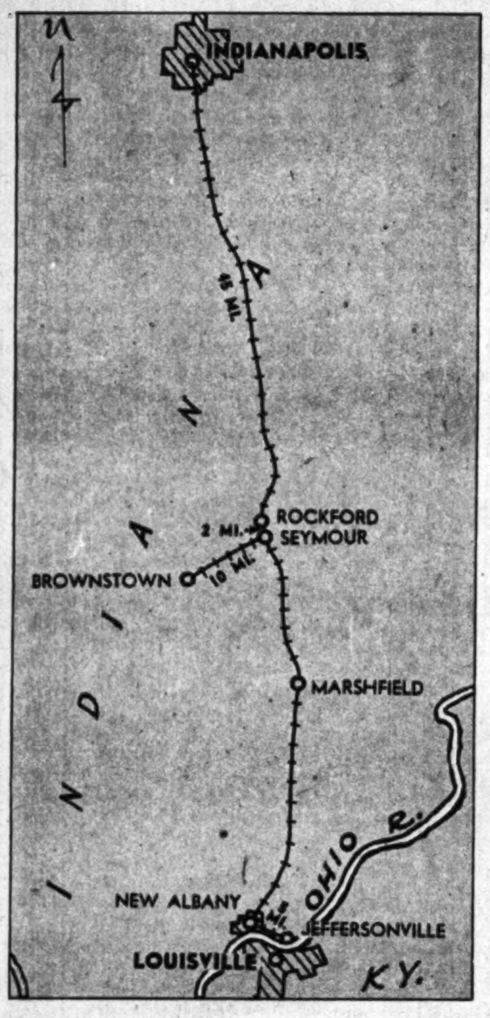
Both end doors of the express car were securely locked from within, but the outlaws quickly smashed the side door and found only one guard inside, Thomas Harkins. He was knocked out, bound, robbed of his keys, and then thrown from the car as the engine started again.

Two money safes were opened—not with the keys, for they failed to work, but forced by Anderson, who had had experience in burglary. The safes contained, it was afterward learned, $98,000, all in greenbacks.

With this loot the outlaws, after driving a little closer to Seymour, left the train and made their way over familiar paths to the village of Rockford, the home and stronghold of the Reno family.

They had now far more cash than they would live to spend, and some of it may still be buried somewhere in the woods around Rockford. Anyway, most of it never was recovered. Measured in money, it was the biggest train robbery that ever had been reported.

Conductor Whedon, using a handcar, caught up with the runaway engine and express car an hour or so later, reassembled his train, and got his passengers to Indianapolis at 8 in the morning instead of 2:40.



Map of the territory in which robbery occurred.

For at least two years the southern part of Indiana had been terrorized and plundered by the Reno brothers and their confederates. There were five brothers. Frank, Simeon, and William had taken part in the big robbery. John was not there because he was serving a prison term in Missouri for another robbery, plus attempted murder. And the fifth brother, Clinton, known as "the honest Reno," belonged only to the family, not to the gang. There was one Reno girl, Laura, whose love of adventure had tempted her to help the gang in small ways, but the eventual hanging of three of her brothers cooled her ardor and she became a quiet housewife without getting into serious trouble.

Serious trouble for the gang, however, began to brew. Editorial writers raged at the failure of "the authorities" to act effectively. It was charged that the Reno gang possessed a sinister political influence. Arrests were made from time to time, but convictions failed to follow.

"Jackson county and its environs," said one paper, "contain more cutthroats to the square inch than Botany bay or Van Diemen's Land." A Chicago Tribune correspondent wrote: "Nearly all the robberies, burglaries, and murders around Seymour, Rockford, and Brownstown of late years are charged to the Renos, notorious for their bad name." Several Indiana papers said stronger laws were needed.

And a group of Seymour business men formed a "vigilance committee" which boldly stated its purposes but carefully concealed its membership lists. The committee even advertised, not in the newspapers but by handbills which were scattered abundantly where the criminals would be likely to pick them up. The newspapers reprinted these handbills, one of which was as follows:

ATTENTION, THIEVES

The attention of all thieves, robbers, assassins, and vagrants, together with their aiders, abettors, and sympathizers, is called to the doings of the

Seymour Vigilance Committee

We are determined to follow this up until all of the classes above named are driven forever from our midst. Threats have been made of retaliation in case we resort to capital punishment. In answer we say: Should one of our committeemen be harmed, or a dollar's worth of property of any honest man be destroyed, by persons unknown, we will

Swing by the Neck

until they are dead every thieving character we lay our hands on, without inquiry whether we have the persons who committed that particular crime or not. By order of

VIGILANCE COMMITTEE

They meant it. They proved it by hanging three men in July and four in December. These were fancy lynchings, too, as lynchings go. Red masks—red velvet masks—were worn, altho this was in pre-Hollywood, pre-technicolor days. A private railroad car was used, and nobody ever explained how that was arranged. The favorite guess was "influential people." One mob leader carelessly permitted his large diamond ring to be spotted, and dared not wear it again for several years lest some witness say, "That's the ring I saw that night."

The first of the lynchings was on the night of July 20. One of the men hanged then was Charles Roseberry, who had served in the Civil war as a lieutenant in the Union army and joined the Renos as an easy and exciting way of making a living in post-war days. Philip Clifton and Volney Elliott were the other two. It was commonly believed, tho not proved, that these three had been members of the group of seven in the big robbery of May 22.

The three had been captured after the failure of another train robbery attempt on July 10. They had captured a train as before, separating the locomotive and express car as before, but this time the express company had better guards aboard and the robbers were driven away with bullets. Elliott was wounded and captured at once, the others within a few days, and the three were being taken to Brownstown to be jailed when the train carrying them was stopped by the vigilance committee.

For a moment the three outlaws were jubilant, because, seeing the mob, they mistook it for a force of Reno gangsters and supposed they were being rescued from the law. Instead they were hurried to the nearest beech tree, given two minutes to pray if they cared to, and then hanged.

GARLAND FOR JUDY

Hollywood.

THE ODDS were thousands to one against a stocky, freckle-faced blues singer who came here nine years ago for a career.

Today Judy Garland is one of our top box office pets. She could put aside her songs and go dramatic any day in the week. She could, but I sure would be mad at her.

Here is no Cinderella story. No stardom overnight for Baby Frances Gumm, "the little girl with the great big voice," as she was billed in vaudeville.

From the day she was 3 she worked, and worked some more.

Long before Judy or her two sisters, Virginia and Sue, were born, Frank and Ethel Gumm toured vaudeville circuits as "Jack and Virginia Lee, sweet southern singers." When the first Gumm sister arrived they settled in Grand Rapids, Minn.

Grease paint was put aside for the nonce and Frank Gumm took over the New Grand theater as manager. It was there, at the age of 3, that Judy made her debut. Her two sisters, with mother at the piano, were on the stage. Judy had been told to sit quietly in the dressing room. She had her own ideas—she still has. She wanted to sing, too, and sing she did. Before any one knew it she was standing in front of the audience singing five choruses of "Jingle Bells"—one right after the other. From then on Judy was part of the act.

Shortly after that the Gumms left for California. In other words, they worked their way out. Jobs were scarce. Some night appearances netted them not more than 50 cents apiece. Joining the Meglin Kiddies helped a little, but they finally decided to move to Lancaster, Cal., where the local theater was crying for a new manager. For nine years the Gumms lived there. Winter found the girls studying hard in school. Summer found them working hard on the road. They played every theater up and down the west coast that would take them. It wasn't easy. Audiences walked out. Managers and critics panned them. One newspaper man dubbed Judy "the leather-lunged blues singer." Youngsters in the front row threw box lunches at them. One Christmas found the girls and their mother eating tortillas at a drug store near the theater.

It took lots of courage to tackle a trip to Chicago. But they did it. Mother and the three girls piled into the family car and worked their way to the Windy city. They were in demand when they got there—for benefits. Then fortune smiled. They were booked into the Oriental theater. That night marked the end of the Gumm Sisters. Up until now they had been billed as "the Crumb Sisters," "the Bum Sisters," but this was too much. The marquee read, "The GLUM Sisters." George Jessel changed their name to Garland, and Frances switched hers to Judy.

Change of name didn't mean a change of luck, tho. A spot at the world's fair, where they worked three weeks, paid off in promises. The family larder boasted one egg and a loaf of moldy bread. When Judy asked how one egg could be stretched four ways her mother answered simply, "Scramble it!" Then their one and only set of costumes was stolen. That's when they decided to go home. Jobs along the road barely covered expenses.

Then Virginia and Sue decided to marry. That meant that what was laughingly called their act would split up. For sentiment's sake they had one last fling. They sang at the Lodge at Lake Tahoe. A talent scout spotted Judy and in three weeks she was signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Even then she waited around a year, but Judy finally got an assignment—a two-reeler with Deanna Durbin called "Every Sunday." Then Durbin was grabbed by Universal and started getting the breaks. But Judy got nothing except bits and heartbreak, even with such things as "Pigskin Parade," "Everybody Sing," and "Listen, Darling." None of these caused Judy to shine or even glimmer. But her first role with Mickey Rooney broke the ice. A couple of scenes in "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" led to writing a part for her in "Love Finds Andy Hardy." And Betsy Booth was born. But that was after Ida Koverman became her guardian angel and kept putting in those good words for her.

For "The Wizard of Oz" Judy received the Academy award for the outstanding juvenile performance of the year. Then came "Babes in Arms" and a series of Rooney-Garland musicals that spelled box office dynamite.

"Yeah, but how good will she be without Rooney?" the cynics questioned. Judy answered them with "Little Nellie Kelly," "Presenting Lily Mars," and "For Me and My Gal."

Then suddenly the girl they called "the ugly duckling" lost her baby fat; her freckles and pug nose no longer mattered. Judy Garland emerged into a lovely young thing. That's not such a phenomenon if you think about it. Here's a girl who actually grew up within the walls of a Hollywood studio. She was taking tips from dress designers, makeup experts, hair stylists, when most kids were sneaking lipsticks out of their high school lockers.

I'll never forget the night Judy wore her first Adrian dress. She was with Rooney, and they put their footprints into the courtyard of Grauman's Chinese theater. I was standing with Ida Koverman when Judy caught sight of her, rushed over, kissed her, and said, "I've got you to thank for all of this, Kay!"—then rushed back to Mickey.

It seems a far cry from one-night stands in East Alhambra to the Philadelphia Symphony, but Judy was the girl who made it. Last summer she broke the record at Robin Hood Dell when, accompanied by Andre Kostelanetz and a hundred piece symphony orchestra, she appeared there in a summer concert.

One amazing thing about Judy is her extreme versatility. She could jump from Mickey's teen-age sweetheart in "Babes on Broadway" to the mature role with Gene Kelly in "For Me and My Gal." Then back with Mickey in "Girl Crazy." Now she's bridging the widest gap of all. With the technicolor musical "Meet Me in St. Louis" finished, Judy's done her first straight dramatic role in "The Clock." The story, an original by Paul and Pauline Gallico, was adapted for the screen by Robert Nathan. It's sheer poetry, and for her leading man Judy has Robert Walker.

Judy in "Everybody Sings."

Judy has no desire to jump into drama and stay there. After "The Clock" she hopes to do another musical. One of her ideas is to incorporate music into one of the famous plays, Sam Behrman's "Serena Blandish" or the memorable "Good Fairy." Then one day she hopes to realize her dream of dreams—do a show on Broadway.

A few weeks ago Judy celebrated her 22d birthday; a mature young woman who had achieved everything she set out to do. At a party given in honor of the occasion a record was played—a record that brought forth a nostalgic picture of Judy, stocky, freckle-faced, and pug-nosed, singing hesitantly to her favorite star.

It was a recording made by Clark Gable of a poem written to Judy on her birthday by Robert Nathan. Underneath Gable's narration the soft melody of "You Made Me Love You" could be heard. There were tears in Judy's eyes when Gable began: "A long time ago, Judy, you stood up on a sound stage and sang a song to me on my birthday. Today you're 22, and I want to return that tribute." You could almost read the thoughts on every face: "Yes—she's come of age, and she's come such a long, long way. Let's hope she'll keep right on going and stay the same—saucy and not too sophisticated—as time goes by."

American Family Flakes Preferred By Twice As Many Women As Any Other Package Soap—Independent Dishwashing Survey Shows

"My hands feel so much softer and smoother, now that I'm using American Family Flakes for my dishes," says Mrs. Norman Larsen, 3329 W. Cortland. . . . And no wonder. For today's American Family Flakes are milder than any strong granulated soap—and so they are far kinder to hands.

"My greasy dishes come clean in no time at all, with American Family Flakes," writes Mrs. J. Falconer, 1138 N. LaVergne. . . . It's a fact. Scientific tests prove no soap in the world cuts grease faster than American Family Flakes.

"Suds just last and last," says Mrs. Russell Vette, 1319 North La Salle Street. . . . Yes, Mrs. Vette is right. American Family Flakes make more suds faster than any leading strong granulated soap, and those suds stand up 'til you're ready to empty the dishpan.

Don't Waste Soap! It's made of vital war materials. Make your American Family Flakes go as far as you can.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

Sweet Briar farmerettes gather at the refectory. It was an exciting day on the Sweet Briar campus when blue jeans, ordinarily strictly forbidden, were sanctioned for those students who responded to the Land Army's appeal for volunteers to help save farm crops.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Sweet Briar, Va.

IF WE DIDN'T like Sweet Briar for anything else it would be for the fact that its president, Miss Meta Glass, clings fast to her belief that the college girl "doesn't do anything better for being dirty or sloppy while she does it, nor learn anything better for sitting on the floor while she learns it."

Not that there is overemphasis at Sweet Briar on the proprieties, or that this very popular college for women is more concerned with them than with intellectual attainment. The school's lush name, the tendency of all who speak of it to extol the southern charm of its campus, and the touching story of its creation as a memorial to Daisy Williams, the only daughter of the owners of Sweet Briar plantation, who died at 16, have sometimes created the impression that Sweet Briar is a finishing school and that the Sweet Briar girl is more concerned with daisy chains than with a Phi Beta Kappa key. This is a totally false impression.

Sweet Briar is a college of high and exacting academic requirements. But Miss Glass, as we have said, is not amused by the tiresome tomboy trend in dress or behavior that on so many campuses appals the visitor.

We can't help wondering whether a truly rounded education for a girl is obtained at the college, however lofty its academic standards, where she is not required to be presentable in the classroom or the dining halls. In the old fashioned book it would be an affront to others to come daily to class or to table in soiled jeans and with dirty finger nails and unbrushed hair and smudged face. And even in the new book, the 20th century book, she would seem to be acquiring habits that will make her particularly unattractive when she assumes her place in the family or the community.

We could be wrong, but we think Miss Glass is right. And after the blue jean circuit of colleges in the north it's always a joy to arrive at Sweet Briar, where all 450 girls are lovely to look at because they're tidy, and delightful to talk to because they've good manners.

"TAKE HER DOWN!"

These memorable words appear today for the first time in the upper right hand corner of page one of the main news section of The Tribune. They will appear there daily for several weeks as a reminder of the heroism of our men in this war.

By DELOS AVERY

Comdr. Howard W. Gilmore

TO THE United States navy's rich anthology of heroism there will be added after this war the full story, now partly withheld from publication for strategic reasons, of the man who ordered his own death by giving the command:

"Take her down!"

He was Submarine Comdr. Howard W. Gilmore. He gave his life to save his ship and crew.

Wounded in battle with a Japanese war vessel "somewhere in the Pacific" on a date some time between October, 1942, and the 10th of the following February, Gilmore was on the bridge, helpless, but might have been saved had he been willing to risk his ship for the minute or two it would have taken to carry him below. He would not consider it.

"Take her down!" he said. "That's an order."

This is a degree of heroism which no man can know himself to possess until the test is made. It is the highest heroism, for it is a deliberate gift of the hero's life. It is more than risking, it is electing death.

The submarine which Gilmore commanded had been engaged in raiding Japanese sea power. He had previously won the navy cross and the gold star in lieu of a second cross by daring ventures in which he had sunk 25,936 tons of enemy merchant shipping, sunk two 1,700 ton enemy destroyers at anchor, and damaged a third.

The incident in which Gilmore gave his life was an encounter in which a destroyer caught his submarine on the surface and tried to ram it. The attempt failed and the submarine rammed the destroyer instead, ripping its port side wide open. The destroyer was sinking, but slowly, and it had time to get its guns into action.

It was night, but the searchlights of the destroyer illuminated the submarine and the gunfire was deadly. Two of the submarine crew were killed—Ensign William Wadsworth Williams, 22, of Potter Valley, Cal., and Fireman 3d Class Wilbert Fletcher Kelley, 18, of Port Huron, Mich. They died at their posts.

Gilmore ordered the crew below and saw them enter the hatch. He was to be the last, but just as he was about to leave the bridge he was hit. The wound was completely disabling.

Lt. Comdr. Arnold F. Schade, second in command, wanted to risk the loss of the brief time it would take to have the commander carried below. Discipline directed the contrary, for Gilmore's own sharp order must be obeyed.

The hatch was closed and the submarine submerged, leaving Gilmore to float off the bridge, too helpless to swim.

It was on May 7 that a navy communique tersely described the incident and announced the posthumous award of the congressional medal of honor to Gilmore.

Gilmore in the preceding October had visited his parents at their home in Nashville, Ill., and then returned to duty. His father was notified on Feb. 10 of his death "in action," but never knew how heroic that death had been, for he himself died on March 30, long before the story was made public.

Comdr. Gilmore's widow and two children, Howard Jr., 11, and Vernon Jeane, 6, live in New Orleans.

In June, 1943, the submarine tender U. S. S. Neptune was rechristened the U. S. S. Howard W. Gilmore in honor of the gallant commander.

TO HAVE AND TO HOLD • BUY WAR BONDS THIS CHRISTMAS

THAT KRUPA HOWITZER; A WEEK OF MISCELLANY

RECORDially yours Will Davidson

Gene Krupa . . . patrolling a new beat.

WHEN Gene Krupa brought his 31 piece orchestra into the Hotel Sherman's College Inn several months ago he gave his home town a surprise and a thrill it won't forget for some time. Gene is no novelty in the Sherman. He was the first name brought in when that hotel pepped up its fading College Inn by remodeling it as the Panther room. That he started the room off as the cradle of swing was accidental, since the management didn't know what kind of a band he had. He was so successful, however, that the swing idea clicked and the room since has specialized in the Krupas and Dorseys and Calloways and Ellingtons and Jameses.

But this time Gene had matured. He had become a tremendous showman, a dramatic artist. I won't argue the technical merit of today's great jazz drummers, but there isn't one who can match Gene in showmanship. His entire production is a masterpiece that well could, and should be given concert status. DECCA has cinched a hit for itself by signing Gene to do an album, "New Horizons in Music." Let's hope it includes "Bolero in the Jungle" and "Drum Boogie." The "Bolero" is a development of an old favorite of Gene's. He uses banks of tomtoms manipulated by his brass and reed sections as background and counterpoint for his own tuned tympani. His nine strings do wonderful things to you.

Somebody was asking if there was any book or article detailing the history of jitterbug dancing—not music. Can any one put us on the right track?—W. D.

What brought this up was a flip-over of Gene's fairly recent COLUMBIA release, "Bolero at the Savoy," a foxtrot turned out by his old aggregation. It is still good Krupa, and Anita O'Day's vocal is fitting, but it is pale by comparison with the new Krupa.

The Krupa item was in a pile with some other overlooked singles: Teddy Wilson's nostalgic "Out of Nowhere" (COLUMBIA), backed by a neat "You're My Favorite Memory"; a to-be-treasured VICTOR issue of Fats Waller's "You're Gonna Be Sorry"—"Swingin' Them Jingle Bells"; and HIT'S "Evalina," by Jack Smith's orchestra.

IT'S ALL IN THE POINT OF VIEW

By MAUREEN DALY
(Author of "Seventeenth Summer" and "Smarter and Smoother.")

(Tribune Studio photo.)

"I found out that I could make people like me simply by liking them first."

ALMOST every high school fellow and gal, even the smoothest characters, sings the blues occasionally. Sometimes that mood indigo comes up briefly on a dateless Friday night; sometimes it hits hardest when some other Joe is out having a moonlight and roses evening with your current honey chile; sometimes you feel it when one of the gals turns up at a dance in something red with sequins while you struggle to look like the queen of the May in something of your sister's, twice made over, or if a history exam comes back with a mark in red when you had hoped for at least an A.

Sometimes the gloom lasts just an hour or two, sometimes it drags on for a whole day, and in some cases it sticks with a guy or gal for weeks on end—making everything seem wrong, silly, and second rate. But it happens to the best of them, and, just to exchange encouraging anecdotes about how it feels to be in the off-the-cob department, here's an inside story from a sharp young character who solved her problem this way:

"Just to make the story clear, I'll start at the beginning. Last year I had a bad inferiority complex, and no one who has not experienced that feeling can understand how unhappy one can be. Last year in classes I would fidget with my hands, fuss with my hair, shift my feet till by the time the bell rang I wanted to bolt out the door and hide. I was miserable.

"Once during a school movie I felt so sorry for myself that I cried. Whenever I walked down the hall it seemed a hundred miles long, and I wanted the floor to open up and swallow me every time a boy looked my way. In school now I'm always pleasant to the lowly freshmen (I'm a junior), because I know how they feel. I have never told these things to any one before and am writing them now only because I know others have had the same experience.

"This summer I learned a fortunate lesson. My family went to visit relatives in Kansas. My cousin, who is 17 and already graduated from high school, introduced me to a lot of people, and I had no trouble getting dates and, more important, making them want to come back for more. You see, they liked me before they met me, because of my cousin, and assumed that I liked them because they were her friends. With their including me in everything, I just didn't have a chance to be self-conscious.

"While I was there I began to take stock of myself, and I found out some things. I found out that I could make people like me simply by liking them first; and I could have an interesting personality and an attractive appearance by making the most of what I had. For a long time I had used the old excuse that I didn't have the right clothes to look as attractive as other girls; I worried because my voice sounded queer to me, and I was so self-conscious about not being 'like other girls' that in a conversation I would often stammer and fade out before I finished a sentence, thinking that no one cared what I said anyway. Is it any wonder that I made no friends and others felt ill at ease with me?

"Now things are different. I began by fixing up my clothes and room—nothing fancy, but it is surprising how much one can improve what one already has to make it 'smarter and smoother.' I make my own clothes, except sweaters and skirts, and I'm even learning to knit. I'm getting rid of that old voice trouble by taking oral English and applying what I learn.

"My conversation—the content, I mean—still needs improvement, but I am trying hard, and every day I feel an improvement. I'm joining more clubs, getting to know more people, learning to do more things, and having more fun. In other words, I'm doing what last year I only thought about.

"I used to think that after she reached the point of being popular, well dressed, and poised a gal could just sit back and watch things come her way. But that's not true. You have to work harder than ever before, but it's ever so much more fun. It seems now that there just aren't enough hours in the day to do and say all the things I want to do and say.

"Since I've been back in school this year I've tried to apply all the different things I've mentioned here, and already I notice a difference in others' attitudes toward me. It gives you a cozy feeling down inside to know that people like you and want you around. I'm not expecting miracles to happen, but every day I want to move up a notch in the 'smarter and smoother' department. Last year I just sat idle and dreamed of being the most popular girl in the class; this year I didn't aim so high, but am enjoying each day as it comes along. I am almost 17, but I still have a long time to work on myself.

"If there was just one thing to say to those girls who feel as I felt a year ago it would be, 'Don't give up.' You just can't if you want to get anywhere. That doesn't mean gritting your teeth and saying: 'They can't lick me; I'll fight back.' It means learning to coöperate in work and friendship.

"Watch those people whom you consider smooth; see how they dress, how they act, what they say; and then apply what suits your own case. Don't be a copy cat, but develop your own assets. You have them whether you think so or not. Make each day better than the one before—it does no good to sit back wishing."

Well, that's the story, morning-glory. It comes first hand from a gal who took her own problem under observation and found a solution to this business of being on the outside looking in. There is nothing unattractive in your personality or appearance which you cannot remedy if you try.

Think yourself over and then carry on from there. You are supposed to get fun out of living; you are already in high school, so now is the time to begin—after all, how long can a girl go on dreaming?

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: My brother-in-law is with the army signal corps in Burma now. While he was stationed near Jorhat, India, he saw several movies that were presented to the troops in the evenings. One of these movies was "The Prisoner of Zenda." Maybe it was a good picture ages ago, but why inflict it on the boys when there are so many new pictures that should be shown to them first? Sometimes also the film being shown is a sad war picture full of suffering and gore. Why should they be shown that as entertainment when they live with it all day? Of course I realize that for the greatest part they do get the best. "Two Girls and a Sailor," with Van Johnson, would be ideal and solid entertainment for the service men. Yours very truly,
KATHRYN SCHLESINGER.

Dear Miss Schlesinger: There are a number of good pictures going overseas; some of them are so new that they have not been released in the States as yet. However, as you say, there are some undesirable ones going over, too. Perhaps some one in the movie industry will see your letter and take a hint.

Dear Miss Tinée: Hollywood is looking for a double of Will Rogers. There is a man who looks like Will, and he was in Hollywood last summer. More than a score of people recognized him, thinking they had seen a ghost. At Will's ranch visitors who knew Will got frightened when he stood at the ranch door.

Red Brown

His name is Red Brown, and he intends to go as an entertainer in night clubs. He asked me to send you his photo. He is a dead ringer for Will; no makeup is necessary. M. M.

Dear M. M.: Thank you for the picture. He certainly does look like Will Rogers, doesn't he?

Dear Miss Tinée: How can I find out when the picture "Secrets of a Nurse" played at the Oriental theater? The picture was with Edmund Lowe and Dick Foran. I'd like to know what week it played the Oriental. It's important that I know when this film played; can you find out for me?
ELEANORE JOHNSON.

Dear Miss Johnson: I sure can. The film "Secrets of a Nurse" was reviewed in The Tribune on Dec. 27, 1938, and played at the Oriental during that week.

Dear Miss Tinée: A lot of my friends and I read The Tribune. We're crazy about the comic strip "Brenda Starr, Reporter," by Dale Messick. Would it be possible that a movie could be made of Brenda? It certainly would be wonderful.
LORRAINE.

Dear Lorraine: Hollywood is away ahead of you. There is a film now in production based on Brenda's experiences. It is being made by Columbia Pictures and will be released in the near future.

YOU'RE GUILTY! IF GUMLINE CAVITIES INJURE TEETH LIKE THIS

8 IN 10 ADULTS RUN THIS RISK

Coast to Coast Reports from Dentists Show

See that cavity in the tooth above? Popular dentifrices grind in cavities like this! A nation-wide study—conducted by dentists—among their own patients—shows that over half of all adults—MEN AND WOMEN—had these cavities . . . and 8 in 10 risked getting them.

The reason is simple. As we grow older, gums recede—exposing parts of our teeth 25 times softer than tooth enamel. The polishing agent (abrasive in dentifrices) cuts grooves in these softer parts.

But you can clean your teeth—and do it safely—if you follow the sensible advice given below.

It's time you found out why only Teel, of all leading dentifrices, protects teeth from this damage.

You may be the next victim of these ugly gumline cavities! And it doesn't matter where you live—what you eat—whether you are man or woman! For dentists all across the country—working on hundreds of different types of patients—have all found the same disturbing condition.

Their reports show that 8 in every 10 adults risk this serious damage to their teeth by scouring them with abrasives!

Yes—what you put on your toothbrush, the very cleansing agent with which you hope to improve the appearance of your teeth—may cause ugly cavities like the one above! And, it's the teeth in the front of your mouth that get damaged most!

Only TEEL, of all leading dentifrices, protects your teeth from this damage. For TEEL is based on a new idea—cleans teeth without abrasives—brightens teeth safely.

Simply brush your teeth daily with TEEL—and once a week, for an extra minute, brush with TEEL and plain baking soda. You'll like the way TEEL leaves your mouth tingling and refreshed—your breath sweetened. Start the TEEL way today. It may add extra years of beauty to your smile!

HERE'S ALL YOU DO

1. Brush your teeth every day with TEEL. (Dentists recommend two minutes for a thorough brushing.) A few drops on dry or moistened brush.

2. Once a week brush teeth with TEEL and plain baking soda for three minutes. Just one extra minute a week—the safe TEEL way.

Graphic Little Theater presents "Winged Victory"

2 Pinkie is sure he'll pass the tests once the boys are called into service, and he helps keep up the spirits of the anxious boys.

3 During their training the boys get occasional time off, and whenever possible they spend it with their wives and sweethearts.

4 The arduous tests over, one hurdle remains—the classification board. Pinkie is told that he has been washed out because of an eye defect. He'll never be a pilot.

5 The others, however, win their wings and are graduated in a thrilling ceremony—the high point in an aviation cadet's life. Pinkie carries on, even tho he can't be a pilot, by winning the wings of a gunner.

6 Lt. Bobby Grills, one of the new pilots, goes home to marry his childhood sweetheart, but their honeymoon is cut short by his orders to report for duty.

7 Back at his base he meets his crew and finds that Pinkie is a member. They christen their bomber Winged Victory.

8 Months of combat duty against the Japs are broken occasionally by entertainment at the base. Here three G. I.'s impersonate the singing Andrews sisters.

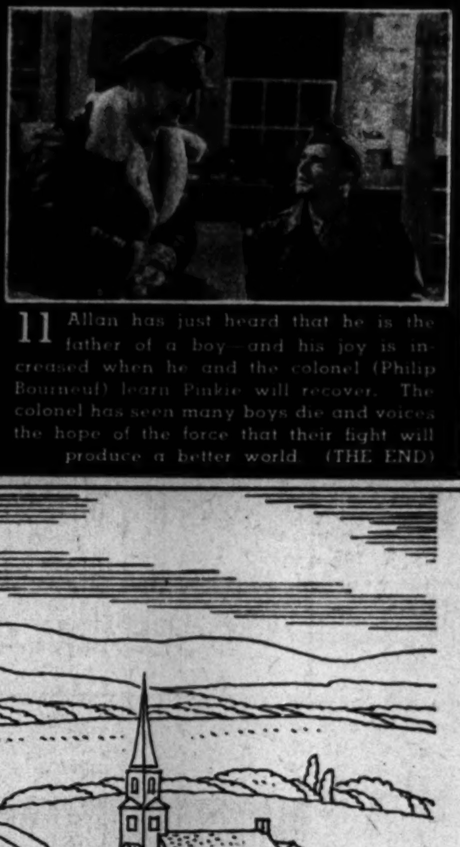
10 The show is broken up, however, by a Jap air raid. During the air battle Pinkie is badly wounded.



11 Allan has just heard that he is the father of a boy—and his joy is increased when he and the colonel (Philip Bourneuf) learn Pinkie will recover. The colonel has seen many boys die and voices the hope of the force that their fight will produce a better world. (THE END)

Cats in Art

● No one knows when man first domesticated cats, but their history as pets is long and honorable. Today thousands of cat owners in the middle west are celebrating the 45th anniversary of the Beresford Cat Club of America by attending the 45th annual show in the Midland hotel, Chicago. Several hundred pedigreed cats, representing all recognized breeds, are being shown and judged. The pictures on this page represent several of the breeds.

Van Johnson

IF EVER Van Johnson needed proof that he has friends he got it not so long ago when he was critically injured in an automobile accident. Hollywood, sometimes criticized for indifference, stood by the redhead. Van pulled thru, and you'll see him soon in "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo." But it wasn't the only tough sledding in his life. The Newport, R. I., kid was a song-and-dance man from high school days on. In 1937 he went to New York and suffered the hardships most young actors do. A series of rugged efforts landed him in the Chicago lead of "Too Many Girls." Hollywood found him soon after he had taken a role in the play "Pal Joey."

Last Call for Fruit Cake!

By MARY MEADE

IF YOU WANT fruit cake for Christmas you'd better make it this week without fail, for fruit cake is at its best only after several weeks of ripening. Many cakemakers bake fruit cakes in early October in order to let them ripen and take on more flavor over a period of several months.

Most of the fruit cake recipes which have appeared in my column this season were for large cakes. Here's one proportioned for a small family; bake the cake in a tube pan or in two medium-sized loaves.

WINE FRUIT CAKE
(About 4½ pounds)

1 cup margarine
2 cups sugar
2¾ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
1½ teaspoons nutmeg
1 teaspoon mace
7 eggs, well beaten
½ cup muscatel, tokay, angelica, or any dessert wine
2 cups raisins
1 cup shredded citron
½ cup shredded candied lemon peel
½ cup shredded candied orange peel
1 cup candied pineapple, cut fine
¼ cup candied cherries, cut fine
2 cups chopped nuts
1 teaspoon almond extract

Cream margarine until very soft; add sugar gradually, beating mixture until light after each addition. Mix and sift all dry ingredients, including flour, salt, baking powder, and spices. Add the beaten eggs to creamed mixture, beating until fluffy. Then add wine, fruits, nuts, and extract. Add dry ingredients last. Mix well and turn into greased pan lined with greased brown paper. Bake in a 300 degree oven. Place a pan of water in the oven to provide moisture so that the cake won't dry out too much. Bake about 2 hours for cake in tube pan and about 1½ hours for loaves. Cool slightly, remove from pan, peel off paper, and cool on cake rack. To store, wrap cooled cake in cloth moistened with wine, then in wax paper. Store in baking pan and place in covered crock or other container. Keep wrapping cloth moist by sprinkling more wine over it occasionally.

Chicken aspic is another holiday treat. It may be made from chicken simmered especially for it, or from left-over roast chicken or turkey, with meat stock or chicken bouillon.

CHICKEN ASPIC
(Five to six cup loaf pan)

1 quart well seasoned chicken stock
2½ tablespoons plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
3 tablespoons strained lemon juice,
8 slices cooked chicken (or turkey)
1 cup cooked peas
1 cup celery, finely diced
½ pimiento, cut in strips or fancy shapes
Celery salt, salt, pepper, ginger

Clarify chicken stock: Stir 1 slightly beaten egg white and the crushed eggshell into the cooled stock. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Simmer for 5 minutes and strain thru a double thickness of cheesecloth. Season stock well to taste by adding celery salt, ginger, salt, and cayenne. Meanwhile soften gelatin in the ¼ cup cold water. Heat remaining stock, add gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Cool and add lemon juice. Pour enough stock mixture into oiled mold to make a thin layer. Chill until firm. Arrange 4 slices chicken and several pieces of pimiento on chilled layer. Add enough stock mixture to just cover chicken and chill until firm. Repeat chicken and stock layers; chill again until firm. Mix peas, celery (adding ⅛ teaspoon salt), and remaining stock, which should be cold enough to be sirupy. Arrange as last layer. Chill overnight. Slice and serve plain or with mayonnaise. About 10 ¾-inch slices may be cut from this loaf.

Christmas fruit cake needs to be ripened: make it now so that its flavor will be fine at holiday time.

WHEN Abraham Lincoln was shot at Ford's theater in Washington it was not the first time he faced gunfire.

In the summer of 1864 a Confederate army moved against the capital city, and the President rode out from the White House to Fort Stevens to watch the attack and defense. He mounted a parapet and stood beside the Union commander, General Wright, who first begged and then commanded him to step down.

AMERICANA

Odds and ends from the notebook of one who delves into the American scene

By DELOS AVERY

"It's dangerous up here," said Wright.

"No more dangerous for me than for you," Lincoln retorted.

"If you don't get down, Mr. President, I'll have you removed under guard," Wright threatened.

Bullets were flying near, and the President, being the tallest man in sight, probably was in greater danger than any one else. But Wright's threat to call the guard was not executed. Wright, after all, was only the commander, while Lincoln was the commander's commander.

There was, however, a younger officer who was more peremptory than Wright. His name was Oliver Wendell Holmes. He shouted to his commander in chief:

"Get down, you damn fool!"

Just then an army surgeon standing near the President received a bullet wound, and Lincoln did step down—possibly because his conspicuous figure was causing almost as much danger to the others as to himself.

There is a bronze tablet marking the spot where the episode took place.

Look up the history of prisons some time in the Britannica and you will discover one of the reasons why England found it so vexatious to be the loser in the War of the American Revolution. The encyclopedia's article on prisons was written by Evelyn J. Ruggles-Brise, and it includes this paragraph:

"The loss of the American colonies closed the field for the deportation of the criminal classes."

Up to that time England had not felt the need for any special prisons to hold her permanently undesirables. It was cheaper to ship them to the colonies and forget them. And it was not until 1788 that a new place to send them was established, a penal station at Port Jackson, Australia.

The late "Ike" Hoover, chief usher at the White House, records in his book, "Forty-two Years in the White House," the fact that Franklin D. Roosevelt was the first President-elect who ever made a formal visit to the executive mansion in the period between election and inauguration. All the others were content to wait until the regular moving-in day, which used to mean an interval of about four months. What Ike did not know was that F. D. R., after breaking the pre-inauguration tradition, would break another by being a longer-stayer than any other President—thus far.

There's no reason in the world why an American President, no matter how poor he may be when elected, should not get rich on the job by the harmless process of merely collecting used postage stamps. The value of Franklin D. Roosevelt's collection was recently estimated at $1,000,000, and while it is true that he started his hobby when he was a little boy, his biggest opportunity came with his election. He is entitled, naturally, to the stamps that come on mail addressed to his official family. So the state department has been saving the best of them for him.

The people of one southern state, Virginia, came out of the Civil war politically richer than before—with four United States senators instead of two to represent them. The state was split, West Virginia being sliced out of the original area and thus winning two senators for itself.

Romantic Figures of American History

The illustration above, by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Varnak, is another of the series appearing currently in this section with biographical sketches.

OF ALL the Union generals of the Civil war Ulysses S. Grant was the most successful and contributed the most to the winning of the war. His record as a military leader made him so popular that twice he was elected President. He had numerous admirable and lovable traits. He was by nature kind and generous, and he possessed a strong sense of justice. He is remembered as one of the great heroes of the nation.

Grant was born at Point Pleasant, O., April 27, 1822, and christened Hiram Ulysses. When he entered the military academy at West Point in 1839 he was registered as Ulysses Simpson Grant, the name by which he has been known ever since.

He served with distinction in the Mexican war, seeing action at the battles of Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterrey, Vera Cruz, Cerro Gordo, Churubusco, Molina del Rey, and Chapultepec. In 1854 he resigned his commission as a captain, dwelling thereafter until the outbreak of the Civil war first in St. Louis and then in Galena, Ill.

His ability as a leader was recognized soon after the Civil war began. Commissioned colonel of the 21st Illinois regiment, he was elevated not long afterward to a brigadier general of volunteers. On Nov. 7, 1861, he fought his first battle as a commander at Belmont, Mo. Placed at the head of a sizable force of troops early in 1862, he won a brilliant success at Fort Donelson, capturing 15,000 Confederates, and was promoted to major general of volunteers.

On April 6, 1862, his Army of the Tennessee was surprised and badly mauled at the battle of Shiloh, but Grant, with the aid of Buell's Army of the Ohio, turned defeat into victory there after two days of desperate fighting. Shiloh is regarded as a Union victory from the fact that the Confederates were the first to retire from the battlefield. After the Union victories at Iuka and Corinth in the autumn of 1862 Grant conducted an advance on Vicksburg, which failed with the reverses at Holly Springs and Chickasaw Bayou.

Remaining with his army in the vicinity of Vicksburg, he opened a new campaign to take that important Mississippi river position, and after 10 weeks of maneuvering and fighting obtained, on July 4, 1863, the surrender of the city with nearly 30,000 Confederate troops. As a reward he was made a major general of the regular army.

After the Union defeat at Chickamauga, Grant was ordered to Chattanooga and placed in command of four armies concentrated there. On Nov. 25, 1863, he decisively defeated the enemy in the Chattanooga area.

Put in supreme command of all the Union forces, he was made a lieutenant general in March, 1864, and soon afterward established his headquarters in the field with the Army of the Potomac. He decided to throw his strength against Lee's Army of Northern Virginia and keep fighting until the enemy surrendered. After two months of bitter fighting, with heavy losses, Grant's forces reached positions before Richmond and Petersburg. From the battlefield at Spotsylvania he sent this message to Washington:

"I purpose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer."

Thru weary months he refused to relax his hold in Lee's army. Moreover, he kept in close touch with Union forces in other theaters. In the end Lee surrendered at Appomattox, the Confederate resistance collapsed in other quarters, and the war was over. In July, 1866, the grade of general was created for Grant.

At the Republican convention in Chicago in May, 1868, Grant was nominated for the Presidency on the first ballot. He won the succeeding election by 214 electoral votes to 80 for Horatio Seymour. In his first administration the 15th amendment to the Constitution, giving the Negroes equal voting rights with the whites, was ratified, and the treaty of Washington was negotiated, settling a number of disputes with Great Britain.

In 1872 Grant was reëlected by an overwhelming majority. The most important events of his second administration were his veto in 1874 of the inflation bill, which would have deflated the currency, and the passage in 1875 of the resumption act, which provided for a return to the redemption of paper money with gold or silver.

Some of his friends tried to procure for him a third term as President, but he was defeated for the nomination at the Republican convention in Chicago in June, 1880.

Moving to New York City to live in 1881, he became a partner in a banking firm. Inexperienced in financial affairs, he did not realize that two of his partners had been perpetrating frauds. When the company failed Grant was left penniless. To provide funds for his family he began writing his "Personal Memoirs." These he completed four days before his death, which occurred at Mount M'Gregor, near Saratoga, N. Y., July 23, 1885.

The Great Train Robbery!

traced to Canada, where Anderson claimed the rights of a British citizen, and there was a bit of difficulty before extradition could be arranged. Canada yielded finally after receiving assurances from the United States government that the men would receive adequate protection and a fair trial. They did not get adequate protection, and they got no trial at all.

For safe keeping they were taken to New Albany, Ind., on the southern boundary of Indiana, across the Ohio river from Louisville, Ky. New Albany had a jail of which it was proud—steel cell block, a crew of guards, sheriff in residence on the premises.

The federal government apparently was satisfied, altho there had been plenty of plain warnings that the vigilance committee intended to act and that it had a membership of 500 "of the best people."

The Chicago Tribune's first story of the lynching at New Albany appeared on Monday morning, Dec. 14, the day after the hanging. These were the headlines:

LYNCH LAW

A Midnight Raid on the New Albany Jail

Hanging of the Three Brothers Reno and Charles Anderson

End of the Seymour (Ind.) Express Robbers

The story told how a "train of mystery," consisting of a locomotive and one passenger car, pulled into New Albany between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning, having started from Jeffersonville, less than 10 miles away. It stopped at Pearl street, and "between 70 and 75 well dressed men wearing red masks stepped out." They were armed with revolvers, clubs, ropes, and slingshots. And they had a thoroly considered plan.

As they marched to the jail they posted patrols along the way to make sure there would be no interference with their retreat after their task was accomplished.

Outside the jail they posted guards and look-outs. Then they attacked the jail, going first to the sheriff's office, where they found one lone guard, Luther Whittier, whom they roped to his chair. Two or three other guards were then encountered and overpowered. And a group of half a dozen "committeemen" went to a bedroom occupied by the sheriff and his wife.

The sheriff, whose name was Fullenlove, came to the door in shirt and drawers, no slippers.

"Hand over your keys," he was ordered, "or we'll shoot."

"Go ahead and shoot," he said, slamming the door and making for a window. He reached the jail yard and confronted half a dozen pistols. Trying to cross the yard to the outer gate, he got a bullet wound in the arm. Then he was knocked down and placed under guard.

"But don't hurt him—he's the sheriff and doing his duty," one of the masked men ordered.

The keys were found and the mob went to the cell block, where a guard threatened to shoot, but decided against it when told he would be hanged if he interfered.

The four hangings took only a few minutes. Simeon Reno was first, then Anderson, then Frank and William Reno. They were hanged from the steel structure of the cell block, "one in each corner." A reporter who saw the bodies later telegraphed The Tribune:

"The sight was one we pray God we may never again be called upon to witness."

Back from the jail to their waiting "mystery train," picking up their patrols along the way, and pausing once to give directions for proper care of the sheriff's bullet wound, went the committee, and the train moved away in the darkness. One newspaper account says it showed neither headlight nor tail light.

A quarter of a century later in a magazine article (McClure's, May, 1895) Cleveland Moffett said the Reno brothers had begun their criminal activity as "bounty jumpers" in the Civil war. He described them as "fierce-hearted, dashing young fellows, all well built, handsome boys."

The Renos not only defied the law but undertook to prevent "outsiders" from violating it, much as rival gangs of bootleggers in the prohibition era used to claim exclusive lawbreaking rights in their chosen territories.

Once when strangers committed a $6,000 robbery in Reno territory the Renos robbed the robbers of the loot and then helped send the intruders to prison.

Some boys and girls become interested in showing dogs in children's handling classes. Here is Dolores Lundgren, Chicago, working on her patient wire-haired fox terrier as she tries to pose him for a judge.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

IN CHOOSING a puppy many families always are puzzled about which breed to get. There are others who have their minds made up on the breed and can't decide between a male and a female. Sometimes a father would like to get a combination companion and hunting dog. The other day we received a letter from a father who wants to give his son a puppy for Christmas—one he could use as a hunter after it grows up.

There are more than 100 recognized breeds from which to choose a puppy, as well as a few unrecognized ones, such as the little toy smooth terrier and the spitz. With but few exceptions every breed from a little terrier to a Great Dane likes children and will become a real pal to a youngster. The important things to keep in mind when choosing a breed are these: Do you have enough room to handle a large, placid breed or a medium-sized, active dog, or would it be better for the whole family to choose a rather small breed which requires less room in the house and the car? Another point which families often overlook in picking a Christmas puppy is this: Long-haired and wiry-coated dogs must be groomed oftener than smooth-coated breeds. Too often the question of temperament in breeds is overlooked. Every pup is irresistible to a child or the whole family, so sometimes a breed is chosen which isn't ideal for an active, growing boy or girl.

As to whether the Christmas pup should be a male or female, you'll find dog owners divided on the merits of the two as pets. We wouldn't be too partial to males if it is possible to keep a female in the home. It is true that there are certain disadvantages in owning a female dog. We know of these inconveniences because we now own two female dogs. Most families find that these disadvantages are such that they vote for male dogs only. But the female is so devoted, has so many maternal instincts in her relationship to children, is cleaner, and stays around the home so much better, that if any family finds it can take the proper care of a female we always recommend that it buy one. This year a family may not have much choice when they look at puppies, for there won't be as many pups for sale as there were before the war. That's why a family should start shopping now.

That Christmas Puppy

● No animal domesticated by man and made his companion brings so much good cheer and devotion into the home as the dog. The dog loves man. It seems to be a love that is not conscious, but rather a mysterious impulse. And there is in man something that holds the dog fast.

● The deep understanding between man and the dog is exemplified if not exalted in the relationship that exists between a puppy and a child. Puppies love children, and nearly every youngster finds a comical, playful little pup a never-ending source of pleasure. As a puppy matures it gives each member of the family affection and fidelity without equal in the animal kingdom. That is why a puppy makes such a wonderful Christmas gift. Moreover, the little dog which is brought into the home at Christmas as a pal for the children may become a guard dog that saves a life or outwits a burglar before another holiday season comes.

In buying a Christmas puppy there is one thing that the purchaser should not fail to look for in a pup—confidence or boldness. Take the puppy that is clear eyed, well boned, and active and comes right up to you. If you are intrigued by such a dog, remove it from the kennel and put it down outside or anywhere away from the rest of the litter to see if it still keeps interested in you and your surroundings. It's to be expected that some 8, 10, or 12 week old puppies may be a little frightened by new surroundings or strange noises. That is just juvenile timidity. But the cringing, pathetic pup that crawls on his stomach and shows a marked tendency to be deathly afraid of everybody and everything is usually a shy one that may never become a normal dog.

The understanding that exists between a dog and a child is illustrated in this picture, taken during a children's handling class at a recent dog show. Robert Andree, Rensselaer, Ind., is the handler.

Softer, Smoother Skin

with just

One Cake of Camay!

Actual tests by doctors prove—Camay is Really Mild!

The magic of a softer, more radiant complexion can be yours . . . with just one cake of Camay! Yes, you can have lovelier skin as quickly as that when you change from improper care to the Camay Mild-Soap Diet. Doctors tested this care on over 100 complexions. And with the first cake of Camay, most complexions sparkled with fresh new radiance, looked more sweetly soft.

...it cleanses without irritation

In these tests, you see proof of Camay's mildness . . . proof it can benefit skin! "Camay is really mild," said the doctors, "it cleansed without irritation." Surely you can expect Camay to bring striking improvement to your own complexion . . . so start with this mild beauty care tonight.

Go on the Camay Mild-Soap Diet

Take just one minute, night and morning. Cream Camay's mild lather over your face—nose, chin. Rinse warm. If your skin's oily, add a C-O-L-D splash. With your first cake of Camay, you'll see the enchanting new beauty of your skin.

Mrs. Kenneth Bryan Neal
NEW YORK CITY

"I'm devoted to the Camay Mild-Soap Diet," confides this lovely bride. "My very first cake of Camay brought such delicate new softness to my skin."

Precious materials go into Camay—it's patriotic to make each cake last and last. Enlist all your family in a soap-saving campaign. Soap waste is war waste.

"We're coming through with flying colors—because I'm onto TWICE the Wear with Ivory Flakes Care!"

"I BOMBARD DADDY WITH V-MAIL," says Air Force wife Mrs. Edward Edwardson, Jr., of Hillside, New Jersey. "Out there in the Pacific he gets mighty hungry for news of our adorable twins. What an active little pair they are, too. Don't leave me with any time on my hands! Certainly not for hunting up expensive, hard-to-find new clothes. So, when Mother put me wise to twice the wear with Ivory Flakes care, I was tickled silly!

"ALWAYS THINK TWICE before you put your precious washables in anything but lukewarm water and Ivory Flakes," cautions Mrs. Edwardson. It doesn't make sense to treat things roughly with the wrong kind of soap. Specially since wash tests galore on kiddies' clothes, housecoats, dresses, sweaters prove you get as much as twice the wear with Ivory Flakes care! So give all your washables—blouses, linens, slipcovers the same gentle treatment. Don't stop at just your stockings and girdles.

"MAKE IVORY FLAKES LAST LONGER, TOO," says Mrs. Edwardson. "Even a small amount of Ivory Flakes makes mountains of rich, kind-to-colors suds. So don't waste any. The flake form of baby's mild Ivory (like all soap) uses vital war materials."

STRANGLE HOLD

. . . BY THE DEEP SEA ARM

IN the sad early days of the war when our fleet lay bleeding in Pearl Harbor,

. . . when a pagan and treacherous enemy spilled out of his homeland and overwhelmed the rich and peaceful islands of the South Seas, filling a shuddering world with horror,

. . . when our stunned and outnumbered forces retreated before him,

. . . even then, when our cause looked dark indeed, U. S. submarines began to exact their secret toll of Jap ships.

Transports, heavy with Nip troops flushed with the pride of conquest, disappeared from the face of the deep. Formidable enemy warships—aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers—were stalked and sunk.

Our fleet of submarines, small at the time, but manned by free men animated by a hot and righteous anger, wrought deeds of defensive warfare that will live in history.

Now the tide of war has changed. The swollen, stolen yellow empire is shrinking.

Sleek U. S. submarines that once so effectively covered our retreat are now in far greater numbers spearheading our assault. The tally of their sinkings now stands at 761. And it has been announced by the very highest naval official source that—

"Submarines deserve the lion's share of the credit for knocking the props from under Japan's conquest."

No one weapon nor any single nation, would presume to claim all the glory that will come to the team of fighting nations and weapons after victory is won. But, for the opportunity we have had to build so many of the submarines now in the U. S. Navy, we are grateful and proud.

SKILL IS A TRADITION

The submarine service has been an indispensable arm of the U. S. Navy since 1900. After Pearl Harbor, when the call came suddenly and without warning for large numbers of additional subs to strangle Jap supply lines, Electric Boat was ready with skill and craftsmanship that had become traditional during 45 years of continuous submarine manufacture. That same skill, streamlined by heavy production demands, is now at its peak of efficiency to keep subs sliding down the ways for victory and post-war security.

DOCTORS PROVE
2 out of 3 women can have Lovelier Skin in 14 Days

14-Day Palmolive Plan tested on 1285 women with all types of skin!

"My complexion had lost its soft, smooth look," says Mrs. Stanley Nash of Rego Park, N.Y. "So I said 'yes' when I was invited to try the new 14-Day Palmolive Plan—along with 1284 other women of all ages—from fifteen to fifty! My group reported to a New York skin doctor. Some of us had dry skins; some oily; some average. After a careful examination, we were given the Palmolive Plan to use at home for 14 days.

"Here's the Palmolive Plan: I washed my face 3 times a day with Palmolive Soap. Then—each time—for a full 60 seconds—massaged onto my skin Palmolive's lovely soft lather, as you would a cream. Then rinsed. This cleansing massage brought my skin the full, beautifying effect of Palmolive's lather. After 14 days, my doctor agreed my skin was brighter, fresher, cleaner. You must try this wonderful plan!"

IT'S NEW! IT'S BIG! BATH SIZE PALMOLIVE!
Use it for tub or shower. Solid. Thrifty. Long lasting. And how a man enjoys its rich, generous lather!

DOCTORS PROVE PALMOLIVE'S BEAUTY RESULTS!

Less oiliness, Less dryness!

"Less oily," says Helen Anthony of Detroit. "Less dry!" says Angel Delia of New Orleans. Of the 1285 women who tested the new 14-Day Palmolive Plan, 696 had too oily or too dry skins to start, according to examining doctors. But at the end of 14 days, 566 of these women actually showed definite, positive gains.

Finer texture, Better tone!

Grace Stone of Boston reported finer texture after trying the Palmolive Plan for just 14 days! The 36 doctors reported 63% of all the women gained better texture . . . 65% gained better tone. Reason enough for every woman who longs for a lovelier complexion to start this new proved way of using Palmolive!

Smoother! Fewer blemishes!

"Skin smoother!" reports Helen Brooks of St. Louis. "Fewer blemishes!" says Loretta Mártin of San Francisco. The 36 doctors found gratifying evidence of increased smoothness in almost two-thirds of the women who tested the 14-Day Palmolive Plan. And more than half of the skins had fewer blemishes.

Fresher, Clearer color!

"Skin fresher!" reports Pauline Young of Chicago, listing her complexion's gains from testing the 14-Day Palmolive Plan. The 36 examining doctors report this same important improvement for 2 skins out of 3 among the 1285 women. See if this Plan won't bring you fresher skin—and in only 14 days!

Read why Bayer Aspirin's 2-second test is a good thing to remember when you want the fastest relief possible from headache, neuritic or neuralgic pain

The best laid plans for work or for fun can be ruined by the misery of an ordinary headache—or the tormenting pains of neuritis or neuralgia. And since most of us are subject to such discomforts at one time or another, it pays to remember how to get really fast relief.

Amazing Speed...

No tablet can start to relieve these pains any faster than it dissolves in your stomach. And Bayer Aspirin starts to dissolve or disintegrate in as little as 2 seconds! As a result, Bayer Aspirin provides relief in a remarkable hurry. To prove this, simply drop a Bayer tablet in a glass of water and "clock" its disintegrating action. What you see is what happens in your stomach—and the story your stopwatch tells is the reason why millions who seek the fastest relief possible rely on Bayer Aspirin.

Proved Dependability...

There's another reason, too, why Bayer Aspirin is so highly recommended for pain relief. And that's its dependability. For over forty years, Bayer Aspirin has been used to fight pain in literally millions of normal cases—and has given swift, sure comfort without even a trace of unpleasant reaction.

That's why, for fast and dependable relief, the thing to do is buy by name. Never ask for "aspirin" alone. Ask for BAYER Aspirin—and be sure!

Because the cookies aren't all he'll see. There's something in a picture of you turning out feathery-light biscuits and delicious hot muffins and juicy apple pies that's pretty alluring and comfortable.

And you'll come through on his picture of you with flying colors — because you're smart enough to learn that there's one flour you can depend on: Ceresota.

Here's why: Gluten is the secret of springy "stay-up" dough. And every bag of Ceresota you buy has just the right amount of the right kind of gluten to help give you marvelous dough quality.

So off to the grocer's with you this minute! Ask for Ceresota — and expect your wedding marching orders pretty soon.

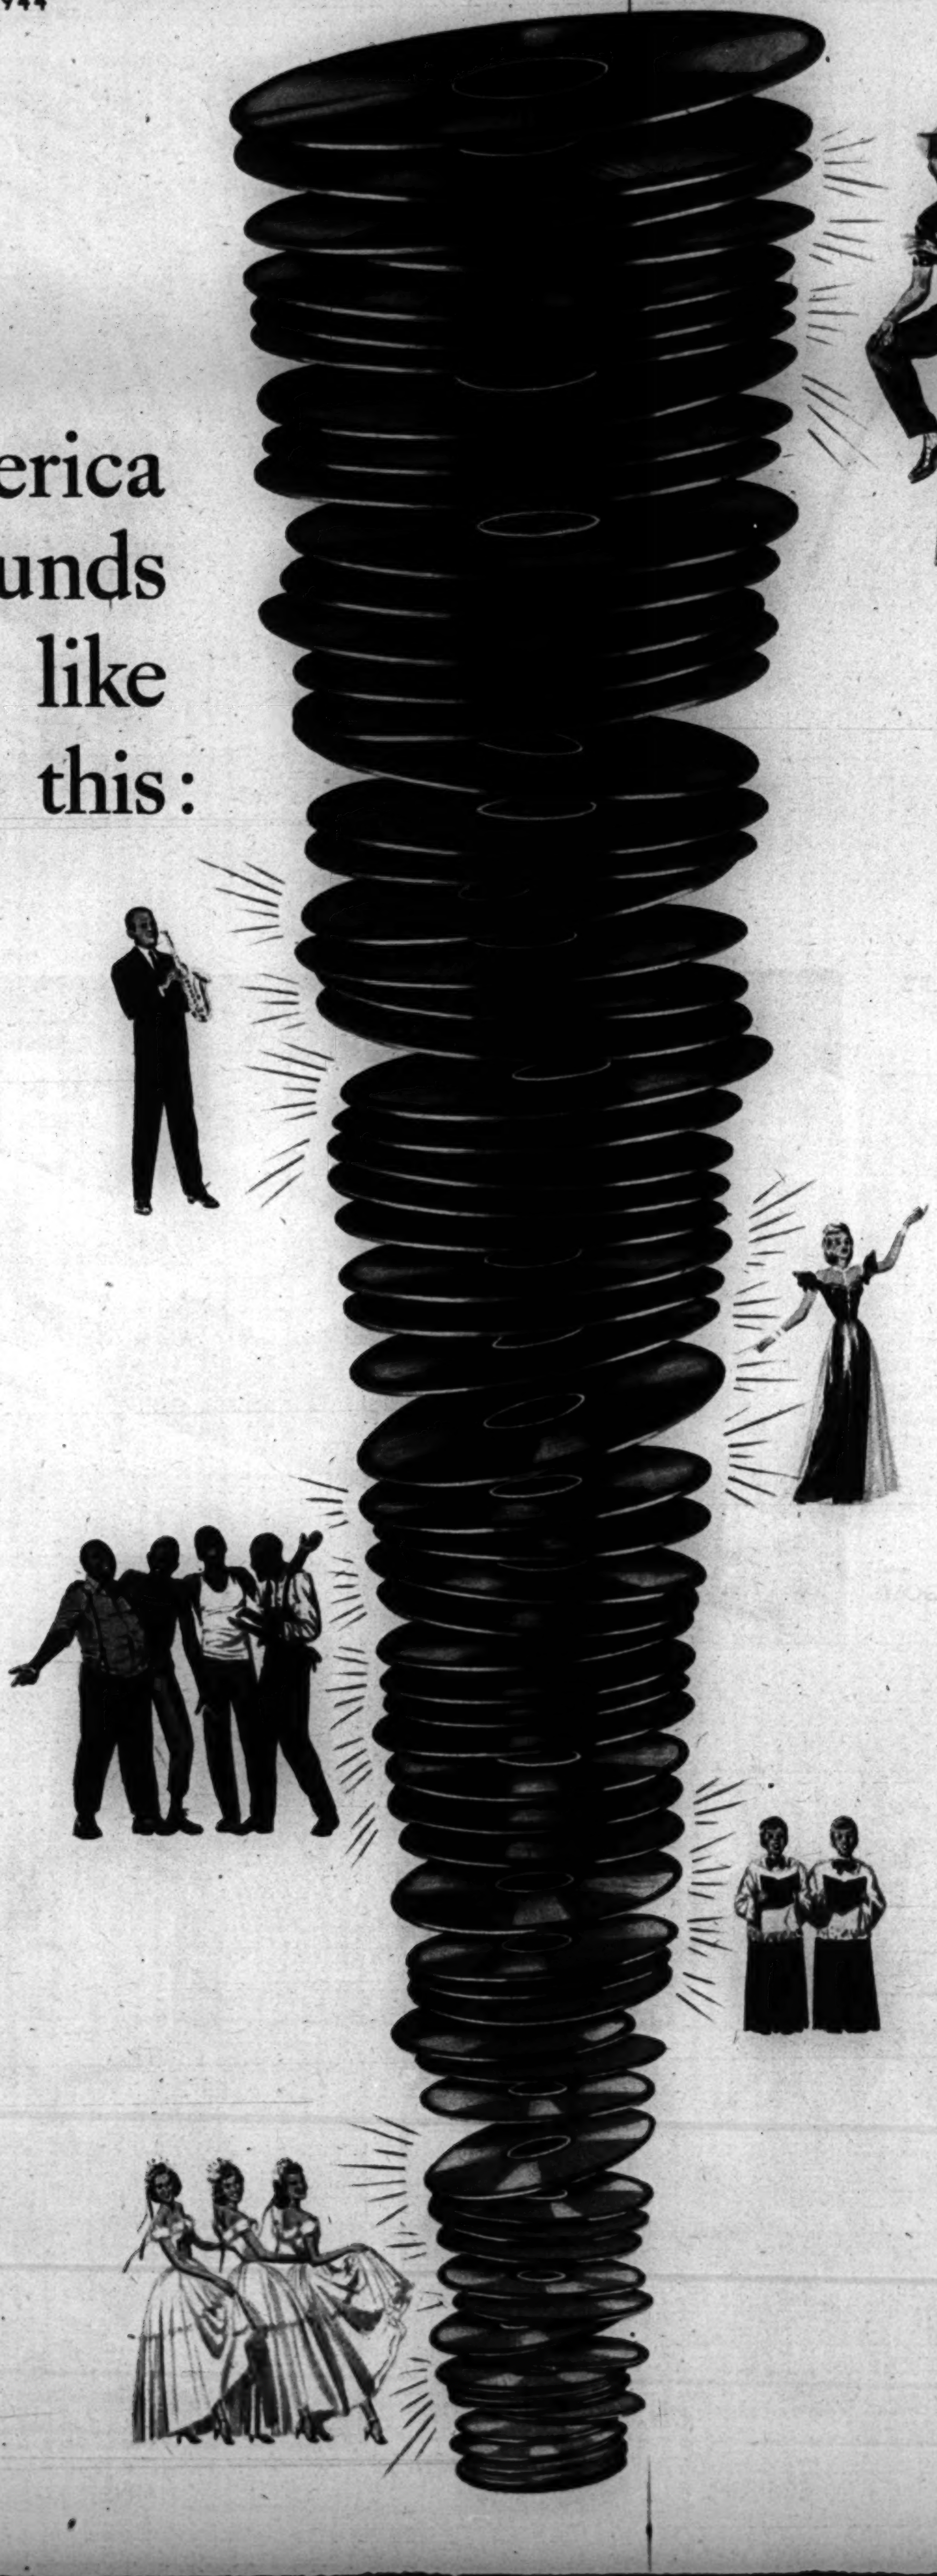
America sounds like this:



A little over ten years ago we began . . . with modest capital, lots of enterprise, and a big idea.

The idea was this:

Our people, we believed, wanted to hear the sounds of America . . . living, vibrant, working, laughing, playing America. Certainly we liked the traditional classical music inherited from Europe. But it had been recorded time and again. Where was the voice of the western plains? The warm rhythms of the South? The songs of the herdsman, the mountaineer, the worker?

We decided America wanted to hear itself stretch and grow and sing and laugh. Decca set itself to this task.

We have recorded the love for the land, the reverence for the flag, the joy of our people. You will find them in thousands of Decca records and albums such as "Carmen Jones". . . "Snow White". . . "Ballad for Americans" by Bing Crosby . . . "This is the Army". . . "Winged Victory". . . and "Longways," an album of square dances with calls.

We have also recorded the rhythms of our good neighbors to the South of us . . . the songs of the Mexican Rancheros . . . the rhumbas of Havana . . . the ballads of the Calypsos in Trinidad . . . the folk songs of Latin America.

We have great plans for the future. We shall record works other than music . . . great poetry . . . excerpts from great dramas, in the voices of famous artists such as Ronald Colman, Charles Laughton, Frederic March, Herbert Marshall, Thomas Mitchell and Orson Welles. Through Decca records, these artists shall become teachers too . . . teachers of poetry and literature to our children.

Consideration for the listener will rule our recordings. If it is a song, you hear every word of the lyric . . . if a dance, you hear pure, dance-able rhythm from beginning to end.

That's the way America likes it.

Local Business Man Retires Because of Lost Hearing

Edward D. Wilk, well-known sales promotional executive, was compelled to retire from an active business career because of a progressive hearing loss, and remained in retirement for some time.

Today, Mr. Wilk finds himself again an active, energetic, driving executive as of former years. Recently in a talk before a group of prominent Chicago business men, Mr. Wilk said in substance: "Through the miracle of modern science I have regained an amazing part of my life that I thought was utterly lost to me, lost to me for so long a time that I had actually forgotten how much it meant to me. You who are listening to me tonight cannot possibly imagine what a tremendous effect on one's whole well-being, on one's very personality, deafness or even a partial hearing loss can mean.

"When I realized fully that I was becoming progressively deaf, I tried everything in a frantic attempt to regain my hearing—all to no avail. People with normal hearing do not realize how easily they can offend the deafened . . . and often are unintentionally cruel, cutting short their conversation. It is then that the deafened individual usually gives up the effort to listen.

"I found myself making embarrassing or ridiculous comments because I misunderstood others, and felt that I was a kill-joy in a group. I had a tendency to back out smiling, nodding, and pretending.

"A blind person makes no pretense at seeing, yet the deaf are always pretending that they hear and usually grumble at people, saying that all people mumble. Poems and music have been written about the blind, but only 'funny' stories have been told about the deaf. I felt that I had no friend to unlock the door of escape from the soundproof cell of silence. In other words, my whole life was changing; I began to lose interest in business, friends, and even my own family.

EDWARD D. WILK after short retirement again enters business field.

"Then, just as I thought that everything was lost, through the help of a dear friend, science came to my assistance. My eyes widened in startled, joyful amazement, then filled with tears, for the first note of a new horizon of hearing burst on my consciousness and I realized with a sweep of emotional ecstasy that I could hear again, and was the Ed Wilk of old. With this realization came a decision to aid the many millions of those who, like myself, have been on the brink of despair, that they might rehabilitate themselves as I did and again be useful to society."

Mr. Wilk has not only regained his lost hearing, but has edited a booklet which he calls HE WHO HATH EARS LET HIM HEAR. This booklet is dedicated to the hard-of-hearing and brings them inspiration and hope. It is free; it will be sent in a plain wrapper to any one addressing E. D. Wilk, Suite 1602, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.

Ok, Lady—here's that 2-WAY★ HELP you want right now!

Not just flavor—not just nourishment—but both! That's walnuts! Especially when you get "Diamonds"—tastier, meatier walnuts, every time! Use them in new recipes, or old favorites. Toss a handful into every lunchbox. Their plump, fresh, golden kernels always make a hit!

DIAMOND WALNUTS
California's finest

1★ HELP WITH FLAVOR

WALNUT-CORN FLAKE DELIGHTS

Set out a plateful of these chewy, candy-like cookies—another of sugared walnuts—and let the youngsters at 'em. Don't worry—walnut confections are good for them! For the cookies:

- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 4 egg whites
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 cups corn flakes
- 1 cup chopped Diamond Walnuts
- Diamond Walnut halves

Add salt and vanilla to egg whites and beat stiff with rotary beater; gradually beat in sugar. Fold in corn flakes and chopped walnuts. Drop by fat teaspoonfuls on greased baking sheet and decorate with walnut halves. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 20 minutes. Remove from pan at once. Makes 3 to 4 dozen. (Save yolks for custard, topped with chopped walnuts.)

EASIEST SUGARED WALNUTS

- 1 cup sugar
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ½ to 1 tsp. cinnamon, or 1 tsp. grated orange rind
- 6 tbsps. milk
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 2 to 3 cups Diamond Walnut halves

What a long way a little sugar goes here, in satisfying that sweet tooth! Combine sugar, salt, cinnamon or orange rind, and milk, and cook to soft ball stage (236° on candy thermometer), stirring frequently. Remove from heat, add vanilla and walnuts, and stir until grainy. Turn out at once onto buttered pan or waxed paper.

And remember, any candy is better with walnuts!

● SEE WHAT WALNUTS GIVE YOU

In seven essential elements, how closely a pound of walnut kernels parallels the government's recommended adult diet! (See below.) Naturally, smaller quantities will contribute these diet essentials proportionately.

	DAILY NEEDS	ONE POUND OF WALNUT KERNELS

Proteins	60-70 gms.	78 gms.
Calcium	0.8 gms.	0.45 gms.

Vitamin B_1	600 I. U.	517 I. U.

2★ HELP WITH NOURISHMENT

CHOP SUEY SALAD

Made with leftovers—but who'd guess it? Walnuts make it a hearty main-dish salad that's really tempting! With cranberry jelly, hot rolls, and dessert, it's an after-holiday supper to do you proud.

- 1 to 2 cups coarsely diced roast turkey, chicken, veal, or pork
- 1½ cups thinly sliced celery
- 1 cup coarsely chopped Diamond Walnuts
- 3 or 4 sweet pickles, cut in strips
- 2 tbsps. finely minced onion
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely chopped
- Salt and pepper
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 3 tbsps. vinegar or lemon juice
- Diamond Walnut halves

Combine meat, celery, chopped walnuts, pickles, onion, eggs, sprinkle with salt and pepper; toss together. Mix mayonnaise with vinegar or lemon juice; add enough of this dressing to moisten salad mixture, and chill about half an hour. Add more dressing, if needed, toss, and serve in lettuce-lined bowl, garnished if desired with green pepper rings, raw carrot sticks and, of course, big golden Diamond Walnut halves. Serves 4 to 6.

EASY WAYS TO SAY MERRY XMAS try 'em!

Say it with walnut cookies—a box of sugared or salted walnuts—or just a festive package of mouth-watering "Diamonds." Who wouldn't like 'em?—particularly those Service men and women on your list!

UNCLE JIMMY'S GLASSES

UNCLE JIMMY lived in a little house on the lane that passed near the Teenie Weenie village. Uncle Jimmy did odd jobs around the neighborhood and he knew all the children for miles around. Some of the older folks thought Uncle Jimmy was a little queer, but that was because the old man had told of seeing some Teenie Weenie tracks in the mud and the older people thought Uncle Jimmy was making up fairy stories.

Uncle Jimmy had seen Teenie Weenie tracks twice. Once when the old man lost his pocketbook in a mud puddle the Teenie Weenies pulled it out and dragged it up where Uncle Jimmy could find it. The old man saw tracks in the mud and he knew there were Teenie Weenies in the neighborhood. Another time the Teenie Weenies found Uncle Jimmy's pipe.

One morning Uncle Jimmy went out to cut some wood for his stove. It was snowing a little and his glasses became wet so that it was hard for the old man to see. He took off his wet glasses and laid them on a log, and when he had finished cutting the wood, he went off and forgot all about them. When he wanted his glasses a little later he had forgotten where he had left them. He hunted all thru his house without finding them and he even searched up and down the lane near the Teenie Weenie village. It was there the Teenie Weenie Policeman saw him, and the little chap knew that Uncle Jimmy had lost something.

The Teenie Weenies get a great deal of their news from about the neighborhood thru the birds, and so the Policeman questioned Tilly Titter, the English sparrow.

"'E's lookin' for 'is specks," Tilly told the Policeman. "'E left them out on the woodpile and 'e can't find 'em."

The Teenie Weenies are very fond of Uncle Jimmy, and when the Policeman told them the news, the General decided to have the little people find them for the old man. In a short time the Teenie Weenies found the glasses and they dragged them out of the woodpile and carried them to his front door.

Uncle Jimmy found the glasses and he also saw the many Teenie Weenie foot tracks in the snow. "Now!" exclaimed the old man. "I'll follow those tracks and see where they live."

Uncle Jimmy followed the tracks down to the lane, but on the other side of the road he completely lost them, for the Teenie Weenies had walked beneath a mass of tangled weeds where the old man could not follow them.

SCHOOLS SAY IT WITH WINDOWS FOR G. I. S' YULE

Art Classes to Build Seven Displays.

"Christmas follows us wherever we may go," Chicago public school children remind service men in the city, who will be far from their homes this holiday. To present their message graphically, students are decorating seven windows facing Michigan av. in the former Congress hotel. The hotel now is being used as an annex to service men's center No. 2, and the windows will be viewed by thousands of sailors, soldiers, and marines during the Christmas season.

Work is well under way and it is expected that the seven windows will be unveiled Friday. Six of the windows have been assigned to six high schools thruout the city, and the seventh is the joint project of all elementary schools. Every piece of work going into the windows will be a student product.

Make Tree from Plexiglass.

Art teachers declare that the Christmas tree to be decorated by Hamilton branch of Lake View High school, 1650 Cornelia av., will be something out of the ordinary. Made of plexiglass, the white tree will stand against a periwinkle blue background. Near-by will be a stylized madonna, of Byzantine design, in a rose colored robe. Papier mache figures of an American family will stand at the foot of the tree. Miss Jane Palczynski is art supervisor of the district and Miss Edna Crowley is art teacher at Hamilton branch.

Lane Technical High school students are decorating a window to dramatize Christmas in the foxholes. Two doughboys, fighting on past a foxhole, will be shown in the mural background, and a Christmas tree in the foreground will be decorated with red, white, and blue ornaments. Miss Palczynski is district art supervisor. Robert Bell is art teacher at Lane.

A companion window to Lane's will be decorated by Parker High school, 6800 Stewart av., showing a Christmas service aboard ship.

Depict Tropical Yule.

Santa visiting men overseas, his bag overflowing with gifts packed by their relatives—this will be pointed up in the window decorated by students of Tuley High school, 1313 N. Claremont av. The background mural will depict soldiers in the tropics opening their Christmas parcels, and on side panels mothers and sisters wrapping those gifts will be shown.

In the foreground a four foot papier mache Santa will stand beside a six foot Christmas tree, gifts spilling out of his bag toward the soldiers in the background. Mrs. Ellen D. Link is district art supervisor, and all art teachers at Tuley have coöperated in the project under direction of Miss Hazel Stillman, principal.

Most feminine of the windows will be the joint project of Lucy Flower Technical High school, 3545 Fulton av., and McKinley High school, 2040 Adams st. A cone shaped, stylized tree will be constructed of magenta metallic paper and decorated with white tarlatan. Cut-out angels, 18 inches high, will form the background. Mrs. Link is art supervisor, and art teachers are Mrs. Gretchen Gardiner of Flower High, and her daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Keefe of McKinley High.

Plan Service Man's Guide.

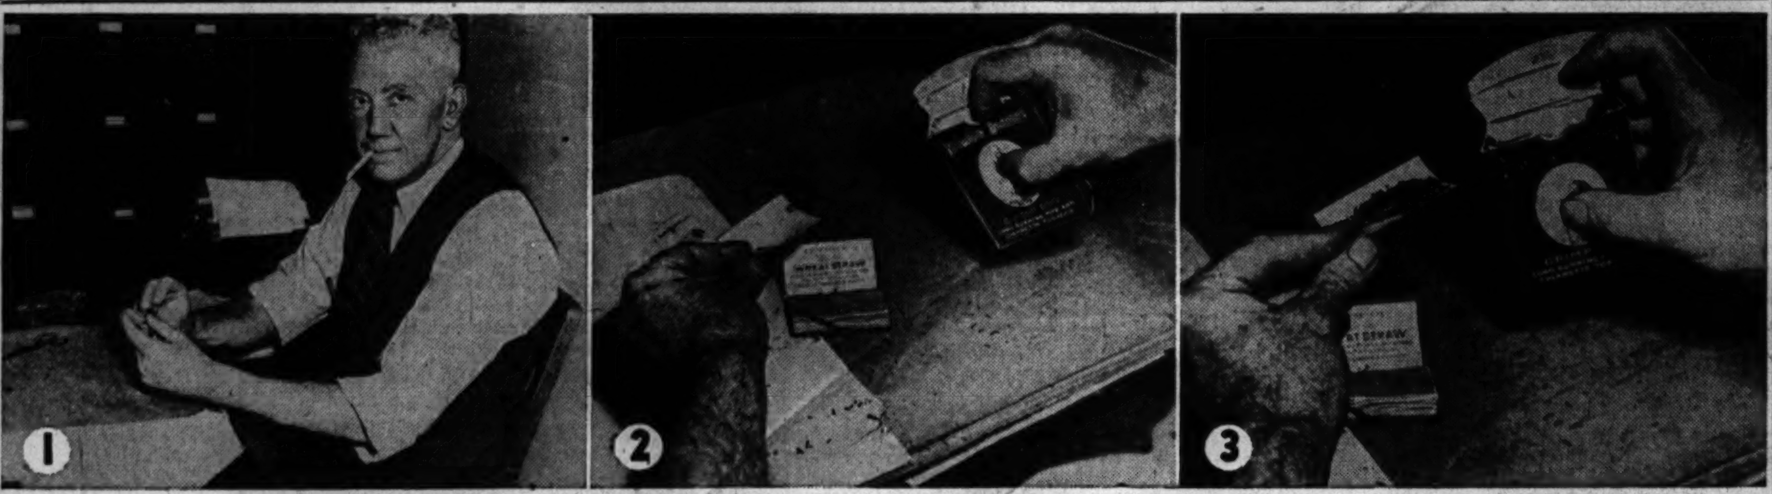
Where to go and what to do in Chicago during the holidays will be shown graphically to service men in the windows designed by Tilden Technical High school students, 4848 Union av. The background will be a decorative recreational map of the city, showing churches, parks, museums, and hotels. It will be accompanied by a printed legend giving directions and transportation facilities. In the foreground will be a two foot tree, "a tiny token of a big regard" for service men from Tilden with her 3,717 starred service flag, 185 of which are gold.

The seventh window decorated by elementary school children will show a tree made of pleated, clear cellophane, festooned with ornaments made in grammar school art classes. Paintings of Christmas subjects in the background will be the work of student artists. Mrs. Edna P. Hippchen and Miss Edna Wetton are art supervisors.

Lecture on Idaho.

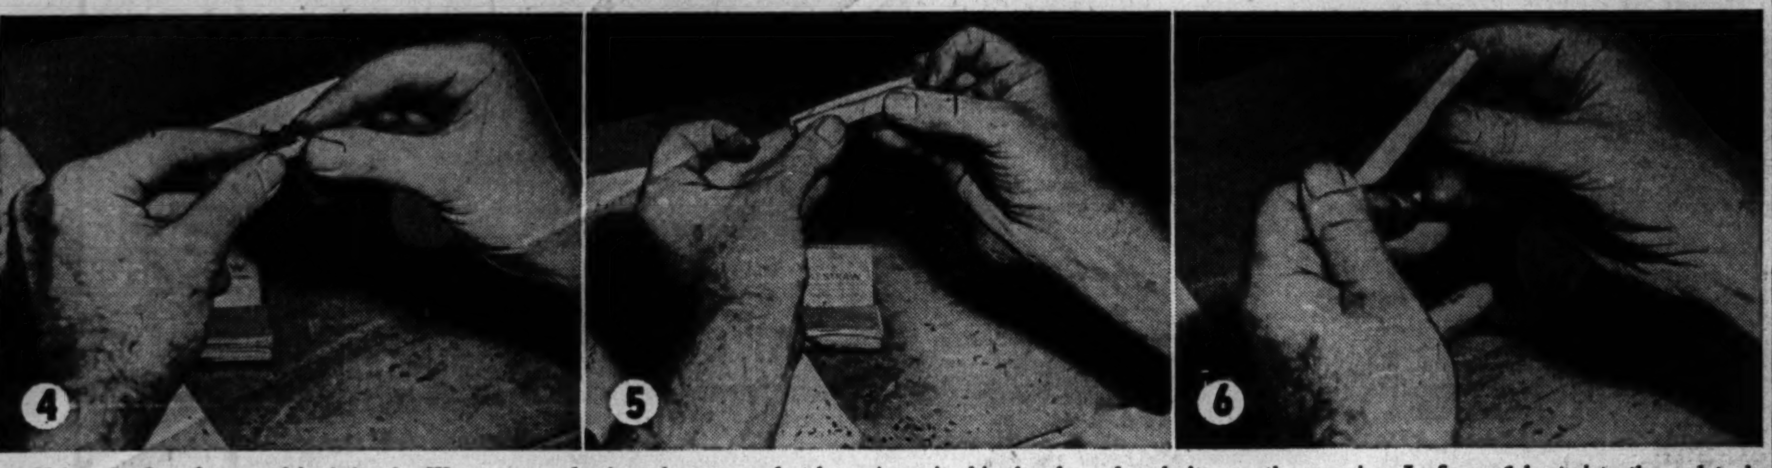
Kenneth A. Reid, executive director of the Izaak Walton league, will give an illustrated lecture on Idaho at 3 p. m. today at the Academy of Sciences, Lincoln park.

Really, Old Boy, It's Quite Element'ry to Beat the Cigaret Shortage



Perhaps the most interesting subject Prof. Elmo Scott Watson, lecturer in journalism at Northwestern university, could discuss just now is the art of rolling a cigaret. He rolls one in a matter of seconds with the ease that comes from long practice, for he learned the skill while attending college in the west where carrying the "makings" was the rule and not the exception. Watson measures tobacco by guess, using less than a tablespoonful and shaking it carefully into a piece of thin brown wheatstraw paper. A medium fine cut of pipe or cigaret tobacco may be used.

[TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter.]



Using the first fingers of both hands, Watson spreads the tobacco evenly along the paper, keeping a wide margin on the edge away from him. Then removing his fingers from the tobacco, he uses his thumbs and second fingers to roll the cigaret until the edges of the paper meet, as in figure 5. He moistens the inside edge opposite his thumbs and seals it over the margin. In figure 6 he twists the end to be lighted between his thumb and first finger, and the cigaret is ready for a match. "Genuine experts," said Watson, "fold the end instead of twisting it because a fold lights easier, but a twist is good enough for me."

FLYER YEARNS FOR GLASS OF MILK 'AND THOU'

Scores 'Double Kill' on Leave.

BY GENEVIEVE FLAVIN.

A glass of milk and his girl friend, those were the two thoughts of Lt. Frank B. Randall, 1236 Nelson st., recently returned home after 11 months with the 15th air force in Italy.

The milk, which Randall had not tasted since his departure for overseas, was served with a steak dinner his mother, Mrs. Robert B. Randall, prepared his first day home. The girl? He didn't get any decision concerning her until the third day. Then—

On this crucial third day the lieutenant, veteran of 51 bomber missions over Germany, had another type of mission to perform. He was to meet Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Stevens, 1434 Belle Plaine av., to ask their daughter Norma's hand in marriage.

First It Was Lucille.

In recounting the romance, Randall said, "Tho Norma's just a kid—she's 18—this is not a war time romance. I've known her four years."

There are four daughters in the Stevens family. The lieutenant met Norma while calling for her sisters on dates. First it was Lucille, the oldest, then Francis, the second daughter. But all the time the lieutenant had his eye on the third sister, shy, sweet, retiring Norma. "She's still all those things," Randall said.

When the conference was concluded, the answer was yes. The returned hero will wed his girl during the Christmas holidays.

50th Almost a Jinx.

But coming home to claim a bride and see his folks did not seem in the cards for a while for Randall. He had completed 49 missions over enemy territory, but on the 50th his luck broke. Acting as navigator, Randall recalled "when we reached the target area, our engine slipped as we were over the target. This created a drag on the plane and we could not release our bombs, making an incompleted mission. We were forced to leave our group and head homeward, but we never made home base in Italy. We crashed landed on a small island in the Adriatic.

"So," said Randall, "it had to be done over again. When I returned to my base, I was assigned as bombardier on another mission, my 51st. This time, when we hit the target area the bomb bay doors opened, but the fragmentary bombs failed to release.

Releases Bombs by Hand.

"I made up my mind this was going to be my 50th completed mission. Then I could return to America." Randall unfastened his parachute and slipped cautiously onto the catwalk, a narrow strip which crosses the bomb bay. Edging along, he released bomb after bomb.

For this action and for his "intense devotion to duty thruout all engagements, with his craft frequently and severely damaged by enemy fire" Lt. Randall has been awarded the distinguished flying cross. He also holds the air medal with three oak leaf clusters.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Randall, live at the Nelson st. address.

EVANSTONIAN HEADS STAFF OF TEACHERS FOR NAVY SCHOOL

Lt. Comdr. John C. Kennan, 2733 Prairie av., Evanston, will begin his duties Tuesday as academic head of the naval reserve pre-midshipman's school Asbury Park, N. J. The school has an enrollment of 3,500 trainees, chosen from the fleet and from V-12 programs.

Lt. Comdr. John Kennan.

Since June, 1943, Comdr. Kennan has been attached to the Chicago naval officer procurement office in the Board of Trade building, and since last June he has traveled in the United States on special assignment from the undersecretary of navy.

Kennan entered the navy as a lieutenant in 1942 and was promoted to his present rank last spring. In civilian life, he was educational director of the American Institute of Banking.

BAPTIST CHURCH RAISES HALF OF BUILDING FUND

Will Erect Edifice to Seat 1,200.

Members of the North Shore Baptist church, 5244 Lakewood av., who this year pledged to raise a building fund of $118,000 within two years already have met $60,000 of the fund, with 975, or 92.6 per cent, of the 1,059 pledges paid. This sum is in excess of the $65,000 yearly operational budget.

The Rev. Weldon M. Wilson.

Under the ministry of the Rev. Weldon M. Wilson, who took the pastorate in 1941, the congregation has grown to a membership of more than 2,000. The church seats 650, and the resultant situation has necessitated a building program.

As soon as priorities can be obtained work will start on the new building, which will have a seating capacity of 1,200. The North Shore Baptist church is one of the largest Baptist churches in Chicago.

When founded in 1905 the church was located on Racine av. at Wilson av. and had a congregation of 100 members. The church moved to its present location in 1920.

Faced with the problem whether to build in a new location or to enlarge the present quarters, the planning group initiated a survey. Enlargement of the present edifice was decided upon when it was found that 63 per cent of the old members reside within a radius of one and a half miles of the church and that 75 per cent of the new membership is coming from within the same area.

WHISTLING OF ANZIO EXPRESS IS SONG OF DEATH, YANK LEARNS

Whenever he heard the whistle of the Anzio Express during landings on the Anzio beachhead, Lt. Edmund J. Doering, 20 E. Goethe st., knew it wasn't train time. He saw and heard enough of the express, as the 8 inch German railway gun was dubbed, to know he preferred the Twentieth Century Limited.

Lt. Edmund J. Doering.

Executive officer and skipper of a navy L. C. I., Lt. Doering remembers the Anzio struggle and the shore fire from the Skoda rifle operated from a railroad tunnel by the enemy more vividly than events that happened during the invasions of Tunisia, Salerno, and southern France, in which he participated.

Lt. Doering recently returned to the United States after 19 months overseas and has been assigned to the amphibious training base at Norfolk, Va. He is a graduate of Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., was an instructor of the WAVES at Smith college, Northampton, Mass., and has served as liaison officer with the French forces in Algiers. He became an officer on the L. C. I. in March, 1943.

TINY FINGER TIP PRINTS TO GREET FIGHTERS' YULE

Five baby fingers, printed in black ink with the legend, "Merry Christmas, daddy dear," will be the nearest many dads in service get to holding their baby's hand this year. This Christmas card has been originated by the American Woman's Voluntary Services, 160 N. La Salle st.

When the idea first was conceived it was limited to babies of army men, but the prints have met with such success, the organization has opened the service to children of all men in service.

The AWVS finger printing department will make prints of all babies brought to their headquarters between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. Monday thru Saturday up until a week before Christmas.

Volunteer finger printers are Mrs. Leopold Swartz, 750 Bittersweet pl.; Mrs. Judy Gaines, Mrs. Charles Levy, Mrs. Ethel Pacyna, all of the Belden Stratford hotel; Mrs. Walter Moses, 210 E. Delaware pl.; Miss Felicia Shepanek, Wilmette; Esther Simons, 549 Addison st.; Mrs. Sally Lerner, 1120 Sherwin av.; Mrs. Alvin Sandroff, 540 Stratford pl., and Mrs. Charles Levy Jr., 4157 Clarendon av.

Quick! Watson Rolls Answer to Fag Crisis

BY RUTH LOGAN.

"Nothing to it. Any one ought to be able to roll a cigaret," insisted Elmo Scott Watson of Winnetka, who rolls his own in a matter of seconds. He sees no reason why a week of practice shouldn't make even an indifferent smoker master of the skill.

Watson acquired the art during four years in Colorado college, Colorado Springs. That he acquired other valuable knowledge is attested by his jobs as lecturer in journalism at Northwestern university, feature writer for Western Newspaper union, and editor of Publisher's Auxiliary, a trade journal for nonmetropolitan newspapers.

Prefers Handmade Fags.

"I've been smoking homemade cigarets since my college days, and I prefer that kind, tho I sometimes smoke a pipe or a tailor made fag," said Watson, who polished his skill during two years of working on western newspapers, six summers of teaching in the west, and numerous visits beyond the Rockies since then.

"Most of my college mates rolled their own," he said. "After all, the trademark of a westerner is supposed to be the strings of a bag of tobacco dangling from his shirt pocket."

Finds "Tailormades" Srong.

"My doctor told me to reduce my smokes, so I've been on homemade ones entirely for more than a month, but I happened to inhale a 'tailormade' last week and it nearly blew the top of my head off," he said.

Using the right amount of tobacco is the secret of success, said Watson, who protests at the title of expert, since he considers it easier to roll a cigaret at an office desk than astride a galloping mustang in a high wind.

"It's like cooking," he decided. "A good cook doesn't measure ingredients and a cowboy doesn't measure tobacco. You learn by practice. If you use too much the paper won't stick and if you measure too little you're faced with smoking a limp willie!

Gummed Edge Sign of Novice.

"Only a novice uses a cigaret paper with a gummed edge," said Watson, deftly folding a paper around almost a tablespoonful of tobacco and moistening it once before sealing the edges. "In fact, true experts just crimp the edges together instead of licking them at all, but that's a finishing touch I've not learned yet."

He twisted the end of his cigaret and lighted it. "It's easy," he insisted. "No one should be worried by a cigaret shortage. But I hope my doctor doesn't see this story."

Chaplain Will Speak on Vets' Emotional Problems

Dr. Russell Dicks, chaplain of Wesley Memorial hospital, will give the third in a series of lectures on emotional problems of returning veterans at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the First Methodist church, Evanston. The series is sponsored by the church's returning service personnel committee, of which Dr. A. R. Gilliland is chairman.

TWO CHILD CARE CENTERS OPEN ON NORTH SIDE

Need More Helpers, Officials Say.

To answer the increasing need for facilities to care for children of war working mothers, the board of education has opened two new centers on the north side and will offer a training course for volunteer workers early next year at the National College of Education, Evanston, under auspices of the OCD child care committee.

Thirteen centers are now in operation along the north shore. One center, for children 2 to 5 years old, and another, for children 6 to 13, are at the Julia Lathrop nursery, 2704 N. Hoyne av. The service will be expanded for benefit of women working or seeking work in war plants, said Vernon L. Bowyer, director.

Feed Children Daily.

The daily program includes supervised recreation and rest with a hot lunch and an afternoon feeding. Nurses visit the centers regularly and a medical examination is required before a child is admitted.

The centers are operated thru fees of $2 to $2.50 a week, federal funds, contributions, donations of services, and assistance from the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund.

The service now maintains 34 centers for school children and 22 for pre-school children in Chicago. At least 300 additional volunteers are needed for the expanding service, said Mary Murphy, chairman of the OCD committee and director of the McCormick fund. North siders are asked to register at the volunteer office, 53 W. Jackson blvd., for the training course, which will begin Feb. 5 under supervision of Miss Edna Dean Baker, president of the National College of Education.

Hold Three Classes Weekly.

The course will include 30 hours of lectures and observation and 48 hours of practice teaching. Classes will be held from 1 to 3 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and will be taught by Miss Baker, Miriam Brubaker, Harriet Howard, and Edith Maddox, all of the college, and Ramona Backus of the McCormick fund.

On completion of the course volunteers are asked to pledge six hours service a week for six months and are placed in centers as near their homes as possible.

Other north shore centers have been established in the Christopher house, 2507 Greenview av.; Francis Parker school, 330 Webster av.; Stockton school, 4430 Beacon st.; Stone school, 6239 N. Leavitt st.; Olivet institute, 1441 Cleveland av.; Bethel War nursery, 1808 Lyons st., and Washington school, Main st. and Ashland av., both in Evanston; Happy Hour nursery and Waukegan nursery, both in Waukegan; Winnetka Community nursery, Winnetka, and Zion War nursery, Zion.

N. U. ADMITS 263 VETS OF WAR II. UNDER G. I. BILL

Ban Special Privileges and Segregation.

Taking advantage of educational privileges offered under the G. I. bill of rights, 263 discharged veterans, some of whom have seen action in major sea and land battles, have enrolled at Northwestern university. They are represented in every college of the school on the Evanston and Chicago campuses, and their total has more than doubled since last spring.

The types of education in demand by veterans are indicated in their enrollment by colleges. By far the greatest number, 124, or 47 per cent, is enrolled in the school of commerce. Thirty-four are on the Evanston campus, and 90 are taking evening classes at the downtown school. The dental school has 30 veterans, and the college of liberal arts, 23. The school of journalism has enrolled 22.

Vets Not Segregated.

The veterans are admitted at Northwestern under a university policy established after the Civil war when veterans first were enrolled. Now as then the university is assisting veterans to solve their problems.

Commenting on this policy, Prof. Chester E. Willard, coördinator of veterans' education at Northwestern, and himself a veteran of World War I., said: "Veterans will be absorbed completely in the student body. They will have no special privileges. They will be required to pass the entrance examinations, and to maintain the scholastic standards of the university. That is the way the boys want it, and that is the way it will be."

Some to Get 4 Years Free.

Under the G. I. bill, veterans who are 10 per cent disabled are allowed up to four years of college work if they meet eligibility requirements. They will receive a minimum of $80 a month during this period.

Service men and women who served 90 days after Sept. 16, 1940, may apply for entrance in the undergraduate or graduate schools, and receive work in almost any subject. Tuition, required books, and other necessary fees up to $500 will be billed to the government. Single men in this group receive $50 a month, married men $75.

"More than a million returning veterans will take advantage of the educational opportunities offered them after the war," Prof. Willard predicted. He also stated, "Young service men have seen how the well educated have risen from the ranks in service and it has left a deep impression on them."

300 TO PRESENT N. U. CHRISTMAS CONCERT TODAY

More than 300 Northwestern university students led by George Howerton, director of choral activities, will take part in the university's fifth Christmas concert at 3 p. m. today in Cahn auditorium, Scott hall.

The a cappella choir of 63 voices will sing "Scenes from the Holy Infancy," by Virgil Thomson, and three other selections. The women's gleen club of 200 voices will appear in "Ave Maria," by Holst, and the navy V-12 chorus of 57 voices will sing a Christmas hymn by Bach.

The combined groups will sing four numbers, including one by Mendelssohn. The program will close with traditional Christmas carols.

Are You Going to Use Your Car During 1945?
It will be time to buy new licenses (state and city) for your car, or cars, soon. We have thought this is a good time to remind you that if you have an automobile which you don't need, there are hundreds of others who need cars these days. The stock of new cars (1942 models) is practically exhausted, and old cars are being junked at an alarming rate. Your car could be a valuable part of our country's wartime transportation system, and it should not be kept idle. If you will consider selling your car we would appreciate the opportunity of talking with you. Drive in or telephone us, please.

THEATER OF AIR WILL GIVE 'SARI' SATURDAY NIGHT

"Sari," Hungarian composer Emmerich Kalman's gypsy operetta, starring Marion Claire and Igor Gorin, will be presented by the Chicago Theater of the Air on W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system Saturday night from 9 to 10 o'clock before an audience of 4,500 in the Medinah temple.

Miss Claire will be heard in the role of Sari. As Pali Racz, the gypsy leader, Gorin will make his first Theater of the Air appearance this season. Angelo Raffaelli, tenor, and Earle Wilkie, baritone, will sing supporting roles.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, and the chorus, led by Robert Trendler, will provide a musical background for the presentation. Dramatic parts are to be taken by Sandra Gair, John Barclay, and Holland Engle.

CBS shorts: Lionel Barrymore will do his ninth performance of Dicken's "Christmas Carol" Dec. 23 on the Mayor of the Town show over WBBM-CBS at 6 p. m. . . . Nelson Eddy's program, now aired Wednesday nights at 9:30 on WBBM-CBS, will be heard over the same station and network Sundays at 3:30 p. m. effective Dec. 17. . . . Milton Berle's Let Yourself Go will move into the niche vacated by Eddy. . . . George Burns and Gracie Allen are to cut up on Monday nights at 7:30 via WBBM-CBS starting Jan. 1.

Bob Hope has earned a few more laurels. Poor Richards club, an aggregation of Philadelphia's advertising men, awarded its annual medal for outstanding achievement to Comedian Hope. In other years, Will Rogers, Eddie Rickenbacker, and Walt Disney have rated the award. In the ninth annual Motion Picture Daily poll, newspaper critics, columnists, and radio editors named Hope as radio's "Champion of Champions."

You hear Dick Jones in the role of Henry Aldrich on The Aldrich Family comedy presented Friday nights at 7:30 over WBBM-CBS. In addition to radio work, Dick is a student at the Hackley school and maintains a place on the school's football, soccer, and swimming teams.

SEVEN SONS GO FORTH TO FIGHT IN FAMILY OF TEN

Marines Get One, Army Enlists the Rest.

Seven sons have left the Blumenthal home, 2930 Lakewood av., to fight in battles around the world.

The blue starred service flag in the window would carry eight stars if one of the three remaining sons had been able to serve. "I could crowd one more star on the flag I suppose," Mrs. Timothy Blumenthal said, "but I hope I won't have to. It's pretty quiet with only three men left."

Richard First to Go.

Three of the 10, Corp. Richard Bahl, Walter Bahl, and William Bahl, are Mrs. Blumenthal's sons by a former marriage. Richard, with the infantry in France, entered the army April 16, 1941, the first to go. Walter was given reserve status after serving 18 months with the army in Panama, and is working in the Arizona copper mines. William lives at 1866 Dayton st.

The other seven, Corp. Matthew, Pvt. Timothy, Pvt. Fred, Corp. James, Pvt. Edward, Harry, and Raymond, are sons of Blumenthal, who has worked for the Commonwealth Edison company for the last 33 years. He was born 59 years ago in the house where the family now lives.

"Hard to Recall Dates."

Mrs. Blumenthal packed Matthew's bag on Mother's day, 1942. He is now in Hawaii with the quartermaster corps. Timothy, the next to leave, is in the New Hebrides. Fred, who entered the army in January, 1943, is quartered across the street from Richard in the same French town, but because they are with different companies they seldom see each other.

James is stationed with the field artillery at Camp San Luis Obispo, Cal. "He entered early in 1943, but I just can't remember the month. It's so hard to keep the dates straight," Mrs. Blumenthal said. Edward, the only fighter son not in the army, entered the marine corps six months ago and is now in the South Pacific.

But the Letters Vary.

Five Christmas boxes, identical in shape, size, and contents, were packed by Mrs. Blumenthal in one night for the men overseas. She sent them fruit cake, candy, chewing gum, and "a few other things they'd written they wanted." James and Walter hope to come home for the holiday.

But if the Christmas presents are similar Mrs. Blumenthal's letters vary. "The boys have different interests and like to know different things, so I don't write the same thing to any of them," she declared.

START YOUR POSTWAR FUTURE TODAY!

READ THIS MESSAGE CAREFULLY... BECAUSE IT MEANS OPPORTUNITY

After the war, aviation will be one of the major industries in the Chicago area. Airlines, aircargo carriers, maintenance and operations shops, and aircraft plants will have good jobs for workers who are properly trained. Prepare for your career in aviation NOW by working in the Chicago plant of Douglas Aircraft Company. No "cutbacks" or "layoffs" in sight here. Douglas employes will work at full capacity building vitally needed military transport planes until Japan is defeated. Then they will build planes for the airlines on orders already booked this far ahead.

You can get expert training here in aircraft skills that could well qualify you for profitable employment building peacetime airplanes or in the huge maintenance and operations plants which the airlines and aircargo enterprises will set up all over the country after the war. And you can be trained in working with the lighter metals such as aluminum and magnesium which will be used in the manufacture of so many postwar consumer goods.

Meanwhile you will be well paid for enjoyable work. Experienced or inexperienced . . . we train you so that you are bound to make good in fabrication, shop, assembly and installation work . . . what we term "beating on the airplanes." As interesting work as you'll ever find.

If you want to serve your country, learn a new business, make good money and really enjoy your job, don't delay. If not already engaged in essential industry, come to

That nice things come in small packages is being proved in the Evanston Infant Welfare society junior auxiliary's sale of Social Capers for 1945.

Members' ages range from 18 to 80. The smallest attendance of the five year old club was recorded during the recent north shore railroad strike when the number dropped from about 35 to 12. Lloyd Faxon, Winnetka, organized the club and is one of 10 charter members who are regular attendants.

SOUTH SHORE Y RAISES HALF OF BUILDING QUOTA

Start Construction After War.

(Picture on page 2.)

South Shore's campaign to raise $275,000 as its contribution to the financing of a million dollar Y. M. C. A. building at 71st st. and Bennett av. has passed the half way mark with $150,000 raised, Arthur W. Mall, chairman, has announced.

Arthur W. Mall.

Arrangements have been made with the boards of managers and trustees of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. for these two boards to provide $725,000 when South Shore reaches its quota. Designed by Eugene B. White, Chicago Y. M. C. A. architect, the structure will be built as soon as materials are available.

Designed as Memorial.

A memorial to the community's 15,000 service men and women, the four story building will provide for members and community groups the latest developments in air conditioning, sound control, structural glass, decorative aluminum alloys, and impregnated woods. It will incorporate the principle of "flexible space" as opposed to older buildings with large lobbies. Club and dining rooms will be arranged so groups may be accommodated readily.

The athletic section will be designed to serve men, women, boys, and girls with separate showers and locker rooms. Electrostatic air filters, with higher efficiency than mechanical filters, will be installed.

Noise in the swimming pool, gymnasiums, and social areas will be corrected by the use of absorbent panels which also will regulate the air flow. Opaque glass in half inch sheets will be used to partition offices and clubrooms. Aluminum alloys treated with liquid plastics will be used as trim while grained flooring, hardened with resin plastics and dyed so it requires no refinishing, will be used thruout.

List Committee Members.

William H. Clay, chairman of the board of directors, is co-chairman of the campaign. Vice chairmen are Walter S. Anderson, David Borowitz, the Rev. Wilbur M. Childress, David R. Goodman, Richard M. Lenihan, and John P. Quigley. Committee members include Mrs. W. John Allen, Mr. and Mrs. H. Ross Archer, Oscar H. Baehler, Herbert M. Batson, Charles E. Bradley, Edward M. "Christmas follows us, wherever we may go," Chicago public school children remind service men in the city who will be far from their homes this holiday. To present their message graphically, students are decorating seven windows facing Michigan av. in the former Congress hotel. The hotel now is being used as an annex to Service Men's center No. 2, and thousands of sailors, soldiers, and marines are expected to view the windows during the Christmas season.

Work is well under way and it is anticipated that the seven windows will be unveiled Friday. Six of the windows have been assigned to six high schools thruout the city. The seventh will be a joint project of the elementary schools. Every piece of work going into the windows will be a student product.

Plan Service Men's Guide.

Where to go and what to do in Chicago during the holidays will be shown to service men in the window designed by Tilden Technical High school students, 4747 Union av. The background will be a decorative recreational map of the city, showing churches, parks, museums, and hotels. It will be accompanied by a printed legend giving directions and transportation facilities.

In the foreground will be a 2 foot tree, "a tiny token of a big regard" for service men from Tilden with its 3,717 starred service flag, 185 of which stars are in gold. The tiny tree will be decorated with miniature ornaments, complete to the candles, which are toy clothespins painted to represent members of the service. Mabel F. Williams is art supervisor of the district. Miss Marie Bohman and Miss Shirley Powell are art teachers at Tilden.

Show Ship's Service.

Parker High school, 6800 Stewart av., is building a window to show a Christmas service aboard ship, in a mural background. The tree in the foreground will be decorated in red, white, and blue, with such unusual ornaments as baby food tins gaily painted, and angels cut from sheet aluminum. Agnes Fenerty is district art supervisor, and Robert French is art teacher at Parker.

A companion window to Parker's will be decorated by Lane Technical High school, 2501 Addison st. Two doughboys, fighting on past a foxhole, will be shown in the mural background, and the Christmas tree in the foreground will be decorated in red, white, and blue.

Will Show Home Scene.

Santa visiting men overseas, his bag overflowing with gifts packed by their relatives—this will be pointed up in a window decorated by students of Tuley High school, 1313 N. Claremont av. The background mural will depict soldiers in the tropics, opening the Christmas parcels. On side panels mothers and sisters wrapping those gifts will be shown. In the foreground, a 4 foot papier mache Santa will stand beside a 6 foot Christmas tree, gifts spilling out of his bag toward the soldiers in the back-

CHILDREN CLAD G. I.S' TREES IN ROBE OF TINSEL

Countless Yule Baubles Made at Schools.

They won't be able to go home for Christmas, so Christmas is being brought to them. Soldiers, sailors, and marines stationed in Chicago and those here to spend brief holiday leaves, will find their day has been made brighter by thousands of Chicago public school children. For the last few weeks these young people, from kindergarten thru high school, have been as busy as the proverbial elves in Santa's workshop, turning out decorations for Christmas trees and canteen tables to be used at the Chicago service men's centers, and in navy school barracks thruout the city.

Some idea of the enthusiasm which has fired Chicago school children is revealed in the report of one district that has completed 75,000 tree ornaments. There are four school districts in the city and it is anticipated that response in the other three will be equally enthusiastic.

To Decorate 78 Trees.

At least 78 trees will be decorated with the Santas, angels, and other child-made ornaments. Of this number, 60 will be located in the three service men's centers.

In addition, decorations from the elementary and high school art classes will be festooned on trees in the five navy schools thruout the city, at 87th and Anthony, Herzl, Manley, Wright, and the Lake st. barracks. Art supervisors and teachers from the city schools will direct the WAVEs billeted at 3163 Sheridan rd. in making their own Christmas decorations.

One of the largest trees for service men in the city will be at Wright Junior college, where the navy has a pre-radio training school. An 18 foot tree will be decorated with oversize ornaments turned out in such neighboring schools as Steinmetz, Schurz, and Roosevelt High schools. There will be a six foot tree in the sick bay at Wright, and Santas and angels for centerpieces in the mess hall.

Use Milk Bottle Caps.

Tree decorations for the service men seem destined to hit a new high in ingenuity as well as in colorfulness. Principal ingredients of many of the baubles are paper and paint, but the children didn't stop there. They used such varied materials as milk bottle caps, buttons, small boxes, mailing tubes, gourds, and beads. They molded fruit and animals of papier mache, and painted them in gay colors. They even took the wooden tongue depressors used by doctors, painted them with holiday designs, and pasted on cellophane fringe.

Two milk bottle tops, placed back to back, were painted to resemble miniature doughnuts. Paper was skilfully folded into a top hatted, white tied dandy, with ludicrous dangling legs. A tiny locomotive engine, fashioned from vivid colored papers, is complete, even to the puff of "smoke" rolling from its funnel shaped stack.

Angels in Profusion.

Apples and pears in papier mache with tinfoil leaves were painted realistically, or decorated with geometric designs. Such prosaic items as kitchen match boxes took on a Joseph's coat of many colors, and will hang from the bough of some soldier's tree. Scattered thru the entire assortment of ornaments are literally thousands of angels, painted in pastel or bright colors and resplendent in silver or cellophane trappings.

Centerpieces for the holidays have been made for 360 canteen tables. No two are alike. Kelvyn Park High school alone furnished 75 of these. Every interpretation of Santa that is possible seems to have turned up in the collection, and dozens of different versions of Christmas angels are included. One slightly sophisticated high school student even painted a centerpiece with a pin-up girl jumping out of Santa's sack.

Remember Fighters' Children.

Nor have Chicago school children forgotten other children in their eagerness to help service men. The sons and daughters of service men who will be spending the day with their fathers at the service men's centers will receive gift stockings of gayly wrapped presents especially prepared for them by children of Sutherland school, 101st and Leavitt sts. The student council of the school underwrote the expenses for the project and 36 of the jaunty red tarlatan stockings will be filled with a miscellany of gifts, including candy, dolls, mittens, color books and crayons, and blocks.

The boys and girls are sending ornaments to the Red Cross also, and to U. S. O. clubs. At least 50 cartons, or approximately 5,000 items, have been accumulated for the Red Cross to date, including ornaments, tray mats, and menu covers, many of which will be used in veterans' hospitals.

These art projects of the Chicago public elementary and high schools are under the general supervision of Elizabeth Wells Robertson, director of art for the board of education. Art supervisors for the four high school districts include: No. 1, Jane Palczynski; No. 2, Ellen D. Link; No. 3, Mabel F. Williams, and No. 4, Agnes L. Fenerty.

FORTRESS CO-PILOT LANDS PLANE SAFELY IN SPITE OF DAMAGE

Second Lt. B. Bruce Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Smith, 8157 Ingleside av., co-pilot on an 8th air force Flying Fortress based in England, recently completed his 21st combat mission. He is the youngest of three brothers, all of whom are in service.

Lt. B. Bruce Smith.

On a recent bombing mission over Germany, Lt. Smith's plane was so badly damaged by flak that he had to make a forced landing. His flying suit was struck by a flak fragment but he was uninjured. Lt. Smith was a student at Illinois Institute of Technology when he enlisted in February, 1943. He went overseas last March.

His brother, Herbert, a graduate of Illinois Institute of Technology, is an infantry private in Holland. Another brother, James, recently completed boot training at Great Lakes Naval Training center and is attending the navy radar school at Wright Junior college, 3400 Austin av. All are graduates of Tilden High school.

COAT OF VARNISH NOW WILL STOP HOLIDAY DAMAGE

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

One worthwhile protection to keep on hand is a heatproof or spar varnish which can be purchased at any paint store. It is especially worthwhile as the holidays approach and tables are more than likely to suffer rings and bruises from too warm dishes and wet glasses. A coating on wood surface such as a table top may save many a refinishing job after the Christmas season is over.

If you have a piece of old furniture and wish to refinish it, it is well to keep in mind that thoro removal of the old finish is one of the most important parts of the whole task. That is assuming that the previous finish has been worn splotchy and bare in spots and no new finish can be successfully applied over it.

Work in Ventilated Place.

A good paint remover should be used and the work should be done in a place well removed from fire or flame and where the ventilation is excellent. The directions on the can should be studied carefully and followed and after the remover has been used all trace of it should be removed. Gloves should be worn to protect the hands, and old clothes, of course.

After the remover is thoroly dried out the surface should be smoothed with fine sandpaper and every speck of dust wiped off. A lint free cloth should be used for wiping all surfaces, and some turpentine should be on hand for cleaning purposes.

It's a Good Idea to Wax.

After the sandpapering, the surface is ready to apply paint, varnish, enamel, stain, shellack, or wax. It is an excellent procedure to wax the furniture at the end, whatever finish you give it, applying two or three thin coatings of wax, well rubbed in after the finish is hard.

If you are repainting a radiator to freshen it at the last moment for Christmas guests it will not be necessary to remove the previous finish. Loose particles of dust and rust should be removed with a wire brush, and the radiator washed with turpentine. A radiator will give out more heat if painted, than if given an aluminum or bronze finish. A quick drying paint should be used at this time of year as a radiator will be out of use until the paint has dried. A radiator should never be painted while it is warm.

ROSELAND CLUB TO SEEK $3,000 FOR CAMP FUND

The Roseland Kiwanis club is conducting a Christmas fund campaign to raise $3,000 for benefit of Happy Haven camp, Plymouth, Ind., since 1911 a vacation site for south side crippled children from 7 to 14 years old.

Racine Thompson, Kiwanis International division lieutenant govenor and chairman of the underprivileged children's committee of the Roseland club, is in charge of the campaign.

Appeals are being made to local business firms, clubs, lodges, fraternities, parent-teacher associations, and individuals. Nine south side Kiwanis clubs have pledged $100. They are Archer Road, South Central, Southwest, South Chicago, Hyde Park, Woodlawn-South Shore, Stock Yards Area, Englewood, and Roseland.

Donations also have been received from the Porcupine club and members of the Roseland Lions club. More than $500 has been contributed already.

More than 8,000 handicapped children have vacationed at the camp, which was founded by the late Mrs. Prouty Robinson, one of Chicago's first teachers of crippled children.

The annual "Hanging of the Green" in the South Side Y. W. C. A. center, 6753 Stony Island av., will be held from 7:30 until 8:30 p. m. Friday. It will be followed by a Christmas party sponsored by the center's health education council. The program will consist of games, carols, and square dancing. Miss Charlotte Matthews, 6349 Dorchester av.; Mrs. Elizabeth Dinnerville, 7409 Crandon av., and Miss Ruth Schubbe, 6936 Stony Island av. are in charge.

Soldier's Fiancee

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Golden, 8032 Maryland av., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Peggy Jean, to Sgt. Lewis A. Green, Royal Oak, Mich. Miss Golden attended De Paul university.

Oak Forest Scandinavians to Have Yule Dinner Today

The Smaland Social club and the Ostergotland club will give Christmas dinners to all inmates of Scandinavian descent at the Oak Forest infirmary today. The dinner is an annual affair of the two clubs. Last year they presented inmates with stockings and handkerchiefs.

SERVICE CENTER OFFERS ALL THE FLAVORS OF HOME

Hot dinners with a home cooked flavor and all the trimmings prepared by mothers, wives, sweethearts, and friends of service men are the order every week-end at the MacArthur service center, 1634 E. 53d st.

Every Friday, Saturday, and Sunday more than 50 Hyde Park and South Shore women, members of the MacArthur chapter of the Women's Defense Corps of America, work from early morning until late at night to prepare the dinners for any service man or woman who cares to drop in. Roast beef and baked ham are the specialties of the center with roast turkey or chicken reserved for special holiday occasions.

Tell Week-End Menu.

Each week-end about 200 pounds of roast beef, 120 pounds of baked ham, 300 pounds of potatoes, 100 pies and cakes plus varying amounts of vegetables, gelatin molds, milk, coffee, and soft drinks are consumed by 800 to 1,100 service men and women. Between meals cold cuts always are available.

The canteen does not confine its activities to serving food. Every Friday night entertainers recruited from loop cafes present a volunteer show during the dinner hour. Saturday and Sunday nights a long distance telephone call home is given away. On special occasions the number of free long distance telephone calls is increased. The center also maintains a library.

Patients Visit Center.

Located only three blocks from Gardiner General hospital, the center also is host to ambulatory patients. The center is maintained by public contributions. Its quarters are donated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Keller, owners of the Elms hotel.

The canteen also serves service men in other ways. A young lieutenant who had been wounded in the South Pacific and was convalescing at Gardiner, visiting the canteen, found his sister who was a guest there. They had not seen each other for two years.

Babies Also Cared For.

A soldier and his wife, far away from home, were about to have their second child but they didn't know what to do with their 17 month old son while the wife was in the hospital. The problem was solved when one of the women at the canteen took the baby home with her for three weeks.

Another wife brought her 3 month old baby with her when she came to Gardiner to visit her husband who had been wounded in Italy. Hospital regulations would not permit the child to visit its father so the mother brought the baby to the canteen.

Col. Hall Commends Center.

The center has been commended by Col. John R. Hall, commanding officer at Gardiner, for the service it has given to patients and personnel. The patients have expressed their appreciation thru a handmade scroll they presented to the canteen.

Mrs. Emil Hecht is captain of the MacArthur unit and Mrs. Herbert Wolff is co-captain.

SHIFT OF ROUTE 20 SOUGHT TO ELIMINATE JOG

Oak Park Asks O.K. of 5 Suburbs.

Five west suburbs are being asked to approve a resolution adopted last week by the Oak Park village president and board of trustees to reroute state route 20, a highway which runs west on Washington blvd., thru Oak Park and northwest to Rockford. If approval is obtained, a congested turn at Lake st. and Harlem av. will be eliminated.

State Rep. Thon [23d] heads a committee composed of State Rep. McCabe [21st] and State Rep. Kaindl [23d] which will seek approval of the villages of Forest Park, River Forest, Maywood, Melrose Park, and Bellwood.

Motor Club Takes Lead.

The West Area council of the Chicago Motor club, under chairmanship of the Rev. Walter S. Pond, long has sought the change in route 20 to eliminate the bottleneck and confusion in traffic at the busy intersection of Lake st. and Harlem av.

State route 20 runs west on Washington blvd. to Harlem av. and north on Harlem av. to Lake st., where a left turn is made to continue on the highway. The rerouting suggested would lead traffic west on Washington blvd. to Wisconsin av., north on Wisconsin av. to Randolph st., and west on Randolph st.

North Av. Speeding Discussed.

The high rate of traffic speed on North av. was also a subject of discussion at the motor club council meeting. A committee composed of William P. Shilke, North Avenue Business Men's association; Randall Cooper, Oak Park Chamber of Commerce; Roy F. Nix, River Forest Chamber of Commerce, and Robert Wigglesworth, Melrose Park chief of police, was appointed to study the problem which is attributed to the rush of industrial workers going to or from their jobs.

Those present at the meeting included F. S. Bates and Albert F. Keeney, Austin Kiwanis club; C. S. Battles, La Grange Civic club; Emile Bloche, Oak Park Chamber of Commerce; Frank R. Campbell, Kiwanis club of Midwest Side; M. S. Dutton, Oak Park commissioner of public works; Robert L. Holmes, Oak Park elementary schools; Walter J. Kelly, Chicago Plan commission, and W. H. McManus, West Side Traffic and Transportation association.

Others who attended were George Stedronsky, Cicero Lions' club; Erwin Thoendel, Forest Park safety commission; Peter Verschuur, Austin Lions' club; Lee J. Walsh, North Oak Park Improvement association; the Rev. Walter S. Pond, Henry Rieck, Randall Cooper, State Rep. Kaindl, and Warren Stevens.

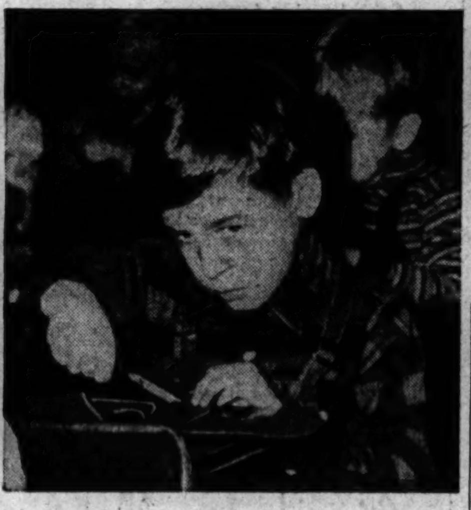
School Children Fashion Ornaments and Gifts to Cheer Fighting Men

Veterans in hospitals and service men and women in Chicago will have their Christmas brightened by the handcraft of west side public school children. Pupils of the Pope Elementary school, 1852 S. Albany av., have fashioned Christmas decorations from paper, walnuts, cotton, doilies, and paint. Shown working on their contributions (back row) are John Forssberg, Libby Nudera, Irwin Harris, Lorraine Gemchek, Sheldon Slodki, and Georgianna Nudera. Jerome Barasch and Marilyn Starr are in the foreground.

Donald Froula, 13, 4328 Cullerton st., a pupil of the Mason Elementary school, 1830 S. Keeler av., inclosed a card in the stocking which he filled for a service man. The card read, "Thank you, soldier, for all you have done for us." Mason pupils bought empty stockings from the Red Cross and filled them with candy, cigarets, razor blades, and other gifts at their own expense.



Beverly Jordan, 2633 S. Keeler av., a 1st grade pupil at Corkery, and her classmates, Steven Rusnak, 4015 Cermak rd., and James Wagner, 2312 S. SCHOOLS SAY IT WITH WINDOWS FOR G. I.S' YULE

Art Classes to Build Seven Displays.

"Christmas follows us, wherever we may go," Chicago school children remind service men in the city, who will be far from their homes this holiday. To present their message graphically, the students have tackled the task of decorating seven windows facing Michigan av. in the former Congress hotel. The hotel now is being used as an annex to service men's center No. 2. Thousands of sailors, soldiers, and marines are expected to view the windows during the Christmas season.

Work is well under way and it is anticipated that the seven windows will be unveiled to the public about Friday. Six of the windows have been assigned to six high schools thruout the city. The seventh will be a joint project of the elementary schools. Every piece of work going into the windows will be a student product.

Plan Unusual Tree.

Most feminine of the windows will be the joint project of Lucy Flower Technical High school, 3545 Fulton av., and McKinley High school, 2040 Adams st. Link is art supervisor of the district and art teachers are Mrs. Gretchen Gardiner of Flower High, and her daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Keefe, of McKinley High.

Santa visiting men overseas, his bag overflowing with gifts packed by their relatives—this will be pointed up in a window decorated by students of Tuley High school, 1313 N. Claremont av. The background mural will depict soldiers in the tropics, opening the Christmas parcels. On side panels mothers and sisters wrapping those gifts will be shown. 'TELL WAR AIMS,' DU PAGE WOMEN OF G.O.P. DEMAND

Republican women of Du Page county last week took official action demanding specific definition of the administration's war aims "so that we may know when we have achieved our objectives and when our men may come home."

A resolution prepared by State Rep. Lottie Holman O'Neill [11th] was adopted and wired to Illinois G. O. P. representatives in congress at a meeting of the board of the Du Page County Republican Women's clubs in the home of the board chairman, Mrs. V. E. McCallum, Wheaton.

"What Is War About?"

In presenting the resolution Rep. O'Neill said, "I have a son in service in the South Pacific and along with millions of other mothers whose boys are at war I want to know what the conflict is all about."

"This Republic now has been at war three years as an ally of Russia and England, pouring out the riches of the country in men and resources at a rate known only to those intimately connected with the governments of these countries," the resolution reads.

"The so-called Atlantic charter, enunciating high principles of self determination and freedom of all peoples, has been abandoned and in its place we see our allies now engaged in a struggle for supremacy in Europe regardless of the welfare of little countries and the principle of unconditional surrender presented to opposition nations.

Ignores Own Interests.

"This country while supplying men and resources to carry on this war has made no apparent effort to look after its own interests in this conflict but is engaged in building the fortunes of our allies exclusively."

Since our men are undergoing the hardships of war in endeavoring to perpetuate the life of this Republic, specific information must be given the people of this nation concerning what victory means to us and what we are to gain from the struggle, the resolution added.

"Maybe we can get something started," Mrs. O'Neill said in presenting the document. "You have to start somewhere and why not with the Republican women of Du Page county."

CHURCH IN PARK RIDGE TO MARK ITS 50TH YEAR

Bishop Conkling to Greet Parish.

St. Mary's Episcopal church of Park Ridge will mark the completion of 50 years of service at special services next Sunday. The Rev. John B. Hubbard is rector.

The Rev. John B. Hubbard.

Bishop Conkling of Chicago will be present at the 11 a. m. service to confirm a class. Members of the vestry and their wives will entertain the bishop at dinner. A reception will be held in the parish house at 4 p. m., which will be attended by Bishop and Mrs. Conkling. There will be brief talks and refreshments will be served by the Women's guild.

First Service in 1890.

Altho services were held in Park Ridge in 1890, the formal history of St. Mary's parish began on Dec. 16, 1894, when A. W. Doran of Western Theological seminary addressed a congregation of 45 in Electric hall.

In the late 1890s a building committee headed by D. H. Martin raised $800 and built the wooden chapel of the Park Ridge Episcopal mission on land loaned by Arthur W. Penny. A few years later a lot was bought on the southwest corner of Prospect and Crescent avs. and the little church moved onto it. The chapel was moved again in 1913, when the present edifice was erected. Until 1923 the original mission was used as a parish house.

When St. Mary's was founded in 1894 Park Ridge had a population of approximately 1,000. By 1923 it had grown to 8,000 and the parish had increased by the same ratio. To meet the need for a larger church the Mary E. Wilson house was erected in 1923 at a cost of $130,000.

Church Has 2,000 Members.

St. Mary's now has nearly 2,000 parishioners, including 180 men and women in service. Mary Wilson house has become the center of community activities, visited annually by as many as 50,000 persons.

The Rev. Mr. Hubbard has been rector 13 years. Communicants have more than doubled, contributions to missions have grown eightfold, and the debt on the church has been reduced nearly $25,000 since 1931.

The vestry includes George A. Dean, senior warden; Amos C. Sanden, junior warden; H. F. Allen, C. S. Daniels, H. T. Hunter, M. C. McCuaig, M. L. Nelson, T. C. Pemberton, J. E. Rittermal, G. R. Scott, B. G. Spinner, A. G. Sutcliffe, Gust Treffeisen, and Gustave P. Ehnborn, vestrymen; A. C. Sanden, treasurer; Albert E. Miller, financial secretary; G. R. Scott, mortgage fund treasurer, and Miss Kathleen Cummings, secretary.

Organization leaders are Mrs. M. L. Nelson, Altar guild; L. M. Nelson, St. Vincent's Acolyte guild; Mrs. Lloyd Silver, Acolyte mothers; Mrs. E. T. Lundgren Jr., junior and senior choirs; Mrs. William Gilbert, Evening guild; William Gilbert, Boy Scout troop; Mrs. A. M. Leighty, Women's guild, and Mrs. Bertram Spinner, Choir mothers.

N. W. SIDERS TAKE ATHLETIC PARK COMEDY ROLES

Athletic Field park's Attic players will present "The Christmas Card," a three act comedy in the park fieldhouse, 3546 Addison st., at 8 p. m. Thursday and Friday. Thirty-five members, 8 to 16, will take part in the performance which will be directed by Miss Rita Smith.

A puppet show will be featured in the play. The dolls were made in artcraft classes under supervision of Miss Kathryn Letcher. Three unusual dance numbers will also be a part of the entertainment.

Northwest side children taking part are Violet Mayfield, 3707 N. St. Louis av.; Audrey Rauch, 3837 N. St. Louis av.; Mary Ann Beenan, 3723 N. Central Park av.; Patricia O'Byrne, 3648 N. Christ Lutherans Mark 18th Year at Same Site

Celebrating its 18th year in its present location, the Christ Lutheran church, Long av. at Le Moyne st., will have a special service at 8 p. m. today. The Rev. J. W. Behnken, president of the Missouri synod, will deliver the sermon. Three choirs, under direction of Irving Lauf, will sing. The Rev. W. H. Grothman is pastor. An anniversary fellowship dinner will be given Thursday evening in the parish hall. Mrs. Edwin C. Mueller is in charge.

Saron Church to Hold Candlelight Service

The Evangelical Lutheran Saron church, Shakespeare av. and Richmond st., will hold a Christmas candlelight service at 8 p. m. next Sunday. The choir and women's chorus will sing. Soloists will be Marcia Sandahl, contralto, and Ruth Irene Tangwall, violinist. The Rev. Vernon E. Ryding is pastor.

MRS. SIDNEY GOODMAN AND STEVEN RANDOLPH.

When eight northwest side service men open the V-mail letters they will receive at Christmas time each will find a picture of his wife, and the baby he has never seen. Taken by a Tribune photographer recently, the photos have been printed on V-mail stationery for mailing overseas by the men's wives.

Santa's Pack Bulges with 8 V-Mail Photos for G. I. Dads

The holidays will seem brighter for eight service men from the northwest side, for each soon will receive a V-mail letter bearing a photo of his wife and the baby he has never seen. These pictures have been printed on V-mail stationery with space for a message, so the wives can mail the photos before Christmas. The V-mail photos are furnished as a service of the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE.

It was a disappointment for Pvt. Frank Weislack that he had no opportunity to see his son, Frank Wayne. Pvt. Weislack was stationed at Camp Polk, La., when the baby was born in September, 1943, but he was unable to get a furlough home before he was sent overseas the following November. Since then he has been stationed with an anti-aircraft unit in the Dutch East Indies. Before his enlistment almost two years ago, he was employed as a machinist. His wife is making her home with his mother, Mrs. Agnes Weislack, 4839 Schubert st.

News Arrives in Iceland.

Altho Pvt. Otto Schneider was stationed in Iceland when his daughter, Beverly June, was born last July 6, it took him only three days to get the news. Pvt. Schneider, an electrician in civilian life, attended the reserve signal corps school nine months before he was called to active duty in June, 1943. The following August the Schneiders were married at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and Mrs. Schneider, 3658 N. Kedzie av., remained near her husband when he was stationed at Camp Reynolds, Pa., for three months. He was sent overseas in February. Mrs. Schneider is now making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rudin.

Lt. A. J. Droege was on one of the first amphibious tanks to reach the Philippines, but his wife, who lives at 5225 N. Parkside av., believes he was less excited about that than of the birth last June of their daughter, Marleen Sophia. Lt. Droege had been sent overseas only 19 days before the baby was born. In the army nearly four years, Lt. Droege was stationed at Pearl Harbor from July, 1941, to January, 1943. After he was brought back to the United States, he was stationed at Fort Ord, Cal., and Mrs. Droege made her home nearby in Salinas, Cal. Now she is living with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Droege.

Also in the Philippines is Sgt. Steve L. Kendziorski, who has been overseas since April, 1943, and in the service almost four years. His daughter, Kathleen Mary, was born last January. Mrs. Kendziorski is making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pudelek, 3324 N. Ridgeway av.

Sent Overseas in 1943.

Now in the New Hebrides with a ship repair unit is Steve Wojcik, machinist's mate 1st class. He was sent overseas in October, 1943, and last June received news of the birth of his daughter, Mary. Before his enlistment two years ago, Wojcik was a lathe operator. Prior to his leaving for overseas, Mrs. Wojcik, 4939 Wrightwood av., was able to live near her husband's posts in San Diego and in San Francisco, Cal. Now she is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Neven.

The civilian population of Italy, as well as the American soldiers stationed there, are getting dental work done by Capt. Sidney Goodman, who had his office at 3559 Montrose av., before his enlistment two years ago. Capt. Goodman was stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., before being sent overseas a year ago. Six weeks after he had left, his son, Steven Randolph, was born at a Randolph field hospital. Mrs. Goodman and Steven make their home above that of the captain's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Goodman, 3559 Montrose av.

"Tours" Europe with Yanks.

Corp. Mark A. Camden has been "seeing" France, Belgium, and Holland recently. But the sight he'd like most to see is his son, Mark Attison Camden II., born four months after Corp. Camden was sent overseas in March. Mrs. Camden lives at 4234 N. Marmora av.

It has been a long war for Capt. Leon Wasielewski, 2015 Iowa st., for his only child, Mary Jane, is 2 years old and he has never seen her. Sent overseas in September, 1942, Capt. Wasielewski was stationed with the dental corps in the Dutch East Indies. Mary Jane was born the following December. Before his enlistment, Capt. Wasielewski maintained a dental office on the northwest side, and was an active member of the Polish Dentists' association. Mrs. Wasielewski has kept their apartment on Iowa st.

MRS. LEON WASIELEWSKI AND MARY JANE.

CITY CONSIDERS POLICE DISTRICT FOR 38TH WARD

At a budget hearing Tuesday, the city council finance committee will consider a proposal to establish a new police district in the 38th ward, it was announced by Ald. Cullerton.

Cullerton has pointed out that there is no police or fire station in the whole district. "Recently there has been a wave of burglaries, robberies, and traffic deaths, and the closest police station is in Jefferson Park," Ald. Cullerton said.

Ald. Cullerton proposes that the station be built at Belmont and Narragansett avs., and asks that there be a full police force to serve the district bounded by Diversey, Cicero, and Lawrence avs., and the city limits.

SCHOOLS SAY IT WITH WINDOWS FOR G. I.S' YULE

Art Classes to Build Seven Displays.

"Christmas follows us, wherever we may go," Chicago school children remind service men in the city who will be far from their homes this holiday. To present their message graphically, the students have tackled the task of decorating seven windows facing Michigan av. in the former Congress hotel. The hotel now is being used as an annex to Service Men's Center No. 2. Thousands of sailors, soldiers, and marines are expected to view the windows during the Christmas season.

Work is well under way on the project, and it is anticipated that the seven windows will be unveiled to the public about Friday. Six of the windows have been assigned to six high schools thruout the city. The seventh will be the joint project of elementary schools. Every piece of work going into the windows will be a student product.

Will Show Tropical Yule.

Santa visiting men overseas, his bag overflowing with gifts packed by their relatives—this will be pointed up in a window decorated by students of Tuley High school, 1313 N. Claremont av. A background mural will depict soldiers in the tropics opening Christmas parcels. On side panels mothers and sisters wrapping those gifts will be shown. In the foreground a 4 foot papier mache Santa will stand beside a 6 foot Christmas tree, gifts spilling out of his bag toward the soldiers in the background. Mrs. Ellen D. Link is district art supervisor, and all art teachers have coöperated in the project under the direction of Miss Hazel Stillman, principal.

Lane Technical High school students are building a window to show Christmas in the foxholes. Two doughboys, fighting on past a foxhole, will be pictured in the mural background, and a Christmas tree in the foreground will be decorated with red, white, and blue ornaments. Jane Palczynski is district art supervisor, and Robert Bell art teacher at Lane.

Baby Food on Tree!

A companion window to Lane's will be decorated by Parker High school, 6800 Stewart av., showing Christmas service aboard ship on a mural background. The tree in the foreground will be decorated in red, white, and blue, with such unusual ornaments as baby food tins gaily painted, and angels cut from sheet aluminum. Agnes L. Fenerty is district art supervisor, and Robert French is art teacher at Parker.

Most feminine of the windows will be the joint project of Lucy Flower Technical High school, 3545 Fulton av., and McKinley High school, 2040 Adams st. A cone-shaped, stylized tree will be constructed of magenta metallic paper and decorated with white tarlatan. Angel cut-outs, 18 inches high, will form the background. Mrs. Link is art supervisor. Art teachers are Mrs. Gretchen Gardiner of Flower High, and her daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Keefe, of McKinley High.

Plan Plexiglass Tree.

Also very much out of the ordinary, art teachers declare, will be the Christmas tree in the window decorated by Hamilton branch of Lake View High school, 1650 Cornelia av. Made of plexiglass, the white tree will stand against a periwinkle blue background. Near-by will be a stylized madonna of Byzantine design in a rose colored robe. Papier mache figures of an American family will stand at the foot of the tree. Miss Palczynski is art supervisor of the district, and Miss Edna Crowley is Hamilton branch art teacher.

Where to go and what to do in Chicago during the holidays will be graphically shown to service men in the window designed by Tilden Technical High school students, 4747 Union av. The background will be a decorative recreational map of the city, showing churches, parks, museums, and hotels. It will be accompanied by a printed legend givign directions and transportation facilities.

Tilden to Salute Alumni.

In the foreground will be a 2 foot tree, "a tiny token of a big regard" for service men from Tilden High with its 3,717 starred service flag, 185 of which stars are in gold. The tiny tree will be decorated with miniature ornaments, complete to the candles, which are toy clothespins painted to represent members of the service. Mabel F. Williams is art supervisor, and Miss Marie Bohman and Miss Shirley Powell, art teachers at Tilden.

Seventh window will be that decorated by elementary school children from thruout the city. The tree, made of plaited, clear cellophane, will be festooned with ornaments made in grammar school art classes. Paintings of Christmas subjects in the background will be the work of student artists. Mrs. Edna P. Hippchen and Miss Edna Wetton are art supervisors.

For Douglas War and Postwar Planes!
Douglas now has a $416,000,000 backlog order for war planes . . . and $140,000,000 in postwar orders from major airlines, including huge contracts for C-54 Combat transports. The C-54 is the transport companion to the B-29 Super Fortress which is now starting to bomb Japan into oblivion. The C-54 is the world's largest 4-motor transport in volume production and has the cabin dimensions of a standard railroad box car. Adapted for postwar airline use, it will be designated the DC-4. This is the plane used by President Roosevelt in his flights to Casablanca, Terheran, and Cairo. Now it is carrying munitions and men to the fighting front and wounded back to safety. After the war it will carry millions of airline passengers. This plane is built in the Douglas Chicago plant. You are needed to build it.
DON'T LET OPPORTUNITY PASS YOU BY!

HELP BUILD GIANT C-54's
Vitally Needed in the Pacific . . Start Your Postwar Future Today

After the war, aviation will be one of the major industries in the Chicago area. Airlines, aircargo carriers, maintenance and operations shops, and aircraft plants will have good jobs for workers who are properly trained. Prepare for your career in aviation NOW by working in the Chicago plant of Douglas Aircraft Company. No "cutbacks" or "layoffs" in sight here. Douglas employes will work at full capacity building vitally needed military transport planes until Japan is defeated. Then they will build planes for the airlines on orders already booked this far ahead.

You can get expert training here in aircraft skills that could well qualify you for profitable employment building peacetime airplanes or in the huge maintenance and operations plants which the airlines and aircargo enterprises will set up all over the country after the war. And you can be trained in working with the lighter metals such as aluminum and magnesium which will be used in the manufacture of so many postwar consumer goods.

Meanwhile you will be well paid for enjoyable work. Experienced or inexperienced . . . we train you so that you are bound to make good in fabrication, shop, assembly and installation work . . . what we term "beating on the airplanes." As interesting work as you'll ever find. If you want to serve your country, learn a new business, make good money and really enjoy your job, don't delay. SOLDIER SAVES SAILOR BURIED TO CHIN IN MUD

But G.I. Loses 2 Shoes in Quagmire.

A Chicago Heights soldier in the Panama coast artillery command recently played the dominant role in the black-out rescue of a sailor who was almost buried alive in a quagmire 250 feet off the shore of a tide lagoon. The victim was imprisoned to his neck in mud when Corp. William Leuder reached him.

The sailor, a petty officer, attracted help by his cries and by a flashlight over his head. Coast artillery drivers, routed from sleep, rushed to the shore and turned headlights on the eerie scene as Leuder led the rescue.

Forge Human Chain.

Forging into the mud, human chain fashion, the soldiers built a makeshift bridge of planks, ladders, and a rowboat. Each shaft sank deep into the mud as Leuder crossed. Once he became bogged 25 feet from the sailor who by then had lapsed into a coma.

Leuder thought the man was dead when he reached him and tied a rope around the unconscious man's shoulders. Other soldiers then pulled the sailor ashore. A moment later they pulled out Leuder, who lost his shoes in the effort.

Victim Recovers.

The navy man regained consciousness upon reaching shore and at a navy hospital his condition was reported good. His name was withheld by the navy.

Leuder is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Leuder, Chicago Heights. He has two brothers in service. Corp. Walter H. Leuder Jr., with the marines in the Southwest Pacific, and Bugle Master Richard Leuder in the navy.

STRAY DOG ACTS AS SPOTTER; G. I. GETS A GERMAN

A stray dog befriended by Capt. Frank I. Hyland, 6346 Sangamon st., recently helped him to capture a German in northern Italy.

Hyland ran to the bushes, where he found a German machine gunner intently watching the fight below. Jerry was unaware of his canine visitor or Capt. Hyland until the latter thrust the carbine into his ribs.

SCHOOLS SAY IT WITH WINDOWS FOR G.I.S' YULE

Art Classes to Build Seven Displays.

"Christmas follows us, wherever we may go," Chicago public school children remind service men in the city who will be far from their homes this holiday. To present their message graphically, students are decorating seven windows facing Michigan av. in the former Congress hotel. The hotel now is being used as an annex to Service Men's center No. 2, and thousands of sailors, soldiers, and marines are expected to view the windows during the Christmas season.

Work is well under way and it is anticipated that the seven windows will be unveiled Friday. Six of the windows have been assigned to six high schools thruout the city. The seventh will be a joint project of the elementary schools. Every piece of work going into the windows will be a student product.

Plan Service Men's Guide.

Where to go and what to do in Chicago during the holidays will be shown to service men in the window designed by Tilden Technical High school students, 4747 Union av. The background will be a decorative recreational map of the city, showing churches, parks, museums, and hotels. It will be accompanied by a printed legend giving directions and transportation facilities.

In the foreground will be a 2 foot tree, "a tiny token of a big regard" for service men from Tilden with its 3,717 starred service flag, 185 of which stars are in gold. The tiny tree will be decorated with miniature ornaments, complete to the candles, which are toy clothespins painted to represent members of the service. Mabel F. Williams is art supervisor of the district. Miss Marie Bohman and Miss Shirley Powell are art teachers at Tilden.

Show Ship's Service.

Parker High school, 6800 Stewart av., is building a window to show a Christmas service aboard ship, in a mural background. The tree in the foreground will be decorated in red, white, and blue, with such unusual ornaments as baby food tins gaily painted, and angels cut from sheet aluminum. Agnes Fenerty is district art supervisor, and Robert French is art teacher at Parker.

A companion window to Parker's will be decorated by Lane Technical High school, 2501 Addison st. Two doughboys, fighting on past a foxhole, will be shown in the mural

SHELLS RATTLE TANK'S WALL BUT NOT YANK'S GALL

First Lt. Walter R. Gerwig, a tank officer with the 5th army, who was among the first allied forces which took Castleforte and broke the Hitler line, was home recently on leave.

Walter R. Gerwig. [Tribune Photo.]

Lt. Gerwig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Gerwig, 10335 Bell av., has been awarded the silver star by Lt. Gen. Clark, allied commander in Italy, and the croix de guerre with palm and the croix de guerre with silver star by the French government. He also has received the Purple Heart with an oak leaf cluster.

Enlisted in 1941.

Gerwig entered service in March; 1941, and was commissioned in June, 1942. He was sent to Oran, North Africa, in January, 1943, where he trained French tank troops. Later his tank platoon rolled into action near the Volturno river and supported French infantry in the 450 mile battle to Florence, Italy. "Heroism was so common in this difficult battle, that no single act stands out in my mind," he said.

According to the citation signed by Gen. Clark, Lt. Gerwig left his tank amid extremely heavy enemy fire at Castleforte to direct movements of his group on foot.

Tank Slightly Noisy.

Gerwig, who led an assault into the rear of the town after an all-day attack had failed, says he left the tank because sniper fire was drumming on the tank from several directions and the noise nearly deafened him. "They'll never fix that town up again," he said.

He also has been awarded the good conduct medal, pre-Pearl Harbor medal, and the European theater ribbon with three campaign stars.

YOUTH CANTEEN LAUNCHES FUND, MEMBER DRIVES

Oak Lawn Group to Hold Christmas Party.

The Oak Lawn Hi-Canteen, established six months ago in the Cook Avenue school, Oak Lawn, will launch a building fund and membership drive, elect new officers, and hold a Christmas party this month. Membership already has grown from 50 to 120.

Admittance to the party Dec. 23 will be a small wrapped gift worth not more than one dollar. Santa Claus, played by Walter Kaup, Oak Lawn, will distribute gifts between dances. Nonmembers will be charged a small admittance fee in addition to the gift.

Seventh in Series.

This is the seventh party conducted by canteen members. Other events included a wiener roast, hard times party, amateur talent show, halloween party, and a splash party.

These activities plus Saturday night dances, dancing instruction, and game room activities have been under the direction of teen-age officers elected in June when the Canteen was organized by the Lions club of Oak Lawn.

Officers are Charles Worell, president; William Lipphardt, vice president; Virginia Ascroft, secretary, and Arthur De Runtz, treasurer. Chairmen are Carol Rubey, programs; Ralph Leonard, recreation and cleanup; Nola Jorn, chaperons, and Evelyn Utz, publicity. All live in Oak Lawn.

Will Elect Officers.

Members will vote at the Christmas party for officers. Members pay dues of 50 cents for six months, and, with their officers, are in charge of the canteen. Adults act only as chaperones, but provide assistance when requested.

Adults, appointed by the Lions club, who helped organize the Canteen are: Vincent Folk, The Rev. F. James Schrag, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Oak Lawn, The Rev. Oscar Smith, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church of Oak Lawn, Mrs. Eva Lambright, Wave Sheriff, Scoutmaster and Scout commissioner, and Mrs. Gladis Hickey, member of the boards of the Oak Lawn public school and library.

An example of adult coöperation is the newly formed Chaperons club. Its first meeting drew more than 60 parents. Mr. and Mrs. Willard P. Leonard, parents of the chairman of recreation and cleanup, were elected chairmen.

Members Buy Juke Box.

A symbol of coöperation between members and adults is the juke box. One afternoon, five members, Charles, William, and Irving Turner, with Robert and Arthur De Runtz, went shopping for a box. They found one priced at $175. Money was coming a week later from the community recreation fund conducted by the Lions club. The youths pooled their personal savings and bought the box and a pinball game. Later they collected from the Lions club.

Monef to start a building fund will come from the membership drive. De Runtz said the membership eventually hope to build a clubhouse with facilities for roller skating, shuffle board, basket ball, and dancing.

Future activities include a chaperon's dance, Valentine party, ice skating, tobogganing, and a St. Patrick's day party. Service men are admitted free.

'Winged Victory' Opens on Tuesday for Five Weeks

Theater, Radio, Film Stars in Air Show Cast

By Claudia Cassidy.

Now that the most important Christmas gifts are on their way overseas, perhaps you are taking a deep breath before plunging back into the maelstrom for local loot. At any rate, here is the major theater news of the day, if you have time to read it. Most important is the opening of "Winged Victory," ringing up its Tuesday night curtain at the Civic Opera house at 8:25 and lingering for five weeks in its key cities' tour to aid army charities. This is not a flying version of Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army." This is Moss Hart's play about the army air forces, with music by Sgt. David Rose. It concerns three boys who want to be pilots, and tells what happens to them from induction to the battle front.

The huge production operates on revolving stages and involves an AAF cast of 300, including chorus and orchestra, and 54 civilian women, many of them army wives. The cast bristles with well known names of stage, screen, and radio, notably Staff Sergeants Edmund O'Brien, Mark Daniels, and Ray Middleton, Sgt. Don Taylor and Pvt. Lon

Devi-Dja.

Eddie Dowling.

McCallister, with Elisabeth Fraser, Phyllis Avery, and Olive Deering important on the distaff side. Tech. Sgt. Harry Horner did the settings, Staff Sgt. Abe Feder the lighting, and the orchestra is directed by Master Sgt. Joseph Buskin, once a pianist with Tommy Dorsey's band.

Several months ago a letter came from Eddie Dowling which said, in part, "I have a play by Sean O'Casey that I like very much, a play by Walter Vincent Anderson called "The Signpost," and some other plays. Perhaps if I am fortunate enough I can see several of these things born in Chicago, but at any rate if all goes well, I hope to be in Chicago for the Christmas holidays with a great actress, Laurette Taylor, and our old friend Julie Haydon, and what I hope and pray will come true—a beautiful play." That would be "The Glass Menagerie," which Mr. Dowling, Miss Taylor, and Miss Haydon open at the Civic Christmas night, only it is the Civic Repertory theater from now on. Tony Ross is the fourth member of the cast as of today [that name changes weekly], the director is Margo Jones, and the designer is Jo Mielziner.

Tennessee Williams, who wrote "The Glass Menagerie," says he lived in rectories in the Mississippi delta until he went to high school in St. Louis. He worked his way in and out of three colleges, but says he was a terrible waiter. Don't tell any radio announcers, but Mr. Williams couldn't remember whether people wanted Wheaties or Cream of Wheat. All this time he was an amateur writer, and he regards it as an omen that he sold his first story, at 16, to Weird Tales. He says he isn't conventional but has had plays and stories presented to conventional audiences because they don't, after all, want to be conventional. Admitting that sounds like Saroyan, he says they are opposites. "Saroyan writes a good play in six days," he explains, "I write a fair one in six months."

Mr. Williams also was a pin-up boy but in bowling alleys, a movie usher, and an elevator operator. He got two Rockefeller grants, a Group Theater award, and still another from the American Academy of Fine Arts. Orson Welles said he would like to subsidize him. The Theater Guild presented his "Battle of Angels" for Miriam Hopkins four seasons ago and it lasted two weeks. If you would like a play called "Not About Nightingales," Mr. Williams has written it, and so far there has been no battle of angels to back it.

WILL and ADO

Veteran and newcomer in the Erlanger's "Oklahoma!" Walter Donahue, who has played Will Parker since the musical opened here more than a year ago, plays a scene with Ruth Clayton, who recently joined the cast as Ado Annie, the girl who cain't say no.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
CITY OF CHICAGO

November 27, 1944

Manager
The Civic Theatre
Washington Street at Wacker Drive
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Sir:

It has come to my attention that Eddie Dowling, the famous actor and producer, desiring to develop fine plays, encourage new writers, technicians, directors and actors, and more especially to encourage young Chicagoans who are interested in the theatre, is considering the establishment of a Civic Repertory Theatre in the Civic Theatre, Chicago.

It is my understanding that the opening of this new Repertory Theatre is imminent and that the first play will be given on Christmas night, December 25, in the Civic Theatre. This is very gratifying to me as Mayor of the City of Chicago, and particularly so because of my knowledge of and familiarity with the men who are sponsoring this new development.

The new play, THE GLASS MENAGERIE, by Tennessee Williams, which will have its world premiere in Chicago on Christmas night, starring Eddie Dowling and Laurette Taylor and supported by Julie Haydon and Robert Stevenson, should prove to be particularly attractive. With the production in the capable hands of Alex Yokel and Louis J. Singer, this premiere bids fair to be a great success.

I am genuinely interested in the success of this new project because of its civic nature.

With kind good wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,
[signature]
Mayor

INSTALMENT XVI.

HARVEY wasn't sure of that, but he knew what he was going to try, and how to do it. Time was crowding him, and when he dropped on his knees at the lower edge of the thicket he was listening for the peculiar whistling roar which is audible for miles when a crown fire starts leaping thru the tree tops. He had to hold the frightened horse and this left him only one hand to work with, but the pine needles were matted with pitch droppings, the wind was with him, and all he asked for was a narrow lane thru that 10 foot wall of flame.

The little heaps of needles which he kicked together kindled easily. He had covered a wide space and the backfire was creeping into the thicket a few minutes after he had lighted the first heap. Several saplings were flaming, like huge torches, when the shriek of tortured boughs was drowned by the appalling voice which he had been dreading. He looked back across the clearing.

A sheet of flame rose toward the sky. It hovered for a moment, soaring higher; then it started, slowly at first, gathering speed with terrifying rapidity. A blast of searing wind almost swept him from his feet. He saw a blazing limb flying thru a rain of red cinders; it fell on the roof of the adobe house, and the dry shakes erupted a red geyser.

He turned and faced the thicket again. The flames were mounting thru the green pine boughs in a dozen places, and the wind was driving them so fast that, even as he looked, they became an unbroken line, but the gap between that line and Ursula's fire was wide. It seemed as if he was going to lose. There was no fear in his despair, then, only a great bitterness because he had left Nell alone back there in the wood. It was not love for life that kept him going. It was the determination to get out of this and find her before it was too late.

The roan was crouching like a frightened dog. Harvey looped the bridle reins over his arm and pulled his handkerchief from his pocket. He draped it over his nose and while he was tying the knot the climax arrived. The two lines of flame met in the midst of the thicket, they leaped high and subsided. He never knew how he got into the saddle, for the roan had started plunging again, and the memory of their struggle was overshadowed by the uproar of the fire behind him.

The line of flames which had confronted him was broken by a gap; it might have been 30 feet wide, it might have been only 20—he couldn't have told even if he had wasted time to look, for the red smoke was hanging thick. He bent his head, drove his heels into the roan's flanks, and it sprang forward.

They were speeding up a steep aisle. It was enclosed by flames. These were so close that his clothes were burning in a dozen places. He held his breath while the big horse raced on. He held it until his lungs were bursting and when he drew in the first gasp the smoke cut like a hot knife.

The race was a matter of seconds. The red cinders flew from the spurning hoofs. Blazing twigs showered down upon horse and rider. Then they were past the worst of it and on the burned off ground. The smoke was clearing a little now and the air was growing sweeter. They were near the edge of the woods when the big horse staggered. It fell so suddenly that Harvey had barely time to leap from the saddle to get clear.

It lay on its side. Its flanks were heaving and its limbs were trembling. And as he dropped on his knees the legs became rigid. He laid his hand on its cheek but the caress was too late. He ran up the road to the open land with the roar of the fire behind him. He was thinking how he had been able to hold his breath, but the horse had to breathe deeply while it carried him up that fiery aisle. And he was thinking how the horse had never faltered.

The red light of the flames made everything like day, and when he reached the forks of the road he saw that Pete was not there.

The glare of the reflection was hanging in the sky behind the topless car as it racketed down the road toward Escondido. The glow of headlights shot up to meet it as another car topped a steep grade from the opposite direction. Andreas slammed on the brakes at Ursula's bidding. She was over the back of the seat before the wheels had ceased revolving. She said:

"Give me the girl."

Andreas stood up and when he lifted Nell in his arms she started to struggle again.

Ursula snatched Nell from him and flung her upon an old mattress. She dragged a pair of quilts and a greasy tarpaulin from somewhere in the load and threw them over the girl. She limbed back into the seat.

"Give me your knife," she bade Andreas. The advancing headlights were drawing near now. She laid her arm along the back of the seat and dropped the hand which held the open knife beneath the covers within an inch of Nells' breast.

"You keep quiet or you get it," she said. "Now drive on, Andreas. And do not stop."

The ancient car made so much noise that they were barely able to hear the voice of the other driver as they passed her.

"What was she saying?" Andreas asked after they had gone by. Ursula laughed.

"Something about a girl. I think she looks for this one. It is that woman Beulah Smith, and she is going on now."

The trail which led Beulah Smith to the hills where Harvey had been set afoot, was more than 50 miles long. It began in the lounge of Queensburg's best hotel and for some time thereafter it wandered as uncertainly as the course of a dog nosing around before he picks up a hot scent. These early zigzaggings took in the sheriff's office and the court of Queensburg's justice of the peace. They consumed much time and some of them were fruitless. None of them yielded anything better than a bare hint of what lay ahead. It was in Escondido some hours later that she began to worry about Nell, and even then she had no definite suspicion of danger.

On that morning Queensburg was beginning a week's war bond drive, and three of the town's most personable girls had set up a table backed by a large American flag in one corner of the lounge. They were making their first sale when a deputy sheriff interrupted proceedings.

"That your car outside?" he asked their customer.

Beulah was seated in an overstuffed chair. Her open checkbook was before her on the table and she held a fountain pen. She glanced over her shoulder and nodded at the deputy.

"Sit down," she bade him, "and make yourself comfortable while I square myself with my conscience. This ought to be worth $500, don't you think? And at that I reckon I'm letting myself off easy."

She didn't look as if she had been hitting it up at an average of 70 miles an hour on a dirt road with the thermometer at 100 in the shade and the law's enforcers following with wide open siren. She was just a nicely marceled elderly lady in an expensive sport dress. She was completely unruffled and her smile was disarming. The deputy had handled members of her sex before and there were enough people in the lounge to make an embarrassing audience in case this one were to resort to the usual pyrotechnics. He said:

"Fair enough, lady, just so you make it snappy," and settled down in his chair with a sigh of relief. Beulah finished writing her check, got her war bond, folded it and stowed it away in a large black leather handbag with a white metal monogram. She received the thanks of the girls and put aside their murmured sympathies. She rose and faced the deputy.

"I'll go quietly, officer," she told him. "No need for handcuffs." He grinned.

"That's nice of you," he said. "And if you'll just tell me where your boy friend is, I'll speak a good word for you to the district attorney. Might be he'll let you off with 20 years."

He was the same deputy who had been watching Harvey's house, and he wasn't a bad looking young fellow. She made the best of their brief companionship en route to the court house, for she had a pretty definite idea that the sheriff wasn't going to take the matter so lightly. And in this she was correct.

The interview took place in the inner room where such questionings were conducted, and Beulah scored the first trick by the unusual procedure of laying her cards on the table. She said:

"I think you're smart enough to know by now that Harvey Little wasn't in my car."

They had seated her in a stiff-backed chair, with the light from the window on her face, and there were three of them before her. The sheriff nodded to the pair of deputies.

"Reckon I'll handle her alone," he said. And when they had departed he turned to his prisoner.

"That, I take it, is the truth," he told her. Now where did you see Harvey Little last?"

"In the blacksmith shop at Escondido," she replied. "And you know as much about where he went from there as I do. Furthermore, he isn't the man you want, anyhow. If he had been, I wouldn't have helped him get away and worn out a lot of good rubber doing it."

"You are," the sheriff reminded her, "acknowledging a serious charge. Interfering with an officer. This is a murder case we were on, when you gummed the cards for us."

He was a big man, gray with the years, and he had been a cowman in his time. He wasn't letting anything get by him now. His large face was expressionless and his eyes were hard.

"That," Beulah countered, "would stick, provided Harvey was guilty of anything——"

"How about the constable?" the sheriff interrupted. "He looked considerably the worse for wear when we found him in the drug store."

"I hit him," Beulah answered calmly, "with Doc Munras' pestle. Harvey was there, but I was the one that sapped Hay Belly. And Harvey didn't like it at all. No, you can't stick him with that, and you know as well as I do that he didn't have anything to do with killing that dude paisano."

"As well as you do." The sheriff's voice held a reflective note. "Now just how well would that be? And, if he didn't kill Rodriguez, why did he run away?"

"Listen," Beulah bade him. "I'll tell you what I know. It isn't much, but it's enough to point you in the right direction."

"You ought to be a lawyer," the sheriff commented when she had finished. "Our district attorney couldn't have made a better build up than that. And you don't believe half of it yourself."

"Half," Beulah replied, "would be enough for me if I was wearing your badge."

"There's something screwy in this Rodriguez killing," the sheriff acknowledged. "But that old murder case is out. I wouldn't touch it with a 10 foot pole. And that goes for the anthrax."

"Meaning," Beulah said drily, "that you wouldn't touch John Yardley with a 10 foot pole."

"Not on the strength of that story, I wouldn't," the sheriff said. "Isn't evidence to hold a paisano for questioning in what you say. Somebody did some sheep killing. That's all it amounts to. And where Harvey Little stands now, he's a fugitive from justice." He took time out to roll a cigaret and furnish Beulah with a light.

"Just the same," he said, "there's something screwy in this Rodriguez killing. And I'll feel a lot better when the case is busted open. I'm driving out to Escondido now to do a little investigating." Beulah was rising from her chair. He shook his head. "Make yourself comfortable," he bade her. "You're sticking here till I get back. Want some one to keep you company?"

"Don't bother," she smiled. "I'll stick."

"I'll leave word for one of the boys to fetch you a bite of lunch," he said. "I'm liable to be gone for quite a while."

It was getting on toward evening when he returned and he was looking like a man who had something on his mind.

"We'll step over to the justice court," he said. "I'm charging you with reckless driving. Want to see a lawyer?"

"I know how to plead guilty without any help," she told him. "And I know when I'm well off."

The office of the justice of the peace was down the corridor but the court had gone home to supper and the two of them waited for a full hour before the deputy who had been sent for him returned with news that he would be along presently. As it turned out "presently" meant another three quarters of an hour. And during all this time the sheriff didn't say a dozen words. Of these, none gave the slightest hint concerning his investigation. Dusk was beginning to gather in the valley. Beulah had pleaded guilty, taken a good dressing down and paid one hundred dollars to the county treasury. She was shaking hands with the sheriff when the latter asked her:

"You were talking to a prospector out on the plaza last night?" She nodded, and he put another question.

"Didn't see or hear anything over by the old olive grove, did you?"

That reminded her of Nell's encounter with Eddie, but the sheriff's only reaction to this was a shrug. "See you tomorrow morning," he told her. He was, however, to see her much sooner than that, and under circumstances of which neither he nor she dreamed.

With Beulah the net result of that long day amounted to a growing skepticism concerning Harvey's errand, and a decided suspicion that, even if there was anything in the old murder case—which she doubted—the sheriff wasn't going to uncover any evidence which might involve the Alcalde. The Rodriguez murder was a horse of another color, since none of the suspects had votes to deliver at the next election. She wasn't inclined to suspect the Alcalde of anything beyond a spiteful desire to make trouble for Harvey. She cordially disliked the old man. He might have killed Harvey's father nearly 20 years ago, but his limitations didn't go that far now. What it all amounted to, she told herself, was sheep killing and an ordinary paisano murder, with Yardley trying to pin the crime on Harvey for some devious purpose of his own.

She was, however, going to look up Nell immediately upon her arrival. And she was worrying a little because she hadn't been able to do so before. "I'll take her out to the ranch," she promised herself, "and get her mind off this whole business."

Dim-out in Escondido was a year round custom. The only light besides her car's head lamps shone from the window of the saloon. She drew up beside the curb and switched off the ignition, and she was stepping out with the idea of going straight to the tavern, when Hay Belly came forth from the entrance of Doc Munras' drug store.

"O! O!" she murmured. She had forgotten him completely until this moment.

"You are," he announced, "under arrest."

"Now listen," she said, "I'm sorry for that little fracas this morning, and I'm willing to do what's right."

"You can't bribe me," he interrupted. It was a blow beneath the belt. She caught her breath and lost her temper.

"I wouldn't waste good money on you," she replied hotly. "I was talking of bail and a fine."

"Ain't any bail," he told her. "It's the Alcalde's orders that I'm to take you to the can an' lock you up. That's what he said."

For the first time that evening suspicion came to her then, her anger was replaced by a hard alertness.

"You've got a warrant?" she asked.

He nodded.

"He made it out this afternoon. I been waitin' for you ever since."

"First Harvey," she was thinking, "and now me. It looks like a purge all right.

"You coming?" Hay Belly demanded, and a voice said,

"There she is now." The voice came out of the shadow between two building walls where the pedestrian right of way led toward the tavern and the plaza beyond it. It was Rosa's voice. Hay Belly started abruptly when he heard it, and his features relaxed into a fatuous smile. Rosa appeared. She was carrying a flashlight, and she turned it on the constable and his prisoner.

"E'es her!" she cried, and Beulah saw Hay Belly's smile then. She recognized that smile for what it was. It carried her memory back thru more years than she cared to acknowledge, to days when she hadn't needed the ministrations of beauticians. Hay Belly had turned his back on her. The flashlight was still on her face. She closed one eye. She was wishing she belonged to some secret order which had a sign of distress. She nodded at the constable's broad back. Rosa turned off the flash. She edged close to Hay Belly, she took him by the arm. She said,

"O, you heed!"

"I'll go quietly, officer," Beulah told him. "No need for handcuffs."

What Has Gone Before

Nell Huntoon writes to Edward Morton Jr. to review a murder charge against her dead father. Eddie is in financial difficulties and decides if he can incriminate Yardley, a banker known as the Alcalde, it will mean ready money. Yardley has a fear the past will catch up with him. Anthrax is prevalent in the hills. Yardley forces Ursula to get him wool from a dead sheep. At a service station Nell meets Beulah Smith; Harvey Little, son of the man her father was accused of killing, and Anastasia Rodriguez. The service station man is killed by a hit-and-run driver. Anastasia picks up something from the road. Anastasia demands $500 from Eddie for the metal hub cap from his car. Nell is prevented from drinking the poisoned spring water by Harvey. Nell and Beulah see a prospector, with two burros, whom Beulah had grubstaked 20 years ago. After killing the Mexican with Yardley's hammer Eddie meets Nell. Eddie ties the body to one of the burros with a rope taken from Harvey's car. From his window Yardley sees Eddie and the burro pass by. Arming himself, he follows, watches Eddie stow the body in the trunk of Harvey's car. He demands the hub cap and car keys and orders Eddie to bring the hammer to him. Pete Escobar tells Harvey there is one man who can send Yardley to the gas chamber. Harvey takes Pete's horse to find the man. Yardley arranges with Ursula and Andreas for the murder of Eddie after Eddie has disposed of Nell. Plans miscarry. Nell leaps from the death car and its crash starts a forest fire. Andreas kills Eddie and plans to tie up Nell and leave her in the path of the flames. She outwits him. Harvey locates Nell. Leaving her to get his horse, Nell is snatched away by Ursula.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

A PRE-CHRISTMAS gift to the literati of Chicago was Pearl Buck, America's only feminine Nobel prize winner. . . . America has had three Nobel prize winners in literature: Sinclair Lewis in 1930, Eugene O'Neill in 1936, and Pearl Buck in 1938. . . . Miss Buck came to Chicago to deliver an address on "Common Ground for Peoples East and West," to inaugurate a series of lectures and discussions before the East and West association. . . . On her way to that momentous meeting she stopped for a few minutes to greet a large group of Chicago booksellers [nearly 300, who were being offered a gay—and instructive—evening by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE].

She told us how deeply the Chinese respect the printed word. . . . They translate, almost over night, every book in a foreign language that reaches China. . . . In their enthusiasm they often put the translator's name on the book instead of the author's. . . . She found copies of "The Good Earth" in China with three or four different names on it. . . . Their eagerness for reading matter and their sometimes naive belief that everything printed is "knowledge," she said, imposes on any writer the duty to do his or her best and to write the truth.

Pearl Buck made a lovely picture as she stood before the men and women whom she thanked with sincere gratitude for their part in her success. . . . Cresting her brown locks was a band of white hair, nature's plume of dignity. . . . She is a softly spoken person, but her gentle words have force. . . . She has a quiet, head in the heavens quality about her, but her feet are solid on the good earth.

Biographies Won Her Prize.

At luncheon I said to her husband, Richard Walsh, who is also her publisher, that of all her fine books I had a special respect for "The Exile" and "The Fighting Angel," her biographies of her mother and father. . . . They have just been published together in one volume, "The Spirit and the Flesh." . . . They seem to me, I told Mr. Walsh, as nearly perfect as biographies of parents could be: tender and understanding, but completely unprejudiced by either the affection or the understanding. . . . He then told me that when the Nobel award for that year had been discussed by the committee, it was those two books which determined the award, not "The Good Earth." . . . Selma Lagerlof, herself a Nobel prize winner and a member of the committee, told him in Stockholm that she thought they were his wife's finest work.

Pearl Buck somewhat surprised her fellow craftsmen by saying that even she could not sell a short story to a popular magazine unless the story was written "to formula." . . . Unless, that is, its characters conformed in their actions and in their sentiments to the current style of popular magazine heroes and heroines. . . . She wrote a short story about a Japanese for a national weekly and its editor deftly refused to publish the story unless she changed its main character. . . . She refused to make the change. . . . A monthly magazine printed it later unchanged.

Wants to Know Americans.

When Miss Buck was asked if she wanted to go back to China as soon as the war is over, she made what seemed to me a charming and honest reply. . . . She had lived for so many years in China, she said, that America held for her the irresistible allure of a country whose people she wanted to spend the rest of her life getting thoroly to know. . . . However, she said, she did deeply regret that she was not at this moment in China, in the remote villages, where she could see the impact of the first meeting of two utterly different but equally honest and sincere peoples.

Miss Buck is at work on a novel about modern China. . . . The women in it are deep in an emotional situation which seems quite complex to American readers. . . . The heroine is 40 years old as the book begins. . . . Her birthday gesture is to find a second wife for her husband. . . . The novel promises to be one of the author's great books.

Cooking at Sixes and Sevens.

Meanwhile Miss Buck is interested in a Chinese cookbook which her husband will publish soon. . . . It is a delightful philosophical treatise, apparently, as well as a book of recipes for luscious Chinese viands. . . . The Chinese, she said, always break one egg with another egg, never with a knife or by banging it on a table edge as less subtle cooks sometimes do. . . . One of the recipes calls for six eggs, and the author, said Miss Buck, goes into a charming dissertation about which of the seven eggs required to break six should rightly be called the sixth egg. . . . After discussing the delicate problem, the decision of the Chinese is that whichever of the last two eggs breaks is the sixth, even if it is really the seventh. . . . Or do you figure it out differently?

THE JUNIOR BOOKSHELF

By Agatha L. Shea.

TITLE.	SUBJECT.	VERDICT.
"SINISTER ISLAND SQUADRON," by Frederic Nelson Litten. [Dodd, Mead, $2.]	A fast moving story of two Americans doing business in Japan whose homecoming journey after Pearl Harbor is the beginning of a series of adventures for both of them—until they finally meet again in Japan.	An exciting tale with war background for older boys who like thrills and mystery in an up-to-date story.
"THE SECRET SPRING," by Emma Atkins Jacobs. [Winston, $2.]	Laurel Marsh, the 17 year old daughter of a family of traveling musicians, is the heroine of this story of the middlewest in the early 1900s. An auction, a mysterious old chest with a secret drawer, and a sudden disappearance all involving Laurel make this a thriller for the older girl.	A better than average story for the girl who likes mystery and romance in a setting of yesterday. Also interesting for its pictures of Chautauqua days and entertainers.
"PRINCESSES AND PEASANT BOYS," by Phyllis R. Fenner. [Knopf, $2.]	An excellent collection of tales of enchantment in which the peasant boy wins the princess. Includes old favorites from Grimm, Andersen, and Lang, and also contributions of the moderns such as Margery Bianco.	A fine addition to the fairy tale shelf, presenting well selected examples of tales old and new which have delighted young readers. Attractive illustrations by Henry Pitz.

Future Textbooks Shown at Library

A glimpse into what the children of the future will be using in the way of school books may be obtained at the Newberry library this week when the "60 best textbooks"—best from the standpoint of design—will be exhibited under the sponsorship of the Chicago Book clinic.

James B. Blaine, president of the clinic, says the beauty of design and technical excellence of the present day textbook as compared with that of 30 years ago is a surprise as well as a triumph of the designer's art. Making a book on algebra, for example, a work of art is as great an accomplishment as is any other art expression.

The clinic is made up largely of artists, designers, technicians, and executives of Chicago book publishing houses.

In Fourth Printing.

A fourth printing of Philip Wylie's novel, "Night Unto Night," is now on the press, it is reported by Farrar & Rinehart.

A Technique for Producing Ideas

Where do the money-making ideas come from—these ideas that make successful novels, radio programs, moving pictures, advertising campaigns, and businesses? James Webb Young, one of the highest paid idea men in the advertising business, set out to answer this question for his students at the University of Chicago. The result is a little book that you can read in an hour but will remember the rest of your life. In the simplest and clearest of language Mr. Young has succeeded in describing the way the mind works in all creative people. He gives you the FORMULA which they consciously or unconsciously follow in producing ideas. He shows you how to train your mind so that idea production is, as he says, "as definite as the process by which motor cars are produced." Enthusiastically endorsed by editors, college professors, poets, advertising men, salesmen, and business executives who have read it. Send for your copy of A TECHNIQUE FOR PRODUCING IDEAS now. Jasha Heifetz Soloist with Symphony This Week on the Aisle

by Claudia Cassidy

THE most interesting thing I know about ballet this morning is that Antony Tudor is working on one for Tamara Toumanova, and she is in a ballerina's seventh heaven. "I theenk," says the lovely Tamara, "that I weel dance a prostitute [she hesitates over the word] and that there weel be maybe seven men in the ballet weeth me, and it weel have a modern score." Perhaps this is the one that caught a seed of idea from John Van Druten, but don't expect me to know. Both Túdor and Van Druten withdrew into those exasperating British silences that cause the Irish such anguish. But the Russians! Now there are sympathetic souls. When I talk to them I suspect that their ancestors carried shillelaghs and mine rode in a droshky.

Antony Tudor Working on a New Ballet for Toumanova

The darkling Toumanova and her handsome Georgian mamma are about two of the happiest women you could hope to discover. Why not? They came to this country with nothing, knew heartbreak and despair, and had the courage to hang on until fortune smiled that wide, warm smile that means deserved success. Toumanova is back in ballet, dancing superbly, and there she will stay, for it is her true artistic home. But she has a piéd a terre in Hollywood, a three year contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which calls for five pictures and gives her time to dance. And most of all she has a happy marriage with Casey Robinson, for which mamma daily gives prayerful thanks. It's a happy family, and they mean to make it last.

Tamara Toumanova.

Now that she is Mrs. Robinson, Mr. Robinson will not be producing her pictures for a while, tho he launched her well with "Days of Glory." He, too, has signed with M-G-M and at the moment is writing the picture that will restore Clark Gable to a palpitant public. He told her, by telephone, he thinks it is "pretty good," which she translates as eminently satisfactory. That was part of an expensive conversation in which Toumanova told him all about going on in "Fancy Free" at the last Civic Opera house matinée. She did it "to cheer up the kids," whom she reciprocally adores, and her appearance surprised every one, including conductor Mois Zlatin, who calls her "Bullet" because her dancing speed makes him hold the orchestra on a hair trigger. Zlatin heard the orchestra whispering "Toumanova" at her entrance, and he was so startled he looked up and muttered, "Go away, Bullet, you don't belong there." The three sailors waiting nonchalantly for Shirley Eckl's entrance stood agape when they saw Toumanova, but only Harold Lang swallowed his gum.

Proves She's No Prima Donna.

The hullabaloo backstage over this little coup was doubly engaging because when Toumanova joined Ballet Theater as guest artist, there was a feeling, not so much among the dancers as among the innumerable hangers-on who infest ballet, that she was going to be a prima donna. Perhaps they expected her to behave like the ballerinas in "Gala Performance," all phony temperament and hoity-toity grandeur. Some one even warned Nora Kaye that Toumanova would want her role in "Pillar of Fire," but Kaye has brains [as tho any one who ever saw her dance could doubt it] and she replied with the polite equivalent of "Nuts." The story got under way, too, that Toumanova wanted no partner but Dolin, tho Chicago knows the truth about that, having seen what she did for Berwyn's Johnny Kriza, a boy for whom she predicts a great future. She worked with him hours every day and he developed before our astonished eyes from a dancer of enormous promise to what in that pas de deux from "Swan Lake" was amazingly close to a premier danseur.

She did this, and other things, as she will tell you herself, because she had the opportunity as a child in Europe to know the work of Pavlova, Kchessinska, Preobrajenska, and others of the great tradition. "We absorbed it like sponges," she says, including her fellow students, "and I want in my turn to squeeze out every drop to help the new ones with such great promise."

Back in the early days in Monte Carlo, when Toumanova was 15, Massine, delighted with her work in "Tricorne," said she might do Zobeide in "Schéhérazade"—but the ballet was able to get Lubov Tchernicheva [pronounced chova just to make it tough] and that was that. Toumanova was heartbroken until she saw the performance. Then she went to Tchernicheva with a typical Toumanova gesture and apologized "for having been angry with her in her heart." They were friends from that day.

About that Chicago opening night sense of strain in "Aurora's Wedding," her sense of humor comes to the rescue. In Cleveland she had done a wonderful arabesque on point but it didn't quite come off here. "Ooh," she says, blushing a bit, "you should have seen my face." To make it worse, she did an even better arabesque on point the night of the "Nutcracker" pas de deux, when so many of us who would have given our eyeteeth to see it were at Orchestra hall.

Papa Toumanova Sees for Himself.

It's a good thing Papa Toumanova wasn't here the night it didn't quite come off. He is a balletomane veritable and, with strangers, a shy man. But he gets along fine with Casey Robinson, who takes him to all the previews while Tamara and mamma troupe. After Ballet Theater opened in Canada, Tamara reported to papa by telephone. "Papa," she said, still tingling from the memory, "I had beeg success!" Papa was having none of that. "How was your dancing?" he demanded sternly. "Papa, I danced fine. I had many curtain calls, I had beeg success." Papa thought it over, and spoke. He said, judicially, "I think you are lying."

So Mr. Robinson brought papa to New York to see for himself, and they brought the dogs along to see Toumanova. Ballet Theater had standees at the Met and Tamara had fabulous curtain calls. Papa came very close to a smile. Then he went home with Casey Robinson to Tamara's house in the Palisades which she loves and for which she and mamma buy carefully on tour, as collectors buy, shipping things out to wait for their return.

Toumanova will dance with Ballet Theater in several cities, reaching home by way of San Francisco and Los Angeles. Meanwhile, her black eyes shine at the prospect, still just a hopeful project, of returning to Chicago in the spring. She is disappointed not to have danced "Giselle" here with Hugh Laing, whom she considers a superb theater personality.

Violinist Back After Absence of Two Seasons

By Albert Goldberg.

Jascha Heifetz, one of the greatest violinists of this or any other age, will appear as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the Thursday-Friday concerts, playing the Brahms concerto under the direction of Désiré Defauw. Heifetz has not appeared as soloist with the orchestra for two seasons. Strangely enough, in the 27 years since he first played with the orchestra he has been heard only in seven seasons. There once was an 11 year hiatus—between the 40th and 51st seasons—when the violinist was not heard on Chicago Symphony programs. Heifetz is now 43 and has been before the public continuously for 36 years, having made his debut at the age of seven. His historic American debut was made in New York in 1917, after a long flight from revolutionary Russia.

For the first part of the Thursday-Friday program Mr. Defauw has listed Chabrier's "Bourée Fantasque," Ibert's "Escales" [Ports of Call], which has appeared on the orchestra's programs seven times since the work was first introduced 19 years ago, and d'Indy's Variations Symphonique, "Istar," Opus 42.

A novelty appears on the Tuesday program, which will be conducted by Hans Lange, in the form of a new Handel transcription by Sir Thomas Beecham, "Amaryllis," a suite for orchestra, consisting of eight dance movements. Mr. Lange's program also includes Miaskowsky's Symphonie Fantasie" in F sharp minor, a work which was commissioned by and dedicated to the Chicago Symphony orchestra during its golden jubilee season, and which has since been performed elsewhere as the composer's 21st symphony. Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis," for double string orchestra, Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony, and Siegfried's Rhine Journey, from Wagner's "Twilight of the Gods," complete the program.

VIOLINIST

Jascha Heifetz, who will play Brahms' Violin Concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra Thursday evening and Friday afternoon at Orchestra hall.

The second Composers Concert sponsored by the music department of the University of Chicago will be devoted to the music of Prokofieff, Schoenberg and Stravinsky in Mandel hall on Wednesday at 8:30. This concert will take the place of the program originally planned to have been devoted to the music of Arnold Schoenberg in honor of hi- 70th birthday, and canceled because of the composer's illness. The program as rearranged includes the midwest premiere of Prokofieff's new Sonata in D, for violin and piano, to be played by Joseph Szigeti and Harry Kaufman, a work which will have received its first American hearing in New York only two days earlier. Mr. Szigeti and Mr. Kaufman also will be heard in Stravinsky's Duo Concertante. In addition, the Pro Arte String quartet will play Schoenberg's third quartet, and Prokofieff's quartet, Opus 50. Present membership of the Pro Arte quartet consists of Rudolph Kolisch, first violin; Germain Prevost, viola; Albert Rahier, second violin, and Ernst Friedlander, ..llist.

Augustana Reorganizes Liberal Arts Curriculum

Four Divisions of Learning in New Program

By The Rev. John Evans.

The Rev. Dr. Conrad Bergendoff, president of Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., announces that the new curriculum will so interpret and apply civilization's amassed knowledge as to ensure that a liberal education be a preparation for a life work. Under this plan, therefore, instruction has been organized into four divisions—humanities, religion and philosophy, social studies, and natural sciences.

Since not even the greatest university can completely comprehend the accumulated wisdom of the ages, these divisions, Dr. Bergendoff states, "will offer clearly defined areas of knowledge" which will provide the student "with a chart for lifelong exploration and inspiring faith in the meaning of both the search and the goal."

Approximately one-third the schedule of the four year student is definitely prescribed within the above divisions, tho particular courses in each division may be selected. The aim of the plan is that a student should learn to appreciate something of the great tradition of a nation in its literature, science, art, and religion by arranging his studies around definite centers of interest with the ultimate view of an effective career ahead.

"Historically the liberal arts tradition," Dr. Bergendoff continued, "has been connected with certain ancient professions—theology, law, medicine. Democracy, even more than aristocratic systems of society, wishes to preserve the human heritage of learning as a possession of all professions and vocations."

The dean of the faculty directs the curriculum assisted by chairmen of the four divisions. Selection of courses will be guided by the student's choice of a career. But to assure an intelligible sequence in these courses toward a specific end a student will be aided by counselors associated with each of the sequences.

Indiana and Butler universities announce a pooling of their resources in the Indianapolis area to meet the increasing demand for adult education thru evening school work. President Herman B. Wells of Indiana and President M. O. Ross of Butler jointly state that this unique coöperative effort, effective Jan. 1, avoids all duplication of activities and expense involving the curricula; and that the fullest educational leadership for adults has been afforded by combining Butler's evening division, founded in 1899, and Indiana's extension center, started in 1916, both as to faculties and physical plants.

Shafer and Margit Bokor in the roles played by Richard Bonelli and Irra Petina at the Civic Opera house a year ago. Mr. Shafer is a baritone of the San Francisco Opera and Miss Bokor, a Viennese, was with our opera in 1940 when she sang Octavian, then Sophie, in the two performances of "Rosenkavalier" conducted by Fritz Reiner.

Anthony Marlowe and Marjorie Cooke are back in this operetta about Johann Strauss, but it is said to be much changed since its not too happy engagement on Wacker dr. Theodore Bachenheimer is still the stage director, but David Lichine's ballets have vanished with Tatiana Riabouchinska, and now the dances are by Kathryn Etienne, with Beth Dean and Hubert Bland as leading dancers. Franz Steininger will direct. There will be Saturday and Sunday Matinées, with a special Wednesday matinée on Dec. 27.

If of late you have observed a silver fox coat going about with no visible means of locomotion, look again. That's Devi-Dja inside. But the tiny dancer won't be wearing it tonight when with Wani, Mimah, and Tinah she appears in the dances of Bali and Java with her exotic little gamelan orchestra at the Civic theater. It will be her first recital in several seasons, and back of that is a story.

When war struck three years ago this little troupe was twice bereft. It had no home, and it could not get gasoline to continue its tours, always made frugally by automobile. The dancers were stranded, but not without resources. At the home of friends they gave several parties at which they served their native foods—the idea was to find which of those foods Americans like best. Then they opened a little restaurant and in that tiny place on a postage stamp floor they did their dances. No curtain there for effect, even Devi-Dja had to walk thru the aisle of tables to reach the improvised stage. It wasn't easy, but they did it, and they kept going.

So tonight it will be something of an event when the curtain goes up and there is Devi-Dja in a Balinese dance new to Chicago, the Kebyar, a mysterious texture of dance and drum woven in what, knowing Devi-Dja, could be wizardry, The Tandak, a folk dance of Sumatra, is new, too, as are the Javanese journey of the soul called the Batarra, the epic of Javanese heroes known as the Arjuna, and the adaptation of Javanese drama named Hanuman, for the monkey god. Among older favorites in her Chicago repertory, Devi-Dja promises the famous temple dance, "The Temptation of Buddha."

Margaret Graham Dancers.

Martha Graham and her company of dancers will appear here in February under the Harry Zelzer management, the date and theater to be announced later.

Janta Tells About Life in Germany

"I LIED TO LIVE," by Alexander Janta. [Roy Publishers, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Sigrid Schultz.

Taken prisoner in the debacle of France in 1940, the Polish officer Alexander Janta masqueraded as a Frenchman to save his life. Just how he and his French comrades managed to survive is the gripping story told in "I Lied to Live." But the book is infinitely more than the record of brave men facing one of the grimmest experiences of war. It is a factual, honest answer to the question which millions of Americans continue to ask: "What about the Germans who are not Nazis?" Meet Family Schnable, to whom Janta was assigned as a war prisoner, and you'll know the answer.

Alexander Janta.

The Frenchmen who threw their weapons away in 1940 believed in the existence of the kindly German who wanted to coöperate peacefully with the rest of the world. When Janta and his friends were behind barbed wire in Strasbourg, the Frenchmen still felt certain that if they accepted the German terms peace would return to Europe. Credulity was their main crime.

Those of us who saw prisoners of war in German cities in the icy winter of 1940-'41 know how their credulity was punished. We saw the walking skeletons compelled to work for the Germans tho they looked as if, at the next corner, they would fall to the ground with a clatter of dry bones.

Janta and his friends were in the country, where the leavings were a little more plentiful. His eyewitness report is full of shrewd, revealing observations of life in Germany in war time and it is spiced with amusing interludes such as the escape of the snails which the French prisoners were preparing for a succulent meal when a draconic Prussian inspection officer descended on them.

Janta and his friends saw their German masters attempt to become kind for a short span when they feared defeat at the time of the German invasion of Russia. It is to be hoped that this same fear will induce the Germans to show a certain modicum of decency to the prisoners they hold now when their defeat is certain.

Where Do You Rate On Quiz Questions?

"RIDDLE-DE-QUIZ," compiled by Helen Stevens Fisher. [M. S. Mill, $2.]

Helen Stevens Fischer of radio fame assembled these riddles and trick questions with the idea of testing mother wit more than learning. They are on an adult level but in widely assorted fields. In any case, they amuse. This reviewer [his wit being limited] had to read the answers of all but the few already familiar.

LAURENCE T. HERON.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

AT a dinner of the Westerners the other evening Prof. Walter Blair of the University of Chicago related how he happened to write "Tall Tale America." . . . A former newspaper man [on the staff of the Spokane Spokesman-Review], he took up teaching, he said, because he found that teachers have long vacations in which to do graduate work. . . . His studies led him to the conclusion that the practice of men in "eternally swapping stories" has provided a rich subsoil of American literary humor. . . . "Unlike the Europeans," he told the Westerners, "we pull our heroes down off their pedestals and laugh at them. Our heroes are the most democratic in the world." . . . When he finished his graduate work he began touring in search of material, and unearthed many stories of great liars. . . . He thought a compilation of these stories might be both amusing and instructive. . . . His book was the result.

Elizabeth Bullock, formerly of Chicago, has resigned as managing editor of the Ziff-Davis book division to become head of the mystery department at Farrar & Rinehart. . . . Jim Malloy, in town the other day with Melville Minton, president of G. P. Putnam's Sons, said that Arch Ward's "Frank Leahy and the Fighting Irish" has sold beyond all expectations, so that now the publishers are having trouble to keep up with the orders. . . . BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery.

WANTED: A novelist, preferably one like Somerset Maugham, to write me a well studied tale of Alexander Pope, the hunchback poet, and the women he dared not love.

He did love once, for a dizzy and disastrous moment, having misinterpreted the homage that came to him as a reward for his poetry. The error was quickly and cruelly corrected.

Edith Sitwell, in her biography of Pope, describing the period of his illusion, says:

"Tho he was deformed, people with beautiful shapes surrounded him, were proud of knowing him—if he did not make love to them. And he soon, only too soon, learned not to do that."

As a title for the novel I want somebody to write, I offer "The Lady Who Laughed." I mean Lady Mary Wortley Montague, who had a right to call herself a Lady, but only with a capital L. Lately I have been reading about her, and the more I read the madder she made me. Now—since she has been dead for the better part of two centuries—I think I shall not be accused of hasty anger if I suggest that a competent novelist impale her in a book and broil her over the slow fire of a whole world's wrath.

Pope told her he loved her. And she laughed in his face.

How I have lived so long and known so little of Pope—Pope the man, not Pope the poet—I cannot explain. But a window opened for me last week, when I picked up an old book and found it to be a gold mine of things I ought to have known long ago. It was "Spence's Anecdotes," by Joseph Spence, friend of Pope and intimate of many other writers of the Pope period. It took him 50 years to collect his treasury of little stories, which were published posthumously. Copies are rather hard to find just now, but I might be induced to lend mine to the novelist I am looking for—provided he gives me a satisfactory guarantee.

The novel I am asking for will be richly peopled. Foremost among the characters, of course, will be Pope himself, deformed devotee of form, poet whose brain could dance tho his legs could scarcely walk, singer of Homeric heroes while himself so helpless he could not put on his clothes unassisted, Pope the pitiable and proud, the unloved lover of the Lady who laughed.

Voltaire will be in the book—genius of satire, all venom and vinegar, the Voltaire whose dinner talk drove Pope's sensitive mother from the dining table. Addison, the stylist, expert in elegance, joint editor of The Spectator, will appear. So will his partner, Steele. And we shall meet Dean Swift, whose famous wit is accounted for by Spence: "Dr. Swift lies a-bed till 11 o'clock, and thinks of wit for the day," a thought that suggests how certain radio gagmen might profitably spend a year or two in bed.

For our male villain the only candidate is the petty critic, John Dennis, who, lacking Pope's brain stature, lampooned the cripple's body—and did it, too, while the victim was young, inflicting wounds that never healed. A greater wound, however, was that inflicted by Lady Montague.

In childhood she was a clever brat, an odious prodigy. At the age of 73, when she died, she was still a brat—if the word's definition may be stretched a little. She boasted that when she was a little girl she "stole" the Latin language by pretending to read novels and romances in her father's library while she really struggled with lexicons and grammars and the texts of ancient authors. It took her two years, working five or six hours a day. Then she calmly announced:

"I admired Mr. Pope's 'Essay on Criticism' at first very much, because I had not then read any of the ancient critics and did not know that it was all stolen."

Pope, admiring the liar, forgave the lie.

Lady Montague boasted of her conquest of Pope and told Spence she had "50 or 60" of his letters. "You should see what a goddess he made of me in some of them," she said. But after she had laughed at his declaration of love, she said she could not understand why he avoided her!

THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake.

ENTRY.	PERFORMANCE.	PAYOFF.
"THE NEEDLE'S EYE," by Edward Lee. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Young Francis Bonham was murdered in swanky Communist rest center which, oddly, his father, wealthy industrialist, was supporting financially. Red Blake, detective, hired by victim's fiancé, encountered morass of conflicting forces in landing murderer.	Unique plot woven around earnestly presented industrial theme. Considerable action and surprise, but author gives reader difficult job to get clear grasp of complications.
"RACE WITH THE SUN," by Granville Church. [Mill, $2.]	Murder that smells of Jap treachery strikes down Chinese who delivers portentous papers to retired ambassador to orient in his home in California hills. Papers disappear as prelude to more murders and hazardous pursuit of Black Dragon villains.	Fanciful, spectacular, purposeful melodrama. Characters vague and unreal. Author is inexcusably parsimonious with details in striving to keep reader puzzled. Diverting excitement.
"AFTER DINNER STORY," by William Irish. [Lippincott, $2.]	Story of the title and five other short yarns in this book. They range from murder mystery to stark, purposeless tragedy. One is diabolical horror tale of marihuana victim running amuck.	Variety of diverting reading here, altho some of it is for you only if you can take unmasked details of homicide. An assortment of good plotting of crime tales.

Carmen Cavallaro Superb as Empire Room Star

Poet of Piano Tops Brilliant Holiday Revue

By Will Davidson.

They call Carmen Cavallaro the Poet of the Piano, so it was only natural that in designing a dance routine to frame his superb improvisations upon the theme of the Afro-Cuban "Enlloro" Miss Merriel Abbott should have decorated her girls in, among other things, pheasant feathers. Poet and pheasant combined to produce one of the most spectacularly successful presentations in the history of the Palmer House's fabulous Empire room.

"Enlloro" is one of the most dramatic of the rhumbas, and Carmen used it as a vehicle for recordings, movie solos, and cafe presentations. His improvisation is the work of a man who is a thoro, imaginative, impeccable artist, and it gives to each playing of the number a spontaneity that is electric in its effect.

The Abbott routine is one of her best—as simple fundamentally as the insistent theme of "Enlloro," yet flashing with color, dramatic in its climaxes and its subtle moments.

Carmen also repeats Richard Addinsell's "Warsaw Concerto" in this new Empire room Holiday revue. He played it last season as his debut number in the Empire room, and it is in the nature of a command performance this time.

Carmen is the unquestioned star of the Holiday revue, but he has excellent support. Jayne Digatano and Adam, one of the most effective dance teams in the business, headline the cast. Their Beguine, Hallelujah, and Dancing Tambourine numbers are masterpieces of beautiful motion. Jayne is an ice blonde beauty, and no lovelier woman has performed in the Empire room. She is the reason and the meaning of each routine, and to Mr. Digatano goes warm praise for such wise and unselfish emphasis on his partner's contribution.

In strange and hilarious contrast, the Borah Minevitch Rascals play their harmonicas to the delight of the crowds. It is, of course, little Johnny Puleo, a master pantomimist of the shy school, who makes this a show-stopping act. Dorr Stuart, a young baritone with an amazing range, is a surprise hit as the opening act, and G. Ray Terrell, suavely silent magician, scores effectively with his rabbit stew production.

The Abbott girls, in addition to their spectacular "Enlloro" number, do a pert and saucy little "Jack in the Box" turn that is in the better Abbott tradition.

Altho it hasn't quite the quality of individual acts as its predecessor, the current revue in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel is a colorful, fast moving, crowd pleasing show. They call it the "Rollicking Rhapsody" and Producer Anthony Nelle has blended comedy and action with good effect.

Nora Neal. [Rudolph photo.]

The Even Stephens dominate the opening phase of the revue, doing a precision number to "Pretty Baby" and "I Got Rhythm," and closing the turn with a masked parade in which they represent various movie stars. In between these numbers the Six Sophisticates, a half dozen beautiful show girls, symbolize various famous movies as Phil Kinsman sings "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody." Nora Neal, who as Nora Neol used to be one of the Sophisticates, makes her bow as a singing single in this show and introduces this opening number.

The Even Stevens, Kinsman, and Miss Neal collaborate again in the production highlight of the show—"Moscow Bells." Colorful Russian costumes, a comedy skit starring Miss Neal, Kinsman, and Dancer Berna Moore, and finally the whirling, exciting action of Woodie and Betty, a tremendous roller skating team, make this a superb number.

Chris Cross, the comic ventriloquist with the dummy that comes unhinged during the excitement of a black light skit; Rochelle and Beebe, comedy dance team; and Arren and Broderick, the slapstick "operatic" team that features the roller skating prima donna, are the other acts in the revue. Their contribution is good, standard vaudeville entertainment.

Tommy Tucker's band continues to be an ace attraction in the room, and does its own bit in the show with Trumpeter Leo Ortyl featured in "Blue Skies." Tommy continues his audience participation skit in midevening, "Sing for Your Supper with Tommy Tucker." It involves four guests in a singing contest for free meals.

That smooth Tommy Dorsey band has been doing an excellent job of entertaining College Inn patrons at the Hotel Sherman the last 10 days, but will give way Friday to Bobby Sherwood, who stays thru New Year's Eve. Bobby is pretty much of a newcomer here and his visit is being anticipated.

Dorsey's instrumental setup is very similar to the one Gene Krupa used so effectively, but the results are different. Dorsey's music is excellent in a standard way, whereas Krupa had the dramatic effect of his percussion work around which to build entirely different types of production numbers.

Dorsey has a drummer of no mean ability himself—Buddy Rich. Buddy is a frantic skin beater and an excellent one. Then there are Jess Stacey at the piano, beautiful Bonnie Lou Williams at the mike, handsome and sweet voiced Freddy Stewart, and the Sentimentalists to fill out a good show. Bob Allen pinch hit as emcee, and Al Biller conducted in Tommy's absence.

Notes of the Theater

Agatha Christie, who demolishes eight of "Ten Little Indians" nightly at Harris matinées, has finished a new play called "Hidden Horizon," which Albert de Courville and Lee Shubert hope to produce with equal success, only this will have its première in New York instead of London. The action takes place on a steamer plying the Nile, so it could be a dramatization of her mystery novel, "Death on the Nile." If so, what lucky actor is going to play that beau of plump Brummels, Hercule Poirot?

Maurice Schwartz, long the star of the Yiddish Art theater, would like as many of his friends as possible to get out to the Douglas Park theater to see him in "Mr. Sender Blank," because he so rarely plays comedy in Chicago. Sholom Aleichem, he says, is the Jewish Mark Twain. Next on Mr. Schwartz's repertory schedule is "The Folk Singer," by Harry Kalmonowitz, opening Dec. 22, and the last play is the "Jewish King Lear," adapted by Jacob Gordon, which opens Jan. 5.

People who simply can't figure out the title of "The Voice of the Turtle" have but to write the Selwyn theater, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and they will receive a mimeographed sheet with detailed explanation and the exact quotation with its Biblical source. Nothing like this has happened in Chicago since every one wanted a copy of Grandpa's grace in "You Can't Take It With You."

There is talk in New York, at the City Center, of reviving "Topaze," the enchanting comedy by Marcel Pagnol and Ben W. Levy which was played on the stage by Frank Morgan and in pictures by John Barrymore. Morgan did it here, quite unforgettably, but not enough people went to see it.

Even in boom seasons some shows die fast. Laurence Stallings' "The Streets Are Guarded" closed last night after 24 New York performances, and "Rhapsody," which is said to have spent $300,000 to no avail, folded up a week ago. But "Embezzled Heaven," the Theater Guild play, is slated to reopen in New York tomorrow night, now that Ethel Barrymore has recuperated from pneumonia.

Burl Ives, the chubby ballad singer, is featured in the Theater Guild's musical, "Sing Out, Sweet Land," and he scorns the problems of city dwellers. Mr. Ives lives on a house barge called The Water Gypsy which he bought for $600. Moored in the Harlem river it is air cooled by river breezes in summer and heated by a pot-bellied stove in winter. Mr. Ives just sits and sings.

Bennett Cerf and Van H. Cartmell, the indefatigable pair who keep picking volumes of plays, now have "S. R. O.," which as every one knows is standing room only, a collection of the most successful plays in the history of the American stage from "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to "Oklahoma!" [Doubleday, Doran, $3.75]. There is an introduction by John Chapman, and between the two end piece plays are "East Lynne," "The Two Orphans," "The Old Homestead," "Rip Van Winkle" [Joseph Jefferson version], "The Man from Home," "Peg o' My Heart," "Lightnin'," "The Bat," "Abie's Irish Rose," "Tobacco Road," "Life with Father," and "Arsenic and Old Lace." Each play is complete with casts, original or otherwise, and other playbill material.

"Kiss and Tell" will celebrate the holidays by playing simultaneously on six parts of the globe. Broadway Gets a Horror Play, 'Hand in Glove'

By John Chapman.

NEW YORK [Special].—The night before "Angel Street," the perfect thriller, celebrated its third birthday on Broadway on Dec. 5, a new blood curdler called "Hand in Glove" appeared. It is not the taut and artful job that Patrick Hamilton's venerable thriller is, but it might do if people are in the market for occasional gobs of horror and one job of acting that is completely revolting.

This particular piece of acting, done by a man with the fascinating name of Skelton Knaggs, is far from being bad; it is, in fact, too good. Mr. Knaggs [and the program says he has specialized in this sort of thing during most of his career] portrays a half-wit boy, and, baby, there hasn't been anything like it since Lon Chaney I. made a fortune frightening people. Mr. Knaggs rolls his eyes, jerks his limbs, drools, speaks in falsetto, and gibbers in a manner that makes Dude Lester look like William Howard Taft. And Mr. Knaggs isn't the villain, either. He's the innocent victim.

"Hand in Glove" has been adapted by Charles K. Freeman and Gerald-Savory from a novel by Savory titled "Hugh Roddis." It is our old friend, Mrs. Belloc Lowndes' "The Lodger," alias Jack the Ripper, given some new psychopathic trimmings and set in present day Yorkshire. Sometimes it does manage to curdle the blood; but too much of the time it just curdles itself.

There is no mystery in the Freeman-Savory play. At curtain rise you're in the misty shadows of old Queens dock [mighty well set forth by Designer Samuel Leve] and right away a slick and offensive young man puts on a pair of gloves, strangles a pretty girl, and then mutilates her. [It turns out that he hates women and can't stand touching them, so this is why he wears gloves when he gets the joyful impulse to kill them.]

This chap, played in extravagant Grand Guignol style by George Lloyd, is one of the lodgers of a lady known as Aunty Em because this idiot boy we were talking about is her nephew. He is a card, this fellow—slick and glib and given to flattery and deceit. When the neighbors and the constable get to thinking maybe addle-pated Hughie did the carving, the real killer naturally does what he can to help the suspicion along.

A Scotland Yard man finally comes from London, tho, and traps the real maniac. The detective role is excellently, amiably played by Aubrey Mather—but for me there is not enough suspense in what he does to hold me in my seat. The play is discursive; it brings in several characters who have nothing to do with the plot and aren't too interesting anyhow. It fails, moreover, to arouse my sympathy for the half-wit or make me worry whether or not he is going to get stuck with two murders and the start on a third.

In its moments of tension, however, "Hand in Glove" is effective. Its original homicide is crisply projected, and there is a cat-and-mouse interval between the detective and the psychopath which is exciting. James Whale, who became famous for directing "Journey's End," staged the play.

It is the habit of the public to make monkeys out of the critics several times a season by making hits out of plays that should never have come in. The score, to date:

"Catherine Was Great," in which Mae West parades thru three solemn, overdraped acts. Miss West not long ago had a backstage party celebrating the 100th performance of her play. She didn't invite any newspaper men.

"School for Brides," in which Roscoe Karns ogles a lot of girls in underwear. The management says it has been constantly working on improving this one since it got kicked right in the scanties on opening night, and claims the comedy is now funny. Could happen. Anyway the thing is doing business.

"In Bed We Cry," by Ilka Chase, all about sex and what a heck of a time a woman has when too many men adore her. Miss Chase wears seven costumes and is very popular.

"The Perfect Marriage," a long talk about love in Samson Raphaelson's best hollow-comedy manner. An informant says the movie names of Miriam Hopkins and Victor Jory make this one a success.

It also is the habit of the critics to make monkeys out of each other. I do not consider, or try to guess about, anybody else's opinion before making up my own mind, but I have an obvious professional curiosity about what the other fellow is saying and read all the boys and the one girl regularly.

When they agree with me I think they are pretty smart. When they disagree I get plum disgusted with them. Thus, I was aroused when it developed that I liked Laurence Stallings' "The Streets Are Guarded" very much and practically everybody else put a curse on it. They said it was mystic and fuzzy. I said it was a good, plain melodrama about a marine in the South Pacific. Mr. Stallings' play was scheduled to close last night.

Another piece of work which one or two of us liked, "Men to the Sea," collapsed under the weight of the more numerous denunciations, and this was too bad, for it was well written by a newcomer, Herbert Kubly.

Fisher Portrays Life of Ancient Man in Fire Age

"THE GOLDEN ROOMS," by Vardis Fisher. [Vanguard, $2.50.]

In "Darkness and the Deep" Vardis Fisher launched an imaginative biographical history of primitive man which caught the fancy of many readers and critics. His command of language, his clarity of thinking, his well controled imagination served to create an effective picture of the crude mind of man at the beginning—his struggles and his first, blind wisps of thought.

Vardis Fisher.

"The Golden Rooms" continues this story into the age of fire. In it we see with brilliant clarity the development of ancient man's first concept of spiritual fear. Altho Mr. Fisher achieves realism by an overdose of frankly repulsive description, his narrative has tremendous power at times, and is extremely moving. There is immense logic in his evaluation of man's mental and spiritual development. It is unfortunate that so much of the book is devoted to stomach turning details about the personal habits of ancient man.

Hypothetical Cases Show Legal Methods

"WHAT IS THE VERDICT?" by Fred L. Gross. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

Nine hypothetical cases illustrating the way the law and lawyers work are used by the author in this entertaining and unusual book. Such subjects as the use of psychiatry in murder cases, the legal rights of owners of wandering live stock, the rights of children, divorce, and inheritance, are taken up by Mr. Gross. "What Is the Verdict?" should prove interesting to both layman and lawyer. The author, who has his own law firm in Brooklyn, has been president of the New York State Bar association and the Brooklyn Bar association.

A Gay Flood of Juvenile Publications

By Bennet B. Harvey.

Never before in the history of children's book publishing has there been such a significant and exciting year as 1944. A deluge of gay and appealing picture books and story books is pouring forth from the publishers' presses in a tremendous volume. Almost before the ink has had a chance to dry, the books are rushed to the book stores from coast to coast. They are being eagerly purchased for millions of children, many of whom might never have been introduced to the joys of reading but for the wartime shortage of toys.

This great surge of accelerated interest in children's books has had a profound influence on the books themselves. Publishers, authors, and artists have been spurred as never before to put forth their best efforts. Because of savings brought about by increased press runs, publishers are able to offer to the children of today more colorful and enticing books than ever before at prices to suit the pocketbooks of families in every income bracket.

The children's book of today is designed to play a vital part in the everyday life of the child. No longer is it thought of as something to be brought out to relieve the monotony of a rainy day and then put away and forgotten. When toys come back again from war, the children who greet them will have a richer understanding of life because they will be a generation of book lovers.

We hope and sincerely trust that the joys to be found between the covers of a book will never again be lost to future generations of children. May the child of the future go forward with a toy under one arm and a book under the other!

Critic Thinks Miss Brittain Is Too Intense

"ACCOUNT RENDERED," by Vera Brittain. [Macmillan, $3.]

Reviewed by James Gray.

Vera Brittain is an intense and idealistic woman who, whenever she presents herself in the role of novelist, can be counted upon to have a mannerly crisis of the nerves over moral issues, abstract theories of human behavior and prophecies regarding the pattern of tomorrow's world. In "Account Rendered" she offers, among other challenging ideas, the suggestion that civilization itself is the chief war criminal to be brought to trial when the conflict is over. It has permitted its leaders to bungle public affairs so lamentably that unoffending men and women have been forced to fight an unnecessary battle. Then, if a delicately organized individual here and there finds it impossible to face the incredible exactions of war, civilization takes a pious stand and brands him a coward and a rascal.

Vera Brittain.

This theme is dramatized in the tragedy of a musician and composer of music whose talents are shattered by experiences in two wars. In the first, he served as a very young lieutenant. Buried alive by the effects of an exploding bomb, he was rescued with his nervous system permanently damaged. At times of strong feeling he is likely to "black out" completely, a failing which makes it impossible for him to appear in public as a performer of music. But his cruel emergency arises in the second World War when the threat of invasion topples him into one of his states of unconsciousness in the course of which he becomes responsible for the death of his much loved wife.

There is drama in plenty to such a story. It should be moving; but it is not. Miss Brittain has lost her ability to think as a creative artist. Her characters fail to come alive; they merely jump spasmodically and awkwardly at the ends of her strings of theory. The structure of the novel is bad; the trial sequence is repetitious and ineffective.

Perhaps she would do better to settle down to being frankly a purveyor and popularizer of ideas. Even in that capacity, however, she needs more control than she seems able to muster. Miss Brittain is like an exhorting evangelist who has studied conscientiously to overcome old tricks but whose voice is still shaken, all unconsciously, by the tremolo of righteous indignation.

Novel by Molnar.

"Farewell My Heart," a love story by Ferenc Molnar, will be published next spring by Simon & Schuster.

Publishers Happy; They Can't Fill the Orders for New Books

By Harry Hansen.

New York.

Never before have I seen so many smiles on the faces of disappointed publishers. They are happy because they are out of books, and disappointed because they can't fill new orders for lack of paper. If they had their way, forests would fall right and left so that the appetite of the American public for books might be appeased. Never has the public been so voracious.

Publishers without big best sellers have been able to allocate paper stock pretty evenly in their lists, and all their titles are moving. This is an unusually healthy situation. When a house is limited in its supplies of paper and gets a best seller it is tempted to supply the demand rather than work hard to push other books, and thereby the books less in demand are hurt. Authors are very sensitive to this situation, and their usual excuse for leaving one publisher for another—when they do so voluntarily—is that the original publisher didn't push their books hard enough.

It Need Not Die.

Ben Lucien Burman, author of "Big River to Cross" and specialist on Mississippi river folklore, once explained the matter thus: "I work pretty hard for my stories and it takes me a long time to complete a book. So when it is published I want to get out of it everything I can. I want the public to know it is on sale; so I keep behind it myself."

Mr. Burman has amply demonstrated that a novel need not die in one short season, even if it starts selling slowly. "Steamboat Round the Bend" was a case in point. He considered it was a pretty good story, to put it mildly. When one publisher thought it had exhausted its sales possibilities he took it to another for a new edition with a new introduction. The writer of that introduction happened to be myself.

The new edition, plus Mr. Burman's personal supervision, was responsible for a sale to the movies and a famous steamboat picture with Will Rogers and Irvin S. Cobb in it.

It Won't Be Long Now.

Publishers are now waiting for the arrival of Jan. 2. It can't come a day too soon. On that day they begin dipping into their 1945 paper quotas. Every print shop making books for the regular publishers is committed to contracts that will keep presses rolling continuously for months.

A publisher recently asked Harry West, head of the book section of the printing and publishing division of the WPB, which allocates paper, whether the paper used by a press that ran right thru from the last days of 1944 into the first week of 1945 would be counted as belonging to the quotas of the years in which it was printed. Mr. West replied that this would be considered as a 1944 press run and counted in the 1944 quota. So one edition will have to stop on the night of Saturday, Dec. 30, and a new edition start on Tuesday, Jan. 2, and under present conditions it's a wise manager who can come out even.

Another Award Next Year.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has decided to continue its award of $125,000 plus for the best novel, which led to the selection of Elizabeth Goudge's "Green Dolphin Street" in 1944. Miss Goudge, by the way, will be entitled to that $50,000 increase, making the prize $175,000, and the publisher will get $25,000. Miss Constance Smith, who was fiction editor of McCall's magazine, will take charge of the 1945 prize, succeeding John Scott Mabon. Mr. Mabon, who had been director of the Atlantic Monthly Press before going to M-G-M, has become associate editor of the Ladies' Home Journal.

New York book reviewers, asked to nominate the 10 best books of the year, showed considerable agreement. Practically every one named "A Bell for Adano" among the best fiction and "The World of Washington Irving" among the best nonfiction. Only one mentioned the most important social study of American conditions in years and years—"The American Dilemma," by Gunnar Myrdal, a comprehensive analysis of the Negro question.

"Now Is the Time to Pray."

"Green Dolphin Street" still tops the national best seller list that the Publishers' Weekly prepares monthly. "Forever Amber" is crowding "The Robe" for fifth place on this list, and a bookman who professed to be pious told me that now is the time to pray.

Sales of J. K. Lasser's book of advice, "Your Income Tax," dropped more than two-thirds last year, but that doesn't worry Simon & Schuster, who sold over 500,000 anyway. In order to counteract the impression that citizens with small salaries don't need income tax advice, the publishers are telling booksellers to emphasize points that especially interest taxpayers in "modest brackets."

Russell Davenport's poem, "My Country," will be read Monday at Town Hall as part of a series of programs on the arts and literature. Mr. Davenport will be the principal narrator, assisted by Clifton Fadiman, Florence Eldridge, and House Jameson. The poem, which covers 62 pages, will take an hour and 15 minutes to read.

The Eternal Quest for Truth.

It takes so long for a man to become an authority in a difficult and special field of knowledge that the whole human race suffers a setback when he dies. But there is nothing we can do about it, except encourage young men to begin an apprenticeship in the same field and to strive for excellence anew. That is the eternal quest for truth that keeps human beings alert.

These remarks, which might be duplicated several times a month, are prompted by the death of Philip Ainsworth Means at the age of 52. Mr. Means was an authority on Andean culture and had published many books on the Inca empire and ancient art in Peru, Yucatan, and Colombia. As a side issue he became interested in the old stone tower in Newport, R. I., object of many strange theories, and about this we exchanged some letters.

His last book pursues the subject as far as it is possible without excavations around the tower itself; these will be necessary to determine its real origin, but the Newport authorities have never allowed them.

Means established definitely that the tower was not built by Gov. Arnold; it antedated his use of it as a mill. Nor does it derive from a similar tower in Chesterton, England. Means went carefully into the theory of Viking origin; he was unable to establish it, but he pointed out the similarity of construction of the tower with early Scandinavian churches and wondered whether excavations might reveal foundations for other ecclesiastical buildings. But he was too careful a historian to take conjectures for fact.

CHICAGO Movies SUBURBAN

Notes of Music and Musicians

The third and final concert of the Woman's Symphony orchestra season will be given under the direction of Jerzy Bojanowski at Orchestra hall tomorrow night at 8:15. Two Chicago composers will be represented on the program. A "Romance" and "Cancion" by Inez Riddle McDonald, wife of Comdr. Eugene McDonald, will be played for the first time here. Both works were given their premiere performance in New York on the Firestone Symphony orchestra's radio program under Alfred Wallenstein's direction. Also new to Chicago will be John Alden Carpenter's "Dance Suite," an orchestral setting of the composer's three best known piano compositions, "Polonaise Americaine," "Tango" and "Danza." The first dates from 1912, the second from 1920, and the third from 1933. They were scored in 1943 and were first performed in the same year by the National Symphony orchestra of Washington, D. C., under Hans Kindler's direction. Other orchestral numbers on the program will be the overture to Moniuszko's "Halka," and Schumann's Fourth symphony, in D minor. BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

ONCE upon a time two men sat quietly together in their favorite club sipping a pleasant beverage—possibly tea—and discussing matters of high cosmic import, such as shoes and ships and sealing wax, and cabbages and kings. One of the two was a philosopher, the other was a collector, or so they called themselves—I would not care to argue that it is not possible to be both. In time the conversation got around to one of those absurd questions of [perhaps] morality that do sometimes arise after the third or fourth cup of oolong. The philosopher posed a question: "I understand you perfectly," he said, "and your paintings are certainly a magnificent collection, but suppose your premises were to take fire and it was possible for you to save only one thing from the flames. Would you save one of your Renoirs—or your pet kitten?"

Naturally, the collector couldn't or wouldn't answer; he said the question was ridiculous, which perhaps it is. But that very night his house did catch fire and there he was—faced with the problem.

Well, what would you have done?

The collector, a humane man as well as a gentleman of culture, tried to save both the kitten and a painting, and all three perished in the flames.

That is a little allegory, or parable, or morality I have invented just to get the column started, and also by way of introducing a fine new book, "Lock, Stock and Barrel," by Douglas and Elizabeth Rigby [Lippincott], which I believe to be the most entertaining book published this year. If you are a collector or are interested in collecting, or even if you are a philosopher, I think you will agree with me.

Collectors' Problems.

Collectors do face some stiff problems, as the Rigbys report. If you collect the heads of your enemies, you will appreciate the story of a certain Dyak warrior whose competition in that field became annoying. A missionary once overheard a fragment of conversation between two rival head collectors, somewhat as follows: "I have cut off four heads already," boasted the first native. "I have cut off seven," said the second native, with quiet pride. Not long after this exchange of statistics, the second collector disappeared. When his body was ultimately fished out of the river it was seen to be headless, and it was remarked that the first collector now had five heads in addition to his own. . . . "Thus grows the rage for collections," commented Frobenius on the incident, according to the Rigbys.

They tell also of a Japanese collector, proud owner of a painting by Sesshiu, a 13th century master revered by the Nipponese, who really did find himself in his burning home one day with a perplexing question on his mind. Realizing that escape was cut off, he slashed open his body with a sword and thrust the priceless scroll into the wound, from which later it was recovered unharmed. . . . "While the westerner has always been reluctant to try the carving knife," the Rigbys observe, "he has been known to rush into a burning building, ignoring death and perhaps a few relatives, to rescue cherished items."

Relatives, you will note, not pet kittens.

Why Collect Things?

Principally the book is the history and romance of collecting. Altho it is peppered with amusing anecdotes of collectors great and small, rich and poor, ancient and modern, you and me, it is also in its large symposial aspect a thoughtful study of the collecting fraternity and its place in society. It is the complete answer to the question frequently asked, "Why do you collect things?" The reasons are considered under four heads, "collecting as a means to physical security," as a means to "distinction," to "immortality," and to "knowledge and esthetic satisfaction." But if you have to ask the question, believe me, you will never be a collector.

"Lock, Stock and Barrel" is an important book as well as a delightful one. I recommend it urgently as the best all around volume in its field. Jackson's "Anatomy of Bibliomania" is comparable in the narrower field of books, Burton's "Anatomy of Melancholy" in the broader field of despair; the Rigbys might have called their work the "Anatomy of Happiness," for whatever we collect—books, coins, stamps, paintings, Sherlockiana, or match covers—it is really happiness that we are collecting, and the man or woman who has no hobby is lost from the beginning.

Poet Outlives His Fame.

When John Myers O'Hara, then a young Chicago poet, published his brilliant interpretation of the "Poems of Sappho" nearly 40 years ago, critics of the time united to call it the best paraphrase of the greatest woman poet of antiquity in the English language; he had done for Sappho, they said, what FitzGerald had done for Omar Khayyam. In the chorus of approval were the voices of Bernard Shaw, Arthur Symons, and William Butler Yeats, who hailed the delicacy and originality of O'Hara's imaginative reconstruction with thankfulness. Later his own poems, so to speak, in "Songs of the Open," "Pagan Sonnets," "Embers," "Threnodies," and "Manhattan," were called, by a few poets in his own country, sonorous and magnificent; his sonnets were described as perfect, unsurpassed, and permanent treasures of our literature. His great gift for translation, notably revealed in his English versions of "The Ebon Muse," by Léon Laviaux, and the "Trophies" of Jose-Maria de Heredia, won similar encomiums; for the superb Heredia, he and his collaborator, John Hervey, were awarded medals by the French academy.

All these tributes were deserved; yet when O'Hara died in New York City, on Nov. 16 last, he was virtually unknown in this country. I am, of course, making more of that circumstance than he would have done himself; he was a man of scholarly modesty, of almost quixotic rectitude, and he never sought an acclaim aside from that which his work might win for him in the ordinary course of events. The work was its own reward, as it must always be for all who toil seriously in the arts. This department believes in that fundamental principle completely, but it thinks also, with Gene Rhodes' cowboy, that there should be more taffy and less epitaffy in the world—particularly for poets.

Cherished by a Happy Few.

O'Hara's clandestine celebrity, of course, is secure. He is one of that little band of writers who—in the words of Agnes Repplier—unknown to the careless world, remain from generation to generation the friends of a few fortunate readers; the "cherished property of that ever diminishing minority who, by some happy turn of fate, are fitted to enjoy the pleasure which literary art can give." His books and manuscripts are in the Newberry library.

2 Tales of Psychology and Emotion

"CRYING AT THE LOCK," by Adeline Rumsey. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.]

"BROOK WILLOW," by Nelia Gardner White. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

"Crying at the Lock," is a subtle story, supremely well done, which might be classified as psychological, detective, or even as a grueling record of an unhappy marriage. Whichever class it fits, it is gripping, and at the same time exquisite, told with that understanding of character which makes a soul shine thru words and deeds and appearance.

Adeline Rumsey.

The story itself, according to the publishers, grew out of a newspaper clipping. Dartley West's wife committed suicide, no one knew why. In his loneliness and grief he married a woman ambitious to attain social position with security, and little by little, aided by the peculiar circumstances of various friendships that had encircled the first wife's life, the plot unfolds.

It is not unlike the old game of following the string to the treasure, well hidden in this case beneath the events of all the years. When it is found it is a complete surprise, bringing what seems like a fresh disaster, which becomes a blessing.

No bright eyed innocence marks this subtle story, which is never contrived nor heavy handed. The clews, well planted in chapter one, bloom like the green bay tree in chapter 21, all by means of distinguished characterization.

The subconscious mind can wreck an otherwise healthy person. With this as its theme, "Brook Willow" tells the story of a lost woman discovered in a foggy night ready to commit suicide, and brought to a psychiatrist. It is deep in medical formulae and knowledge. The woman is a famous musician, mentally lost for the time being, searching for Brook Willow, a place where she was once happy. And the doctor is miserable, too, so that it becomes a case of musician cure physician.

Two delicately balanced minds, both holding to genius, are neatly examined and triumphantly returned to normalcy under the author's brilliantly knowing eye. What the subconscious does is disclosed as clearly as tho it were under a microscope and the cures are effected just because science has progressed sufficiently to know that mental cases are often curable.

Here Is a Magic Carpet for Angler in Winter Months

"CURRENTS AND EDDIES," by William J. Schaldach. [Barnes, $5.]

Reviewed by Bob Becker.

If a fisherman would like to sit in his easy chair Christmas evening or any evening this winter and take several fishing trips without leaving the fireside, this is the book that will serve as a magic carpet to carry him outdoors to the haunts of the trout and bass. Mr. Schaldach contends that stream fishing stirs the imagination and "leads to reverence and respect."

His delightful stories and discussions of the sport substantiate his contention. His prose is so alive that, if you have any enthusiasm for fishing, his adventures in wading the streams and fly casting become your own. In fact, every chapter is written with such warmth and informality that no fisherman can read it without conjuring up visions of arched rods and leaping fish.

This ideal gift book for fishermen is one of the most handsomely decorated outdoor volumes of the year, with four beautiful color plates and many black and white drawings, all done by the author.

A STIRRING STORY OF COURAGE AND FAITH

How Polish Underground Fights Back

"STORY OF A SECRET STATE," by Jan Karski. [Houghton Mifflin, $3.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

"Story of a Secret State" is a manifesto of an individual's and a people's courage and faith. It is the hard factual story of the Polish underground, told by a young man who was one of its first workers, became one of its most efficient couriers, was finally entrusted with the almost super-human job of carrying the messages of the various factional groups in the Polish underground to their representatives in London, and finally of bringing his report to the President in Washington.

His story is the surprisingly revealing account of the structure of the secret underground state in Poland, highly organized, highly efficient in sabotage and the clueless liquidation of Nazi officers in Poland and so skillfully integrated that it has continued for five years to function with the skill of an organized and recognized state, altho its very existence seems incredible. It was the state controlled by the Polish government in exile, but composed, Mr. Karski makes plain, of men and women of every shade of political thought and of many nationalities, all functioning with one impulse and one faith—the destruction of the Nazis in Poland and the immortal faith that Poland will live again.

As the factual record of that organization, as the picture of the cohesion of a national emotion and a national organization blown to bits by the Nazis, and, paradoxically, thus made stronger, "Story of a Secret State" is a remarkable document.

But as a record of a man's adventure, grim, macabre, and almost fatal, but hourly tense, this book has all of the fictional tales lashed to the mast in a high sea of words.

Jan Karski was a young man of 25 on the night of Aug. 23, 1939, gaily dancing "at a particularly gay party" and full of lighthearted plans for the future. That night mobilization orders ordered him to join his regiment within four hours [like the classic pattern of the battle of Waterloo]. He was a second lieutenant of artillery.

The panorama of the months set in motion by that order fill some of the most exciting pages in modern writing: the heat, dust, and smoke of battle and the bitterness of defeat. The endless chaotic march eastward and the futile search for nonexistent detachments . . . the barbed wire of the prison camp [in Russia]. The German concentration camp . . . and the first glimpse of a brutality that no one had ever dreamed of, the filth, the hunger, the degradation. Then the underground, the secrecy, and mystery, the constant slight trembling of the nerves.

And from then on incredible experiences, his arrest and almost fatal torture, his attempt at suicide, his escape, his recuperation in a country home whose members were all later murdered by the Nazis, a visit to the ghetto in Warsaw which wrings one's heart and his picture of a deportation train in which Jews were driven into freight cars filled with quick lime and hurried on their way to slow, horrible death.

The book has the sincerity and restraint of an official history, but it is unbelievably exciting and tremendously stirring—the record of a great courage and faith.

"The Magic Year" Tells Us a Richly Beautiful Story

"THE MAGIC YEAR," by Joachim Maass; translated by Erika M. Meyer. [Fischer, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil.

This is beautiful writing of the old style, the style which has largely been driven out of use among writers of English. The eccentricities of Joyce and Stein, the nervous vitality of Hemingway, the stylized simplicity of Saroyan, the open manner of Steinbeck — those are the models of prose admired today. Not for us are these measured cadences, these sounds of words played as a chime of bells, these tones as artful as the melodies of poetry.

But there is beauty in "The Magic Year" other than the beauty of language. For the word magic it contains must be due in part, at least, to the translator, Erika Meyer. The author, who was a successful writer in Germany before he had to abandon his attempt to stem the tide of Nazism and leave the country, is now a lecturer at Mount Holyoke college, but evidently is not yet enough at home in English to use it as a writing medium.

As "The Magic Year" Mr. Maass' novel is well named, for it evokes the magic of a world seen thru the clear eyes of an 8 year old boy who sees in Hamburg [the author's native city] many things to whet his imagination and arouse his wonder. There is a Christmas eve celebration in the story as well filled with joy and love as any such scene can be.

Told tenderly and in detail are the boy's enthusiasms, pleasures, troubles, sorrows, lessons—that give a rare insight of his mental growth.

All the characters are sympathetically portrayed: the boy's elder brother, his mother, the "good" teachers and the "bad" ones at his school [curiously, there is much in the school passages to remind the reader of similar passages in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn"], his playmates, and members of the family household. But in the boy's father, a Hamburg merchant of the type that made the Hanseatic league a power, you get a foreshadowing of the greed that was to reach its apotheosis in Hitler.

"The Magic Year" is announced as the first in a trilogy which will bear the title, "Astride the Times," and presumably will carry the reader at least to the situation which produced Hitler, if not actually into the Nazi period. If the succeeding volumes meet the standard of this first one we shall have to acknowledge Joachim Maass a writer of rare distinction.

How a Man Became a Bird Lover Amid City Streets

"THE MURMUR OF WINGS," by Leonard Dubkin. [Whittlesey House, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Marcia Winn.

Leonard Dubkin is a man who likes birds and he has written this gentle little book about that liking. It is an extraordinarily nice book without a touch of whimsy in it.

Who in Chicago has not spent hours watching the pigeons flutter in Grant park? Or the gulls wheel over the river and lake? Or the stray birds that somehow get onto our crowded city streets and into our tree-d stretches that almost pass for parks?

These are the things Mr. Dubkin has watched since as a small boy he wandered thru the forest preserves and took "scientific" observations in a large notebook entitled "Notes for a Book on Birds."

Once, leaning over the Dearborn street bridge, he noticed a great silvery patch in the water below. On closer investigation he found it was a school of minnows. Just then a flock of herring gulls flew up and settled on the water. Soon they were in an orgy of gorging. The procedure affected him so deeply that he went home and wrote an essay, "A Paradise for Gulls," which was printed on the children's page of a Chicago newspaper. From then on he was doomed. He became a newspaper man.

Leonard Dubkin.

The book is full of warm little tales: how a hawk, which some one supposedly had seen swooping down to devour the sacred pigeons of Grant park, threw a great city into turmoil, how a starling hypnotized him beside the lake, how when sent to cover a plane crash he became so absorbed in watching the antics of 20 cold sparrows that he lost his job, and how later, as a publicity man, he obtained his first client when the wounded pigeon he had placed in his pocket began to coo. And then there is the charming story of a modern Thoreau, Axel, the birdman of Goose Island, who lived alone with birds, tugs, and a bottle of whisky.

As a child Dubkin scorned vigorously all those who wrote letters to the editor signed "Bird Lover." He proudly referred to himself then as a naturalist, an ornithologist. But thru the years, he now confesses, he has become a "bird lover" himself. This is the result. It is humorous, perceptive, and very nice.

Alaskan Highway Is Described by a Correspondent

"HIGHWAY TO ALASKA," by Herbert C. Lanks. [Appleton-Century, $5.]

This is a well written and entertaining log of a 12,000 mile motor trip from New York to Alaska and back over the great new Alaska highway. The author, said to be the first accredited war correspondent to drive over it, traveled in an army jeep over that part of his journey.

It's a complete story of how this important military road was put thru; the facts obtained first hand by the author. In addition, it's a valuable guide book to a part of the country that seems at last to be attracting the attention of the American public.

Mr. Lanks took over 6,000 photographs of his ramblings and selected 81 for his book. It also has attractive end paper maps of the highway. There have been several books on the Alaska highway but this is by far the most comprehensive and entertaining. AL CHASE.

Early Stage of Navy War Is Reported

"BATTLE REPORT," by Comdr. Walter Karig, U. S. N. R., and Lt. Welbourn Kelley, U. S. N. R. [Farrar & Rinehart, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Stanley Johnston.

Appropriately timed for publication on Dec. 7, "Battle Report" is an account of our actions in Pacific waters during the first five months of this war, when Japan was in domination of the Pacific.

Directed by the late secretary of the navy to "tell the story of the navy's part in this war, . . . particularly those early days when the Japs were having things their own way," and to "tell the story in a nontechnical, readable form," Comdr. Karig and Lt. Kelley set out to record comprehensively in this first book our surface ship, air, and submarine movements from December 1941 to the opening shots of the battle of the Coral sea [May 7, 1942], where the enemy suffered his first serious set-back.

With access to official documents stored in the navy files, documents containing "information which, up to now, we have had to hold back," and aided by personal battle reports, recorded interviews, and the helpful information provided by combat participants, the authors ably prepared a smooth and easy to read, yet factual chronicle of the opening phases of the war in the Pacific.

From the pages of this book, simply but tellingly, rises the tale of courage, self-sacrifice, and devotion-to-duty displayed by the officers and men of our fleet during a period of "overwhelming odds" against them. It is a revealing tale of "nearly all defeat, but defeat in a manner of which every United States citizen can well be proud."

One of the hitherto unrevealed tragic facts is that when the West Virginia, sunk at Pearl Harbor, was raised from the shallow water, markings on one of the bulkheads showed that three men, trapped in a water-tight compartment, had lived there from Dec. 7 to Dec. 23.

Two additional features of "Battle Report" are the 126 page record of casualties [dead, wounded, missing, and prisoners of war] and the 33 page register of awards and citations. Many realistic photographs, a number of excellent maps and several plates of Japanese origin complete an interesting and highly informative chronicle.

Children to Benefit from Rummage Sale

By Thalia.

Despite the drizzle on Tuesday there was a vast crowd waiting in front of the White Elephant Rummage shop at 27 E. Ohio st., when the first volunteer worker arrived at 8 a. m. The doors were opened to buyers at 9:30. During that hour and a half the crowd grew to startling proportions.

It was the annual Christmas sale for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital, and this year there was a special emphasis on jewelry as well as the usual toys, glassware, linen and other gift-likely items. Five chauffeurs, still sturdy tho past military age, helped the two policemen inside the shop and a brace outside to keep the crowd in order. Fifty people were allowed in the house at 9:30 and, according to Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell, one of the three vice chairmen of the Rummage Shop committee whose post was at the cash register in the second floor window, the size of the crowd below seemed unchanged by their extraction. The eager purchasers waited their turn in the rain, some of them until almost noon.

Once inside they proved their eagerness by buying arms full of things. One woman who had come all the way from Peoria bought $400 worth, so Mrs. James C. Hutchins, chairman of the auxiliary board of the hospital told me. Mrs. Hopewell Rogers, one of the vice chairmen of the rummage shop committee, dashed back to help with the sale from Pennsylvania, where she was waiting to become a grandmother. She sold a handsome silver basket for $180, a sale which should have especially pleased her, for she had donated it. [It was one of her wedding presents.]

The back room—"the art room" officially—was filled with real jewels and silver which had been donated for the sale, among them the pearl dog collar, which some one will get for $250. Among others I saw Mrs. Charles Dempster, corresponding secretary of the auxiliary board, busy in the art room, and Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., another board member, skilfully selling some less precious jewels in another room.

Fifty of our city's most charitably minded women were volunteer workers at the sale, and they were obviously having a superb time "playing store." The cash register sounded like a continuous 4-11 fire alarm, and every tinkle meant help to some underprivileged child, perhaps life itself. Last winter over 50 per cent of the clinical cases at the hospital were children of service men, and the number of desperately sick children from out of town which are cared for grows alarmingly with inexperienced child mothers following their service husbands to Chicago. The clinic and free wards of the Children's Memorial hospital have been for 50 years one of Chicago's most constructive charitable organizations.

Tuesday afternoon was the time of another Christmas sale in the charming apartment of the junior Byron Harveys in Cedar st., when France Forever offered French novelties for Christmas, all of them in the irresistible tricolor. Among them were especially designed Vive la France handkerchiefs which you will probably see at chic cocktail parties in the role of napkins.

News from France has come to the senior Charles S. Deweys from their son, Peter, who was in Chicago recently on leave from his duties as a captain of paratroopers. He was made a major on his return to the front. He had been able to visit the estate in Normandy which had belonged to Mrs. Dewey's family, the de Marignys, and where the family spent most of their summers before the war.

Altho the nearest little village had been practically razed, there had been little irremediable damage done to their own house. One object of great sentimental value

Tribune Will Hold Annual Fashion Show

By Norma Lee Browning.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE today announces its 6th annual nation-wide American Fashions contest, with prizes totaling $5,000.

"Fashions for Victory" is the theme of the contest which opens Jan. 1 and closes May 1. Both amateurs and professionals are invited to submit sketches. There is no age limit.

Purpose of THE TRIBUNE's unique fashion contest—the only thing of its kind in the country—is to encourage American designers and to help establish and maintain America as the leading fashion center of the world.

The 1945 contest promises to be the most important yet because of the struggle of newly freed France to resume her place in the limelight as the world's fashion capital, according to Mrs. Grace Pickering, fashion expert, of New York, Paris, and Chicago.

Mrs. Pickering, who as director has helped to make THE TRIBUNE's annual American Fashions contest an outstanding event in the world of style, said:

"American designers will have to keep on their toes. After four years of suppression, Paris is again blossoming forth with sensational style creations. Some consider this a threat to the future of the American fashion industry; it should be considered an inspiration, a challenge."

Commenting on the uneasiness of American designers regarding news that Paris has no government restrictions on dress goods, Mrs. Pickering declared:

"There is no reason for American designers to envy or resent the unlimited use of materials in Paris fashions. The war has taught us that clothes can be not only wearable and correct, but beautiful and chic, without yards of ruffles or drapes.

"The pictures we're getting now of new Paris styles look exaggerated and fantastic in comparison with the smart simplicity we've become accustomed to since the war. In fact I might venture to say that we'll continue to have simple designs and to be slim and slick, even after the WPB restrictions are lifted.

Mrs. Pickering pointed out that the fashion center in America has definitely shifted from New York to Chicago and praised the many Chicago designers who have entered and won prizes in THE TRIBUNE's contest during the past five years.

Don Thoness of 700 N. Michigan av. won first prize in the 1943 contest and second in 1944. Mrs. Fern Caylor Sullivan of 6101 Sheridan rd. was voted third prize of $500 in 1944. Many smaller prizes and honorable mentions went to participants from Chicago and vicinity.

Prizes for the 1945 American Fashions contest will be the same as for 1944. A grand prize of $2,000 will be given for first place, $1,000 for second, and $500 for third.

Individual prizes of $50 each will be awarded for at least 30 sketches selected from all entries by a committee of fashion experts. These 30 or more designs will compete for the grand prizes.

Entries may be sketches of any garment of outer wearing apparel suitable for introduction on the commercial market. The primary interest is in originality of design.

After May 1, closing date of the contest, the 30 or more sketches selected by the fashion jury will be made up into models at the expense of THE TRIBUNE and under the supervision of Mrs. Pickering.

Copies of complete contest rules and entry blanks may be obtained by writing to the American Fashions, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan av., Chicago.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

A charming woman who visits the city infrequently these days, but whose return to her native Chicago is the signal for a round of entertaining, is Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, now of New York. She and Mr. Harris were here recently, and for an all too brief two weeks or so Mrs. Harris again was a familiar figure at the Arts club, the Casino, and other smart spots. One night at the Racquet club, entertaining at a farewell dinner, Mrs. Harris wore a distinguished and suavely cut black short frock, brightened by two enormous fresh gardenias at the bottom of the vee neckline. Her white hair is waved smoothly upwards in a becoming coiffure, and topping it that night was a whimsical but delightful and attractive tiny black hat ornamented at either side with slender, sweeping cerise feathers. Seated at dinner with Mrs. Harris was an old friend, Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, whose costume was in two pieces, a slender black skirt, and a long sleeved tailored blouse of purest gold color, trimmed with bands of fine plaiting. Her hat was a feathery pouf of beige-gold feathers flecked in deeper tones.

Mrs. Horatio B. Hackett, who entertained at the Arts club for Mrs. Harris, has one of the smartest new hats about town, a stunning celadon green "leaf" of soft material that runs from the back of her head down on her forehead. The front part of the leaf is softened by the addition of dozens of tiny leaves of the same color, each wired so that it can be shaped into any form its wearer desires. An attractive woman who is being welcomed to Chicago as the bride of Maj. Stuart Prosser also was at the Racquet club recently, a slender, raven haired woman gowned in black. Ornamenting her simple frock was a stunning, large, full blown rose of gold in various tones of the metal. Mrs. Louis G. Buss, also entertaining at the same club, has a handsome new dress in the ever popular black. The fullness of the front bodice is cleverly worked into accordion pleats across the front at each shoulder. Mrs. Howard Ellis was seen at the same club in a bewitching high crowned hat of palest beige felt wound all about with ostrich feathers of the same tone. Another guest at the Racquet club's popular Thursday night dinners, served buffet style and usually followed by gin rummy or backgammon, was Mrs. Samuel A. Culbertson II. Her dress was a two-tone apron effect combining black and brick red wool.

Two visitors from Neenah, Wis., seen about Chicago last week, were Mrs. George Gilbert and Mrs. James Bergstrom, who are sisters. The latter is vice president of the U. S. O. for the state of Wisconsin, and was here to attend some U. S. O. regional meetings. At cocktails in Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Hunt's home one afternoon, Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Bergstrom were wearing stunning sequin trimmed gowns. The former's, of black, was embroidered down the front from shoulder to hemline in gold half-moons. Her hat was of American Beauty velvet, trimmed with matching ostrich plumes. Mrs. Bergstrom's dress, also black, was embroidered all over in tiny sparklers of many colors, and her hat was a disk of soft black feather spikes. Diana Hunt, daughter of the hosts, and god-daughter of Mrs. Bergstrom, made a charming young girl picture in a short sleeved frock of flaming scarlet velvet, cut on princess lines. Mrs. William A. Ryan constantly is being teased when she describes her Astor street apartment with its pink dining room, hunter's green and blue children's rooms, and coral and chartreuse living room. Critics who don't believe such daring colors and combinations of colors are livable are invited to see for themselves, and last week Mrs. Ryan entertained at another small "convincing" party. She has a smart new two-tone frock of wool which combines palest beige and its perfect foil, shining black.

Nordic Law Club Will Hear Francis X. Busch

The Nordic Law club, whose membership is composed of lawyers of Scandinavian origin, will have Francis X. Busch of the Chicago Bar association as guest speaker at a dinner meeting at 6:30 o'clock Friday in the Swedish club, 1258 N. La Salle st. He will sketch the work of Fouquier-Tinville, prosecutor to the French revoluntionary tribunal, whose record in obtaining within 15 months nearly 3,000 convictions which carried the death penalty earned him the title, "Prosecutor of Terror."

Ensign Thompson Wed on Oct. 10 to Lt. A. C. Ronander

In the Memorial chapel of the Walter Reed hospital in Washington, D. C., Oct. 10, Ensign Harriett Elaine Thompson of the WAVES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Everett Thompson of Oak Park, became the bride of Lt. Albert Carl Ronander, an army chaplain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivar Ronander of Los Angeles, Cal. Lt. Ronander was graduated from the army's chaplain school at Fort Devens, Mass., a few days before the wedding. Following a short wedding trip he has reported to an assignment in Texas, and his bride has returned to her post in Washington. Mrs. Ronander is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SUNDAY school at Harlow school house, a mile from Sunrise Mountain farm, is supposed to begin at 10:30. But some Sundays it doesn't begin until 11, and I've known it to be later. After all, a country Sunday school isn't made up of spic-and-span youngsters who have been slicked up and hustled off by themselves. In this community, our Sunday school is our only church service, and grownups have plenty of chores to do before they can put on their best bib and tucker.

Breakfast must be prepared and eaten, with water drawn up from the cistern for the coffee and dishwater. The Sunday chicken [or chickens] must be caught, scalded, de-feathered, drawn, and cut up for frying. Cows must be milked. The milk must be strained, separated, or put down cellar, and the milk things washed. Hogs and chickens, not to mention young bucket-fed calves, dogs and cats must be fed. Beds must be made up and the house "red up," for more than likely company will be brought home for dinner.

Even after one reaches the Harlow school house there's often work to be done. Particularly in winter. Then a fire must be built in the big round-bellied stove, and of all the cantankerous stoves ever put on the market that one is the worst. It burns kindling and the contents of the waste paper basket like mad, roaring and puffing as tho hellbent on getting the schoolhouse warm in a jiffy. But put in some of the big chunks of oak wood from the wood pile and watch it go into the sulks. In that case, Mr. Fritz, the retired railroad engineer of our neighborhood, takes one of the kerosene lamps from the wall and dumps in a half teacupful of coal oil. In a moment we can feel the heat three seats away.

Sometimes the floor is so littered with chalk and mud that Cleanliness and Godliness seem too widely separated for my peace of mind. This is particularly true if the pupils have "ciphered down" on Friday and the cleaning has been left for Monday morning. Many a time, in my best clothes, I have done my share of floor sweeping, while others built the fire before settling down to study of the days when Jesus was a carpenter and Martha, too, had housework to do.

But this is late autumn, and so far the schoolhouse had needed no sweeping and no Sunday fire. But Sunday school still starts late, for we linger to talk with one another under the hickory trees in the school yard. Some of us, who live several miles apart, meet only at Sunday school. And it's nice to inquire about each other's cows, and talk of the low price of eggs, and even gossip a bit, in unchurchly fashion.

Finally, Mrs. Jacobs, our Sunday school superintendent, and her slow moving, soft spoken husband, Charlie, arrive. After greetings and handshakings all around, Mrs. Jacobs rings the big school bell and we all troop into the one-room schoolhouse. The seats are mainly single ones, and I try to recall if the seats in the schools I attended were so small and cramped. Or maybe I required less seat room in those days!

We sing a number of hymns, the selections being called out by members of the group. Mrs. Fritz, tiny and dainty in figure, and singing with a high sweet voice, plays the piano. Up to a few weeks ago Thelma Friend played, often with her 2 year old, Willie Ray, on her lap. But now the Friends have gone to Colorado. We miss Thelma and we also miss her daughter, Janette, 6, who frequently sang a solo as a highlight of Sunday school. While Janette's sweet, low voice filled the room, telling that God loves little children, her baby brother would grab a song book, hold it upside down and holler "'Way! 'Way!" He was singing "Away Down South in Georgia!", his mother said.

In those days Mrs. Fritz would sit or stand near the piano and lead the singing. Sometimes, when the tune went too high, she would be doing a veritable solo. Once an unfamiliar song was called for by Mr. Fritz just because it "looked pretty" in the hymnbook. When all of us faltered and fell by the wayside in the singing, Mrs. Fritz muttered, with more than a little irritation, "We should make papa sing this by himself."

During the fourth or fifth or sixth hymn, Mrs. Jacobs holds up her hand and we all rise. Usually Mrs. Lichty, who is no mouse in size, either, sits across the aisle from me and in rising we collide like a couple of tanks. And everybody finishes the hymn with a flutter of giggles. Then Mrs. Jacobs calls on Sister Gritton to pray.

Sister Gritton is an able speaker. She makes a spirited prayer that is almost a sermon. Then, with a clatter of seats, we sit down, greeting late comers with smiles and whispers while Mrs. Ray Tabor hands out the literature of the day to those without their own quarterlies. We turn to the morning lesson, with Mrs. Jacobs reading the part that says "Leader" and the congregation reading the part marked "Group." Some one with a loud, clear voice invariably reads much too rapidly, and a group about her, who likewise disdain punctuation, stay with her manfully. Mr. Fritz and I have the same reading tempo, which is much slower, and there's nothing wrong with our voices. Mr. Fritz doesn't hear very well and isn't aware that he is out of step verbally. I stay with him because I like to give commas and periods their due, and another section of the group strings along with us. As a result each verse read by the group becomes a race in which the winners nose triumphantly past the judges' stand five syllables ahead of the others.

Responsive reading finished, Mrs. Jacobs tells the classes to take their places. I teach a class of girls from 13 to 16 years old. In the winter we crowd into a small cloak room off the main room of the schoolhouse. In warm weather we take our folding chairs outside and have our lesson under one of the big hickory trees.

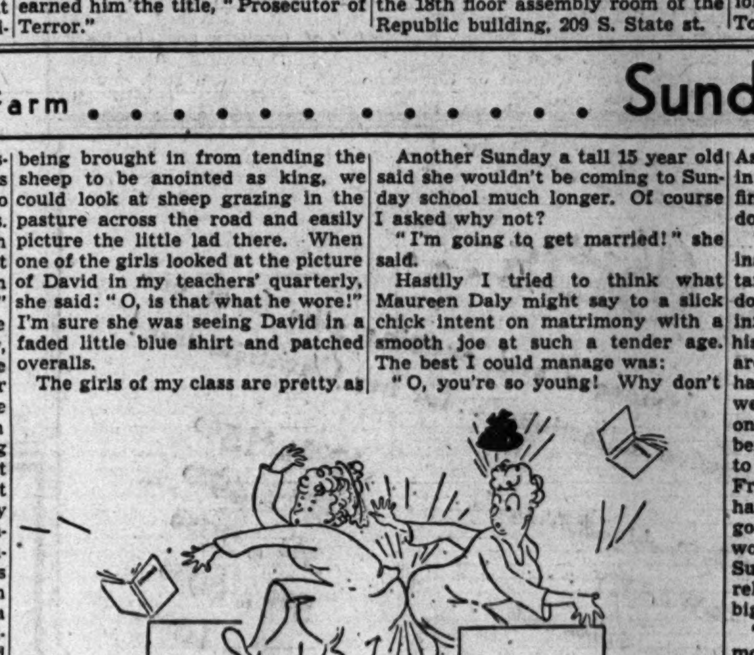
It is amazing how often the Sunday school lesson ties in with our outdoor classroom. It is easy to think of Jesus feeding the multitude when we, too, have the earth beneath our feet. With redoubled awe we read of Moses leading the children of Israel thru the Red sea for we can almost hear Jack's Fork over the hill, and this stream, too, is often wide and deep. And on the Sunday when we studied about David being brought in from tending the sheep to be anointed as king, we could look at sheep grazing in the pasture across the road and easily picture the little lad there. When one of the girls looked at the picture of David in my teachers' quarterly, she said: "O, is that what he wore!" I'm sure she was seeing David in a faded little blue shirt and patched overalls.

The girls of my class are pretty as pictures, with their bright summery dresses and flowers in carefully curled hair. And like their mothers and aunts and grandmothers, they are not show-offs in the matter of knowledge, but they're plenty quick with their own thinking. One time when our lesson concerned the good works of one of the Disciples, I asked if they could name any person whose entire life was spent in doing good for others. In my own mind, I thought of Florence Nightingale, Madame Curie, and other famous persons. Then one girl answered the question:

"My mother," she said.



Another Sunday a tall 15 year old said she wouldn't be coming to Sunday school much longer. Of course I asked why not?

"I'm going to get married!" she said.

Hastily I tried to think what Maureen Daly might say to a slick chick intent on matrimony with a smooth joe at such a tender age. The best I could manage was:

"O, you're so young! Why don't you go to parties and places with other boys, and have fun?"

"I've tried that!" she said. "But it's always more fun when he's along."

I was stopped in my tracks. I had said those same words 20 years ago. And I'd say them today. The girl was married in August and I'm sure her future is secure.

Midway of our lesson, Mrs. Lichty comes out to take up the collection. Mrs. Jacobs comes out to bring our Sunday school papers. A half dozen boys on horseback race along the road, showing off before the girls. As the sun moves higher, we move into deeper shade. Our lesson is finished while yellow leaves shower down upon us.

Then the bell rings and we go inside. Mrs. Lichty reads the secretary's report, with every one, right down to the smallest member of the infant class, listening to hear that his class' collection and attendance are listed correctly. Sometimes we have a business meeting. Like when we had $67.50 in the treasury and one group of Sunday school members indicated that it would be nice to hire a preacher to come out on Friday nights and preach to us. We had nothing against the preacher, a good, conscientious man, but this would have thrown our nonsectarian Sunday school into one channel of religious worship. Mr. Fritz arose, big and impressive.

"All in favor of spending this money for war bonds, stand up!" he said. Everybody stood. And that was that!

At last Mrs. Jacobs calls on Brother Gritton for the closing prayer. Mr. Gritton is small and white haired and speaks in a low voice, but somehow I can picture the Heavenly Ear bending lower to catch the simple requests which Mr. Gritton makes. He prays that the life of each one of us may be more firmly dedicated to the work of God because we have met together on this beautiful Sabbath morning. He asks a heavenly blessing on our neighbors and on the leaders of our nation. Then he mentions "our boys" fighting so far away, but he doesn't pray for sweeping victories or the means to blast our enemies from the earth. With the meekness that should inherit the earth he prays:

"And please, God, don't let our boys be homesick."

Children to Benefit from Rummage Sale

had been taken by the Germans, however. Ironically, the religion repudiating Nazis stole the sacred relic in the shrine of the little church. Oddly enough that relic, so deeply a part of a tiny Normandy community's life, has another close link with Chicago. To house it beautifully Mrs. Dewey some years ago commissioned a young Chicago artist, John Pratt, to create a suitable background, which he did in metal and wood in a modern design with an ancient echo. It was spurned by the vandal Germans. There is another link in this chain of circumstances. John Pratt, when last heard from, was with the American army in France and he might quite conceivably have come upon his own work of art thru the chances of war.

The senior Deweys are, of course, still in Washington, since Mr. Dewey's term in congress is not yet finished. They bought and remodeled the lovely little house near the Capitol where they are living, and many of their friends feel that they may remain in Washington.

Chicago has probably also lost permanently the junior Charles Deweys. Some time ago they sold their Lake Forest house and beautifully established themselves in "Old Stone House" in Far Hills, N. J. Young Charles is abroad in the service of his country. Not long ago young Mrs. Dewey came out to Chicago to unveil in the Goodman theater the portraits of her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman, who gave the Institute the beautiful little theater in memory of Mrs. Dewey's father, Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, who was killed in the first World war.

The war has removed from Chicago the young "Pat" Hamills also. Mrs. Hamill and young Mrs. Dewey were always close friends. Both had a sense of social, artistic and civic responsibility rare in young matrons. Mrs. Hamill was especially interested in art and it was on her way to the Art institute that I met her recently. She and Lt. Hamill have been living in Charleston, where he was stationed. He has been transferred to New York. They had just sold their house in Lake Forest, and she was here very briefly to see to the family lares and penates. She was among the interested guests at the Museum of Modern Art's show of modern Cuban painting which opened that afternoon with a tea at the Arts club.

In the directors' room of the Arts club last week the members of the Chicago chapter of the P. E. N. club met, many of them for the first time, their distinguished colleague Pearl Buck, the only American woman to win the Nobel award in literature. She had come to Chicago to address the East and West association, among whose sponsors are Mrs. John Paul Welling and Miss Frances Whedon. Miss Buck is a person of rare quality and distinction—like a tall strong tree, cloud wrapped. But there is no haze over her sharp, observant eyes, nor vagueness about her straightforward thinking. She talked off the record, most interestingly.

The P. E. N. club is a distinguished international organization which was founded in London with John Galsworthy as its first president, a position which he continuously filled until his death. Before the war it had chapters all over the world. In the United States there are now chapters in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and Los Angeles.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank arrived from New York just in time to attend the P. E. N. luncheon. During her visit there "Janet Jr." gave a very successful and highly praised concert of modern songs at the Carnegie Chamber hall.

Arthur Meeker Jr., who is secretary of the Chicago P. E. N., had as his guest his sister, Katherine, Mrs. Horace Gray of San Francisco, who was here for a few days on her way home from the east. The advent of Mrs. Gray is always the occasion for many happy renewals of childhood and girlhood friendships in Chicago. She will, however, miss seeing her youngest sister, Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, who is coming from Washington to spend Christmas with her parents, the senior Arthur Meekers. Mr. Cramer now has charge of lend-lease operations with the entire British empire.

A week ago Friday, before the symphony concert, many of its regular audience lunched at the Council on Foreign Relations and heard a fiery talk by Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr on "War and Religion." He exhorts not only with his voice but with an almost constantly gesticulating index finger, which he uses with the cutting slash of a sword. He pleaded for a moral, a Christian approach to the peace and declared that we need a religious interpretation of the tasks of peace. Dr. Niebuhr admits with Abraham Lincoln that we cannot do good without doing evil, but emphasizes Lincoln's dictum that we must not call evil good. Dr. Niebuhr was first brought to Chicago by the late Clifford Barnes to talk before the Chicago Sunday Evening club. His appearance there this year is his 14th annual one.

Immaculata High Alumnae Meets Today in Reunion

Alumnae of Immaculata High school will gather this afternoon for their annual homecoming, a tradition of the holiday at the convent at 640 Irving Park rd. Each class will be represented in a candle lighting ceremony, and four new stars will be added to the "service" flag for young women who have entered the novitiate during the year.

The committee for the reunion, of which Miss Margaret Mary Sieja is chairman, plans to have stations set up at which gifts of nonperishable foods will be received for Christmas baskets for the needy. Alumnae also are asked to bring canceled stamps, which have value in some of the foreign countries where missions are established.

A benediction service in the chapel is on the day's schedule, and the festivities will close with a tea. The Alumnae association is headed by Miss Catherine McGinnis.

Women Voters Continue Radio Series Wednesday

Continuing a series of radio broadcasts concerned with proposed revision of the Illinois state constitution, the Illinois League of Women Voters will sponsor a program at 2 o'clock Wednesday entitled "The Plight of Our Home Towns." Walter Blucher, executive director of the American Society of Planning Officials, and Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel of Chicago, will be the speakers.

Should Public Schools Join in Recreation

[Dr. Slade, who is an educator, has just completed an investigation of the public school systems in a number of American cities. His findings are contained in a series of articles of which this is the third.]

By Clarke Slade.

Most of the large cities have some sort of public recreation program. Some have recreation commissions—Baltimore, Washington, and Detroit, for instance. In others, including New York, Cleveland, Chicago, and Los Angeles, two or more public agencies, of which the board of education is one, operate programs on a coördinate basis. The park boards of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and Minneapolis administer recreation in those cities.

On paper there is an attempt to integrate recreation with schools' efforts for children almost everywhere; but impartial observers see little headway being made. "If school people and recreation people in large cities would only stop their bickering about who is to run the program and actually run one," said one of the foremost recreation men in the country recently, "children would benefit." They quarrel about who is going to pay for the janitor and for repairs; there is disagreement as to when recreation becomes education and vice versa; there is always talk about political footballs. And in the meantime the kids are on the streets and the taxpayer is holding the bag.

There is one other way of administering recreation. Only two cities do it. It may be the best way, or it may not; certainly no unanimity of opinion exists. The people of Newark, N. J., and Milwaukee choose to make the board of education completely responsible for recreation. They say, in effect, that schools are well distributed over the city; that they already maintain contact with practically every family; that school people have education for leadership, and that the school plant has vast resources for recreation and another agency would be an uneconomical duplication of effort. Milwaukee's program goes back to 1911 and is the result of a painstaking survey of the city's facilities for recreation. The schools there operate 65 playgrounds, 22 social centers in the schools, and 10 gymnasium and auditorium centers.

Intrinsically no better than Milwaukee's, Newark's program possibly illustrates more clearly the integration schools can effect with other social forces if they will. Newark is an industrial city of roughly 429,000, with many racial strains. Of its 70 school buildings, 33 operate as community centers or recreation centers for the 12 months of the year. The playgrounds for pre-school, primary, and elementary school children are open from 3 p. m. to 8 p. m.; for older children until 9 p. m. They are open Saturdays until 5 p. m. Eleven buildings are designated as "community centers," eight of them in congested areas. These are for adults; they are open every week night until 9 p. m. and, during the winter months, until 11 p. m. on two evenings a week. Besides all this, 13 more schools and playgrounds and 120 extra playground teachers are added for the children during the summer; then everything opens at 2 p. m. and closes at 9 p. m.

Newark's recreational program must be distinguished from simply physical exercise. "Recreation," writes George D. Butler of the National Recreation association, "includes all activities that are satisfying and are engaged in for their own sake." Recreation, then, may be hobbies, such as stamp and coin collecting, nature study, radio, or photography; it may be arts or crafts: wood and metal work, model airplanes, sketching, modeling. It includes dancing: tap, social, folk, or rhythmic; or dramatics: marionettes, puppets, minstrels, vaudeville, scenery construction, stage lighting; or music: choral groups, glee clubs, community sings, harmonica bands, "swing;" or special activities like picnics, hikes, holiday programs, mothers' and fathers' clubs—even a women's reducing class! Of course, all kinds of athletics are important as recreation, and Newark encourages industrial, commercial, and city-wide leagues, for which the board of education provides officials.

What happens in Newark when school is over at 3 p. m.? Another "shift" of teachers goes to work. Nearly all of them are college graduates; all have taken such courses as music, dramatics, theory and practice of recreation, games and plays, pageantry, arts and crafts, and so on, as training for leading groups and supervising volunteer workers. The staff numbers 85, and all are considered teachers just the same as classroom teachers. In fact, over a fourth have master's degrees.

This organization serves its different age-levels differently. Possibly it takes less knack for a recreation teacher to set a program going with children than with adults; she has to be with children only a short time to discover their interests and talents and see that these are harnessed. Because there are excellent relations between the recreation teacher and day school teacher, each can contribute to the other's effectiveness by relating their observations about individual children.

Dr. Bruce Robinson, the psychiatrist in charge of the school system's child guidance clinic, tells of a Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance triple play that illustrates the coördination of recreation with other school efforts in Newark. A teacher referred a thoroly withdrawn, anti-social boy of 12 to him, seclusive, shy, protected by an over-solicitous mama; and Dr. Robinson turned him over to Allan Krim, then director of one of the recreation centers, now a supervisor of them. Krim cudgeled his brain and devised every possible stratagem to get the boy back to the playground whenever he said, "I won't come back," which was daily. He visited the boy's home, he dropped a word here and there, and finally he won the lad's confidence. The upshot was that the boy was graduated from high school, went to college, and is now a second lieutenant working for Uncle Sam.

In organizing a community center for adults each director must know his own community thoroly. He doesn't just guess about it in Newark; he makes a detailed neighborhood study, with spot maps, charts, graphs, and tables. He knows the people's interests, needs, capacities, and limitations. An advisory council made up from neighborhood residents assists him. Students take check lists of activities to their families; then when groups, classes, and clubs are organized, a post card is sent to those interested and posters placed on the school bulletin board.

Newark schools are no better equipped for recreation than those in almost any other city. They have their share of old school buildings; and old schools everywhere are pretty drab looking affairs, with floors soaked by years of floor oil and walls of the same color you looked at when you were there 30 years ago. Maybe the school buildings aren't perfect. What of it? Kindergarten and primary rooms have light, movable furniture too small for adult use; this can be moved elsewhere and the room used for tap dancing. What if some rooms do have seats fastened to the floor? Young people's bones don't creak when they squeeze into them, and the rooms with lecture room chairs can be saved for older adults. Shops, music, and art rooms, and so on, are used for their respective activities, the gymnasium for team games, and the auditorium for rallies, dramatics, and concerts.

Newark recreation teachers work with other community agencies. Last May, for instance, the schools, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, Newark museum, and churches of all creeds joined to put on Newark Youth week. Activities ranged from the city marbles championship to religious observances; there were track meets, radio forums, community evenings of music in the Arts High school, and citizenship day. Leading citizens lent their support; the recreation department did the organizing, and the result was a city-wide inspirational effort to give kids a lift instead of kicking them down the stairs as juvenile delinquents.

What does it all add up to? Says Newark's chief probation officer, Joseph P. Murphy: "From observation of these centers in both Newark and Milwaukee I have always felt that they serve a very useful purpose and do have a tendency to reduce delinquency." He goes on to add that ". . . every urban area has one or more delinquency area. In fact, this may be said of practically every community in the country, urban and rural alike . . . and when examined these areas have well defined characteristics. Among others these include considerable social disorganization, lack of school and recreational facilities, and, with the exception of a few districts in New York City, there is almost a complete lack of leadership by school authorities in such districts."

Is leadership in this field a function of the schools?

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Dec. 10, 1896.

Dear Julia: We have been having a rather interesting anniversary in Chicago this week. Perhaps New York wouldn't have thought of celebrating the birthday of a building, especially when it is only seven years old. But our city is still so young and our Auditorium so precious to us that it seemed the thing to do.

Seven years ago the Auditorium was dedicated amid pomp and circumstance, with Patti singing and President Harrison gracing the occasion with his presence; Clarence Eddy at the organ and W. L. Tomlins and his splendid chorus on the stage. Memorable indeed that evening was to Chicago, and we were glad to gather there and recall it. The date also marked the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Athenaeum, a school for young people who want to make business a career. Both the Auditorium and the Athenaeum were fathered by Mr. Ferdinand W. Peck, so it was fitting that he should preside at the Auditorium meeting.

The exercises were opened with organ music by Harrison M. Wild and vocal selections by the Imperial Quartet. Then Mr. Peck introduced President Harper of the University of Chicago, who spoke on the Athenaeum's value to the city. The Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale was the chief orator of the evening and his face was a benediction—noble old man! What an influence he has had on the thought of America in his more than three score and 10 years! He did not need to speak; his countenance spoke for him. The chairman referred to his famous motto, from "Ten Time One." I always loved those words:

"To look up and not down,
To look forward and not back," etc.

Dr. Hale's subject was "Practical Education" and he said that if he could call together on the platform of the Auditorium the men who had created the White City three years ago, he would like to ask them how God had commissioned them to carry out such a great work. He thought they would give us the secret of success. That led our thoughts back to the fair and to the men who planned the buildings—Burnham and Root; Sullivan and Adler; the sculptors, MacMonnies, French, St. Gaudens, and Lorado Taft, and Frederick W. Olmstead, the great landscape designer who changed a wilderness into a beautiful garden by his magic.

So we thought it was good to have been there.

We are much worried—at least I am worried—over the report that Charles T. Yerkes is planning to put a car line on Rush st. It would run only as far north as Huron st., so would not pass our house, but it would ruin the street—clanging along right in front of such fine homes as those of Hamilton and R. Hall McCormick, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, John V. Clarke, the McLaughlins, the Skinners, and the Willings.

Will thinks Mr. Yerkes will not be able to get enough signatures of owners to enable him to carry out his design. I hope so.

We have attended this week the funeral of a Chicago pioneer, one of our neighbors, Nathan Mears, who lived with his daughter, Mrs. Jonathan Slade, at 292 Ohio st. He was an example of the sort of success possible in our new city, for he came to the west from Massachusetts at the age of 21 and set up a general store in Michigan, where he bought large tracts of timber. These became very valuable when he started his lumber business in Chicago in the late forties. In the fire of 1871 he lost both his home and his business; but, just like many other Chicago business men, he rebuilt both and became again very prosperous. The Mears home was at 87 Cass st. for years, and here he and his wife celebrated their golden wedding in 1890. She died two or three years ago and he has since been living with Mrs. Slade on Ohio st. Another daughter is Mrs. James R. McKay, a leader in social and artistic circles.

And now I must close. Yours lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

The Athenaeum school, remembered by many who were young men and women in the nineties and whose principal for many years was Charles R. Barrett, is no longer in existence. . . . Yerkes' threatened cable car line on Rush st. did not materialize.

We are looking forward to reading the story of Lake Forest academy by Edward Arpee, head of the history department of that old school, in Chicago's most beautiful suburb. Louis E. Laflin Jr., whose family has long been identified with Lake Forest, prepared the bibliography and index. Ralph Fletcher Seymour is the publisher.

Country Sayings.

Readers have responded nobly to the request for original "wise sayings" of pioneers and we have some grand ones to print soon. The name of the winner will be announced next week. We have enjoyed the letters accompanying these offerings, for the proverbs sent in are often from Swedish, Scotch, English, Yankee, or southern forebears, and so we get a cross-section of the wisdom of the country.

Christmas Is Coming.

A reader in California writes that she is ordering "The Elegant Eighties" [A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago]. Others are laying in a stock of "Victorian Keepsakes" for Christmas. These little red and gold books, a treasure trove of old prose and poetry, will delight those who love Victorian things. Order of Tribune Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn st., or Tribune Tower. Price, 50 cents; by mail, 55 cents.

Woman's City Club to Honor Mrs. Douglas

The Woman's City club has a happy custom of giving special teas from time to time for distinguished guests. One of these parties is scheduled at 3 o'clock tomorrow in the club rooms in salute to Mrs. Paul H. Douglas, recently elected congresswoman at large from the state of Illinois. Wives of approximately 75 members of the City Club of Chicago have been invited to meet Mrs. Douglas, and to attend a forum program which will preface the tea. Mrs. Douglas is the wife of Maj. Douglas, former University of Chicago professor who resigned as alderman to enlist as a private in the marine corps. She is the daughter of Lorado Taft, the sculptor, and was educated at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. John Gutknecht's child welfare committee arranged the forum, which will bring as principal speaker Glenn M. Crockett, juvenile police officer of the 5th district police. He will tell of his work with a children's organization in his district, which has been instrumental in almost totally clearing the community of juvenile delinquency. Around 3,500 youngsters participate in the program, and hold weekly meetings in the Savoy ballroom.

At 10:30 o'clock Wednesday, the club's foods and merchandise committee will be joined by the Chicago Housewives' league in a conference devoted to study of textiles. Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley will lead the discussion which, among other things, will be concerned with wearing qualities of plastics, shrinkage and color fastness. A study also is being made on the grading of wool.

Continuing a series of meetings wherein membership of the organization is explored for interesting and unusual careers, the program and publicity committees have planned an open house for 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night. Mrs. Julian Kirven and Mrs. John Sharpless Fox are in charge of the session.

At a recent conference, the club's board of managers went on record as approving a joint recommendation of the public education and child welfare committees drawn up in connection with a "back to school" drive. The recommendations advocate that labor standards for youngsters in school be more widely publicized, and that school authorities and other public officials coöperate in the enforcement of child labor laws.

Star Auxiliary to Meet.

With Mrs. Harry Grossman presiding, the Star auxiliary of the Marks Nathan hall will have a meeting at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Standard club. A dramatic program has been arranged.

Noted Authors and Music on Program of Ravinia Club

Mrs. Frederick W. Spiegel of Highland Park and Mrs. David Mayer Jr. of Glencoe, who write collaboratively under the pseudonym of Clare Jaynes, will discuss their literary techniques when they appear before the Ravinia Woman's club at 2 o'clock Wednesday in the Village house. The program, which is being sponsored by the club's arts committee, will also include Christmas music to be presented by the Musart club of Highland Park.

Closely associated since their college days at Vassar, Mrs. Spiegel and Mrs. Mayer have been writing together for several years, and a movie version of their first novel, "Instruct My Sorrows," is due to be released soon. Mrs. Spiegel is the wife of Capt. F. W. Spiegel of the army air forces, and the mother of two sons, one of whom is in grammar school and the other in the navy. Mrs. Mayer has three children of grammar and high school age.

Mrs. Lisle R. Hawley will direct the Musart club in Rubenstein's "Seraphic Song," with Mrs. Virginia Garino, violinist, as guest artist. Soloists will be Mrs. Duffey Okey, soprano, and Mrs. Myles Dressler, contralto.

Corset Industry.

In 1867 the industry of corset making was so important in England that the total value of the annual production was more than $5,000,000.

Desert Just a Desert Until Dudes Arrived

"Yep, I guess it's purty, but what c'n ya do with it?" drawled the cowpoke. The rejoinder to the dude's rhapsodizing about the desert was typical of laconic conversations hereabouts heard every year at about this time.

TUCSON, ARIZ.

Mesquite and greasewood, purple haze and a copper sky—these are as unremarkable to the Arizona vaquero as is the "L" to a loop businessman. And until the easterners came, the answer to the cowboy's query was "Nothing."

Cattlemen, who are realists about the southwestern desert, say a section of land around the Old Pueblo can support three head of cattle. A section is 640 acres. That means 213 acres to graze one steer. You can be a big landholder out here and still be poor.

Down south in Santa Cruz county the situation is different, say, 20 or 30 head on a section. It is higher and wetter, with grasslands instead of cacti. Ranchers in Santa Cruz say theirs is the best part of the state—never too hot in the summer, nippy mornings and nights in the winter with warm Arizona sunshine at high noon.

Some of the better known guest ranches are in Santa Cruz county, the southern boundary of which is the Mexican border—Curly House, Hacienda Los Encinos, Kenyon, Circle Z, Rancho Santa Cruz, Diamond C.

Among the ranches in the San Rafael valley, east of Patagonia in the Canelo hills, lies the attractive all-year around ranch home of the James B. Meigs family of Chicago. A few miles away their neighbors, the Buel Hutchinsons of Chicago, operate the Little Outfit, which is not a ranch school, but a school on a ranch, for the ranch came first. The Hutchinsons bought it for a home, caught and tied by the spirit of the west during a winter vacation at Clare Webb's "76" ranch over at Bonita. Settled in their new home, the Hutchinsons found themselves without a school for Mary, Anne, or Ned, their children. So they proceeded to build a county style schoolhouse on the ranch property. Thus was the now famous Little Outfit born less than a decade ago.

Now there are dormitories, an extended ranchhouse, barns, corrals, a dairy, athletic fields, and all the equipment of a first class school. At first it was co-educational, but now Mary and Anne are in school in Tucson and only Ned is left in the elementary grades. So the Little Outfit takes boys only, 20 of them, and Mrs. Hutchinson—Pete to the boys—says that the male of the species is more tractable anyway.

In his fourth year at the outfit is Sam Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Ross of Barrington. When Sam first came west he was, by his own admission, a hothouse plant, addicted to colds and not very strong. Now he is the school's champ in high-jumping, a star in all sports, and one of the best young cowhands in the San Rafael valley. He has helped neighboring ranchers at roundup time and earned a day's wage with the best of them.

Fletcher Gurney, son of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Gurney of Chicago, saved his summer's earnings in order to buy his own horse this year. Admitting that he and the horse have some difference of opinion, Fletcher is nonetheless classed as an able hand. With George E. Booth Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Booth of Winnetka, young Gurney recently brought in a coyote.

Also at the Little Outfit this year are Robert Boake, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Boake of Evanston; Frederick Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Burns of Elgin, and Martin Decker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard M. Decker of Waukegan.

Santa Cruz county's popularity as a vacation area is heightened these days by its proximity to Mexico. In shops across the border at Nogales are to be found such quaint items as cigarets and shoes and elastic, as well as other staples of the tourist trade. In the latter category are excellent hand wrought pieces of leather, silver, and crudely blown glass.

This year the shoppers are bringing back curved combs, decorated with hand hammered silver "Indian raindrops," perfumes, and Mexican rum and tequila. The latter potion, a cactus distillate, is reported to have a prohibition era taste but is compelling nonetheless. Tourists in the border city, among whom have been noticed an early season sprinkling of middle easterners, stop at Wirt Bowman's Montezuma in Nogales, Ariz., or at Herman and Daniel Miller's Rancho Range, which overlooks the city and the mountains of Sonorato to the south.

Art Exhibits Taking on Air of Christmas

By Eleanor Jewett.

Various studios in Chicago are taking on a holiday air as Christmas approaches. The gayest studio exhibit I have found is that arranged by Peggy Palmer Burrows, 5820 Sheridan rd., who has filled her wide window with the most fascinating little brownies, elves, and Christmas peppermint canes painted on heavy board but looking enticingly real. Peggy Burrows is famous for her clever caricatures of noted persons and for her intriguing sketches of children. A new departure of hers, shown last year for the first time in the Findlay galleries, is furniture for children decorated with themes from "Alice," "Peter Rabbit," or other suitable children's favorites.

In her Christmas show Mrs. Burrows has added to her furniture several very attractive items. An outstanding one is a heavy wooden pail, minus handle and strikingly decorated with a farm scene, or merry-go-round horses, or snowmen, as the case may be, which makes not only an excellent catch-all for the children but an impressive and amusing paper basket for an adult. Huge painted boxes for treasure chests are another striking feature of the exhibit and two fascinating doll beds, complete with hair stuffed mattress and pillow, is another. Christmas tree ornaments and Christmas cards, as well as a gorgeous group of Peggy Burrows' caricatures and paintings of plump children, funny because they are so serious, make the show colorful and gay.

Another studio holiday exhibition may be found in Charles Biesel's studio, 1544 E. 57th st., where Mr. Biesel is showing oils and water colors. Mr. Biesel has had a most successful painting year, winning a number of special awards and prizes in various shows and enjoying a summer exhibit of his work in the Room of Chicago Art at the Art Institute. His work is strongly modern and interesting in pattern. It is liked by many people.

A larger showing of Christmas paintings is offered by the Chicago Galleries association, 215 N. Michigan av., where a holiday exhibit opened last Wednesday to continue thru the month. An effort has been made to keep the work moderately priced but high in caliber. There are, for instance, color etchings by Leon Pecheret from $6.50 to $8; block prints by Gustave Baumann from $25 to $50; decorative birds by Moessel from $25; and flower subjects in water color by Marie Blanke at $18. Water colors by various well known painters also are on view and an entire large gallery is devoted to decorative and attractive oils by such artists as Jessie Arms Botke, Leo Marzolo, Charles P. Killgore, and Clifone.

The exhibition is varied and worth while—even if you go just to look and not to buy.

The Findlay galleries, 338 S. Michigan av., are continuing the brilliant exhibit of paintings by Hovsep Pushman to Dec. 20 as a Christmas gesture. This is one of the outstanding exhibits of the season. Pushman is too well known for long discussion here, but one may say without fear of contradiction that this present showing of his work is the largest and finest Chicago has yet had. Pushman is a master craftsman in the painting of still life; his work glows and pulsates with meaning. He goes to the orient for much of his subject matter and China has been a rich storehouse of strange gods, magnificent horses and curios, beautiful potteries and backgrounds.

Hovsep Pushman has a warmth and richness of color impossible to surpass and a technique that gives us a little cup, or single flower, or luster plate that fairly hums. The quality of his painting is amazing. The variety of his work, even in its similarity of subject, is a never ending surprise and delight.

University and College Clubs Plan Meetings

Serious and thoughtful notes thread thru program offerings and parties of college and university circles scheduled this week.

In line with its custom of keeping members posted on topics of current interest, the American Association of University Women has invited Graham Hutton, director of the British Press Service office in Chicago, to speak at a dinner gathering Wednesday night in Huyler's restaurant, 308 S. Michigan av. "The British Commonwealth: An International Experiment" will be his subject.

At the outbreak of war, Mr. Hutton was called from the managing editorship of the Economist to serve in the foreign office in England. He has contributed to the American journals, Foreign Affairs and the Atlantic Monthly.

When members of the Chicago Club of Clarke College gather this morning at the Seneca hotel for their annual communion breakfast, the Rev. John J. Hellmuth will be guest speaker. Mrs. Richard Hallstrom is chairman for the breakfast, which will be preceded by 10 o'clock mass at the Holy Name cathedral. Miss Bonnie Hogan is club president.

At a 6:30 o'clock supper meeting Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Robert Altman, 10438 Hamilton av., Chicago alumnae of Alpha Phi will focus attention on ways and means of raising money for the Pan-Hellenic sorority's major war service project—that of assisting with the work of the chaplains' service corps.

With headquarters in Los Angeles, Cal., the chaplain's service corps was organized by volunteer women shortly after Pearl Harbor to supply military posts with recreational equipment and other supplies. Gifts from the corps are made thru chaplains, and go chiefly to remote and isolated stations.

In preparation for Christmas, Alpha Phi chapters thruout the United States have sent thousands of individual gifts to the corps for distribution. The sorority's initial contribution of $2,000 to the corps was earmarked for portable victrolas and records. Mrs. Ralph Strader of Evanston is national president of the sorority, and Mrs. William Fuller Gregson of Chicago is national chairman of the war projects committee.

Phi Omega Pi alumnae will drop contributions for their war service fund into a cleverly devised "wishing well" when they meet Tuesday night for a Christmas party at the Illini center of the La Salle hotel. The Chicago district board of the sorority is sponsoring the party, to which have been invited all Chicago area members. The west side alumnae unit will be hostess group and Miss Marian Edwards, Mrs. William A. Dean, and Mrs. Fred Dahlberg are in charge of entertainment. Mrs. John Polli and Mrs. William Kercher are accepting reservations.

To commemorate the 56th anniversary of Beta Sigma Omicron, Chicago alumnae will have a tea at 3 o'clock Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Walter Coxe, 6521 Spokane av. The party is one of scores being given by units of the Pan-Hellenic organization thruout the United States.

New Children's League Head Will Take Office

When the Chicago Children's Benefit league meets Tuesday in the Central Y. W. C. A., 59 E. Monroe st., Mrs. Henry W. Bernhardt will assume her new duties as president of the philanthropic society. Other recently elected officers are Mrs. Paul B. Smithson, Mrs. J. T. Arenberg, and Mrs. John C. Cannon, vice presidents; Mrs. John J. O'Leary and Mrs. A. F. Montezon, secretaries, and Mrs. Henry O. Koehler, treasurer. Committee chairmen are Mrs. Royal D. Dwight, Mrs. Morton Bodfish, Mrs. Lee H. Williams, Mrs. William Raiser Jr., Mrs. Leslie Biggins, and Mrs. Leon Grotowski. Composed of 50 Chicago social agencies devoted to the care of children, the league is the oldest tag day organization in the city.

TO BE MARRIED

Miss Ann-Marcy Morley's engagement to Perry Edward Fisher of the navy, son of Mrs. Raymond Gaylord Fisher of Chicago, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Tobey Morley of Evanston. Miss Morley, a graduate of the Principia Upper school in St. Louis, Mo., now attends the Principia college in Elsah, Ill. Her fiance, a graduate of the Art Students' League of New York, has been serving in the Atlantic for 18 months.

A Busy Week Faces State Federation

This will be a busy week at Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs headquarters, with a two day midwinter meeting of the board of directors taking precedence on the calendar. Mrs. Walter M. Rennie, state president, will call the first session of the board to order at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, and conferences will continue thru Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Walter M. Rennie.

Reports are to be heard from Mrs. Raymond R. Fairfield of Normal, Mrs. Burton A. Noyes, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. William F. Bennett of Flora, regional vice presidents of the federation, and from district presidents and state chairmen. Other officers participating in the conference will be Mrs. Harry M. Daughtrey, recording secretary; Mrs. Terrence C. Craig, treasurer; Mrs. Willis J. Burgess, executive secretary, and Mrs. Clarence G. Goodwin, parliamentarian.

At 10 a. m. Tuesday, Mrs. Charles D. Rowland's conservation department will hear a talk by Miss Dorothy Godwin of the Forest service of the United States department of agriculture, and at the same hour, Mrs. R. C. Mann will conduct a meeting of her law observance department.

The garden department has decided to move to the Wedgwood room of Marshall Field and company for its annual Christmas luncheon, booked for 12:30 o'clock Tuesday. Following the luncheon, the state chairman, Mrs. Harry H. Messick, will give a talk on "What Makes Nature Tick," and a musical program will be presented under the direction of the 3d district chairman, Mrs. Frank Baldwin of Tinley Park. Artist participants will be Mrs. Doris Weber Essig, pianist, and Mrs. William Ewert, singer. Mrs. Ewert is director of the Dolton-Riverdale Woman's club chorus.

Women Plan Round Table Discussions

The question of racial tensions, particularly as they will affect the post-war world, is posted for round table discussion at a noon breakfast meeting Tuesday of the Chicago Woman's Aid. Participating in the panel will be Dr. Fay Cooper Cole, head of the department of anthropology at the University of Chicago, and Dr. Robert Weaver, new director of community services with the American Council of Race Relations. The program was arranged by the club's public affairs committee and will be held in the Aid rooms at 185 N. Wabash av.

Mrs. Aaron E. Kanter. [A. Roth Photo.]

An eagerly anticipated event on the Aid calendar is the annual book talk given by Mrs. Aaron E. Kanter, vice president of the club. Her review this year is scheduled at a noon literature breakfast Friday. She will discuss Thomas Mann's "Joseph the Provider."

• • •

Another round table booked for this week is to be presented at a meeting of Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women. The council's Americanization group is sponsoring the symposium, which will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday night at 185 N. Wabash av., and which will bring as participants three members of the Chicago Round Table of the National Conference of Christians and Jews: Miss Blanche Scholes, assistant director of Friendship house; the Rev. M. W. Clair Jr., pastor of the St. Mark Methodist church, and Leo Shapiro, director of intercultural education for the Anti-Defamation league.

Children Will Sing 'Hansel, Gretel' Tunes

By Irene Steyskal.

Perhaps it is a wholesome thing that even in the midst of war there is not, during this brief holiday season, a four-star general or a political bigwig who could usurp in the younger generation's parade of heroes the place of the roly-poly figure in the red frock coat and stocking cap—the jolly little man with the fringe of white whiskers on his chin.

St. Nick is back on the scene for his brief day of gift giving and merry making, and from behind his coattails peer all those bright eyed, fantastic small people of the fairy tales—Hansel in his blue pantaloons and Gretel of the lemon yellow braids; the Crunch Witch and the Gingerbread Children; faithful Prince Tamino and his Magic Flute, and his friend, Papageno, braggart but kind hearted, in coat of bird feathers; the Queen of the Night, in a star bordered dress, and hosts of other make-believe folk who are never more real than at Christmas time.

Literary hall of the Fine Arts building will ring Tuesday night with the engaging Humperdinck tunes of the "Hansel and Gretel" fairy tale opera. Boys and girls of the young artists department of the Chicago Artists association will gather there for their Christmas party, and three of their members will entertain the group with a performance of the third act of the opera—that set in the Crunch Witch's gingerbread hut where Hansel and Gretel turn the tables on the witch, popping her into the oven which she has prepared to roast Hansel for her supper.

Jean Nichols, who won the association's annual spring contest, will be Hansel, and Gretel will be played by Betty Woodward, who won the contest in 1943. Betty Sellers will be the witch. Ruth Heizer will play piano accompaniments.

The younger children of the junior artists department will precede the intermediates to the hall, gathering at 7:30 o'clock for their party. They will sing and play Christmas music and will be entertained by Miss Margaret Bivins, who has a large collection of dolls which she will display and about which she will tell stories.

Falling within the Christian Advent, Jewish Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, also is a season of rejoicing, and tomorrow's meeting of the Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women is set in a gay key.

Members are to be seated in the fifth floor auditorium of the Medical and Dental Arts building by 1:45 o'clock, for precisely at that time the stage curtains will be drawn on the fairyland scene of "The Magic Flute." The All-Children's Grand Opera company will perform the Mozart opera, singing in English. Cast in the leading parts are Bunny Rose, 7; Sheldon Patinkin, 8; Louise Altia, 13; Betty Hoch and Nancy Sterling, both 15, and Beverly Raney, 17.

This is the group whose parent organization is the Fine Arts Opera, both directed by Zerline Muhlman Metzger. Mme. Metzger is a daughter of the late Adolph Muhlman, who was a leading baritone of the Metropolitan. Her All-Children's opera has performed with the Metropolitan, the Chicago, and the San Carlo companies.

Music of the Yuletide echoes from a score of other centers where choruses are rehearsing or clubs assembling for December meetings. Enrico Clausi will return to Chicago from the east, where he has been singing with the Boston Opera company, to give a Christmas concert for the American Opera society at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Arts club.

Mr. Clausi's program will include the tenor arias from "The Messiah" and some of the great Nativity hymns, and he also will sing selections from Victor Herbert's opera "Natoma." An instrumental trio from the Chicago Woman's Symphony orchestra, composed of Evelyn Freedman, violinist; Elizabeth Roehlk, cellist, and Hattie Krause, pianist, will accompany Mr. Clausi, and will contribute to the program some of the "Hansel and Gretel" music.

• • •

The death last week of Mme. Elaine De Sellem, who had been a leading figure for many years in Chicago musical circles, meant the loss of a beloved president to the American Opera society. Plans for the Christmas program having been completed, the board decided to carry the Wednesday meeting thru as originally planned. Later the group will confer on a memorial to Mme. De Sellem.

Responsibility of directing the society now evolves upon Mrs. Esther E. Turkington, vice president and program chairman.

The Wednesday meeting will close with a luncheon. Among those planning to attend are Mrs. Helen Rend Clarke, Mrs. Frederick Adam Schaaf, Mrs. Ashley Moss Brand, Mrs. Walter Bracken, Mrs. Ralph Chester Otis, Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone, Mrs. John Hemphill Counter, Mrs. Wilbur C. Smith, Mrs. William Allison, and Mrs. Ralph Talbot Winston.

Chicago chapters of Delta Omicron, the national music sorority founded in 1909 at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, will give a banquet Wednesday evening in the Cordon club in observance of the sorority's 34th anniversary. They will have as guests George Kumper, manager of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and Hans Lange, associate conductor of the orchestra and a patron of the sorority.

Blythe Owen's composition for a piano quintet which was awarded the Delta Omicron prize in a contest for American women composers, will be played, with Miss Owen at one of the pianos. General arrangements for the party are in Miss Evelyn McCullough's charge, and Mrs. Roy Schuessler has arranged the program.

Members of the Lake View Musical society, of which Mrs. Frederic Tellander is president, will gather at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the Arts club for their annual Christmas concert and tea. The program will be given by May Barron, contralto; Gladys Reid, soprano; Alice Marz, pianist, and Hellen Morton, who will play accompaniments. Gladys Porter has arranged the concert.

"Music in Religion" is the theme of the Christmas program to be heard at 3 o'clock this afternoon by the Music Study club of Chicago at the Alliance Francaise in the Fine Arts building. The artists will be Helen Comer Strauss, contralto, and Evelyn Fehr, pianist.

With Miss Margaret Dahlstrom directing, the American Daughters of Sweden will have a community sing of Christmas carols tomorrow night in the Woodrow Wilson room of International Relations center, 84 E. Randolph st. Miss Dahlstrom will give a talk on the historical origin of some of the songs on the program.

TO WED FEB. 4

Miss Bercilyn Zimbler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Zimbler of N. Claremont av., will be married to Harold H. Schwab on Feb. 4 at the Sovereign hotel. Miss Zimbler attended the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, and her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Schwab, was graduated from the University of Illinois.

Winter Guests Open Trek to Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH One swallow does not make a summer, but 2,500 a day do, and that is the rate at which travelers are arriving in the Miamis at present. While more than half this number are now service men, the proportion of civilians is increasing every day, with the great influx expected, as usual, in early January.

It is the early bird that will get the worm, too, for housing continues to be one of the greatest problems here. Lucky is the winter visitor who can be content with a hotel room, for this week he has his choice of about 14,500 rooms at Miami Beach alone, whereas a year ago the number was approximately 8,600. Practically no apartments are available and there are only a few houses offered. Hotel reservations are heavy for the height of season and advance arrangements are strongly advised.

While the army released many Miami Beach hotels last summer, with the completion of its training program here, many of the large ocean front hotels were retained and now make up the redistribution center.

Many of the men who were trained here two and three years ago are now visiting Miami Beach again, this time to rest and relax while awaiting reassignment, after foreign service.

Thorobred racing got off to its longest season in Florida history with the opening of Gulf Stream Park. This is the racing course near Hollywood that opened spectacularly in 1939 to close just as spectacularly four days later and remain closed until this season. It attracted a crowd of over 10,000 opening day, including Chicagoans Mr. and Mrs. David J. Molloy, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Clark, who entertained a group of eight from Palm Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Vaughan, hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Hanson, who are wintering at their Golden Beach home, and the Hansons' house guests, Mrs. Alvah Sutter and Mrs. Harry De Clerque of Winnetka.

Others entertaining at luncheon and box parties opening day were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Balfe, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sabath, Mr. and Mrs. Rome V. Wayne, and Mrs. Cleaveland B. Putnam, who was with Mrs. Ellen Tuck Astor of New York and Mrs. Julio Sanchez of Havana. Mr. and Mrs. Putnam have just celebrated two occasions within the week—their sixth wedding anniversary, with a cocktail buffet, and the third birthday anniversary of their daughter, Lucy Lynn, with a party for her young friends.

Another first of the season will be the Committee of One Hundred forum Tuesday, when Col. Edwin H. Cooper, United States army signal corps, will speak on "Around the World with G. I. Joe." The famous Bryan Memorial Bible class in Bay Front park, Miami, has resumed for the winter. It was established in 1918 by the late William Jennings Bryan, who taught the open air class for many years. Among distinguished honorary members who have addressed the class is Dr. John Timothy Stone of Chicago.

The three clubs—Surf, Bath, and Indian Creek—have just started their winter programs, which will get into full swing with the holidays. Membership lists include many high ranking army and navy officers stationed here. The Indian Creek has resumed its popular features, Wednesday buffet dinners, Sunday buffet luncheons and dancing, and Tuesday ladies' days. Chicagoans noted at the first Sunday luncheon included Dr. and Mrs. Clare L. Frame, Mr. and Mrs. William Atwill Jr., and Mrs. Joseph W. Sharp, whose guests included Mrs. Alfredo Zayas, widow of a former president of Cuba.

Many Illinois visitors attended the opening luncheon of the Surf club Friday and will be on hand today for the ever popular Sunday buffet in the patio garden. The list includes Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Kleinschmidt of Highland Park and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kleinschmidt; Mrs. Augustus E. Staley of Decatur, Mr. and Mrs. I. Walter Rodgers of Cairo, George A. Winn of Chicago, here again after an absence of two winters, and Harry V. Vaughan and Mrs. Vaughan, who attended despite a broken right arm.

Thursday night dinners, another popular feature of the Surf club, will start this week. The first gala dinner-dance will be held Saturday and weekly bridge tournaments will start Friday. Tennis courts, swimming pool, and the bridge and backgammon room are now open, and cabana reservations are so heavy that the club plans to open a group of cabanas in the upper tier of the north circle which never before have been used.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

DOMESTIC TRAVEL

Tucson Boasts Lure of West, Ideal Climate

By Mildred Peterson.

TUCSON, Ariz. [Special].—Combining a warm, dry, sunny climate, an ideal altitude, and the glamor of western life, Arizona has, for years, been the mecca of many persons during the winter months. Travel agents and resort hotels report this year that reservations have been filled almost to capacity thru March and the visitor's only hope for a reservation is dependent upon a cancellation.

Tucson, Nogales, Douglas, Phoenix, Wickenburg, and Chandler with all of their hotels, famous resorts, sanatoria, apartments, courts, and guest and dude ranches beckon to the winter chilled northerner.

"The Sunshine Capital of the United States" is the claim of Tucson, where there are 336 days of 100 per cent sunshine a day, with no days without sunshine. The mean temperature in this bracing altitude of 2,400 feet where the air is dry and pure is 49.7 for December; 49.6 for January, 52.6 for February, and 57.3 for March.

Tucson also boasts a colorful history. In 1776, while the eastern seaboard was beginning a severance from the old world, Tucson became a Spanish presidio—a walled city. Next, Tucson became an outpost of the Mexican republic with trappers and frontiersmen, followed by settlers bound for California. Then in 1854 the flag of the United States was unfurled, only to be replaced by that of the Confederacy in 1861. But that same year the Stars and Stripes again waved over the old pueblo.

Ranches in these parts mean roping, riding, branding, gorgeous sunsets, watching the "hands" work the herds, desert moonlight, hunting, camp fires, chuck in the early morning, and rodeos.

One of the most popular resorts in this area is the Westward Look, nine miles from this city on the Oracle Star route in the foothills of the Catalina mountains. Built in pueblo style, the guest rooms and suites provide beautiful desert and mountain vistas from each window. A variety of diversions, including badminton, croquet, deck and table tennis, and shuffleboard are available, and frequent picnics are held on the grounds. Motor trips also are arranged to near-by points of national interest and to old Mexico.

SITTING PRETTY

This vivacious visitor to St. Petersburg, Fla., thinks fishing in the gulf is loads of fun. By that smile the fish must be biting.

Excelsior Springs Is Preparing for Its Best Season

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., [Special].—This town is getting ready for what may prove to be the biggest season in its 64 year history.

The famed mineral waters and baths of Excelsior Springs are the basic attraction to visitors with riding, swimming, golfing, hiking, and concerts providing diversions for the health and rest seeker. The Hall of Waters now is open evenings. This spacious room houses the world's largest mineral water bar.

Indications are that the sport of riding will be followed by an increased number of visitors this year as the suspension of the American Royal Horse show in Kansas City has freed many mounts for public use and exercise this season and horse fanciers have been enthusiastic over their performance. For the novice, gaited mounts of gentle disposition are available.

Mexico City Prepares for Gala Yuletide

By Bob Becker.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico [Special].—This picturesque city already has started its preparations for a joyous Christmas, for the Yule season in Mexico begins about Dec. 15 and closes Jan. 6 with the exchange of presents in remembrance of the Magi and their gifts to the Christ Child. It is a season of celebration in which are blended, with curious but touching harmony, the symbols and ceremonies of Christianity and ancient paganism. Homes and public places alike glow with excitement which the visitor is bound to enjoy.

Altho these weeks present every sort of attraction from religious rites to rodeos and bullfights, there are two traditional expressions about which the tourist should know. One is the posada and the other the Nacimiento. These are family affairs but, if he has knowledge of them, the visitor will find it easy to gain an invitation.

For the Nacimiento several rooms in the house are cleared and used for the display built to represent the countryside in Palestine at the time of the Nativity. Great pains are taken to include every detail of village, road, mountain, and plain in this stage across which the tiny figures of the Magi, mounted on camels, day by day progress until they arrive at the stable in Bethlehem on the evening of Jan. 6.

Almost every Mexican family holds a posada at some time in the latter half of December. Friends and relatives gather in the patio, the feature of whose elaborate decorations is the piñata. After chants and carols have been sung at the household shrine every one is keyed to the merry competition to break the piñata.

This may be either a huge earthenware pot gaudily covered with colored paper or a grotesque papier mache form, controled in suspension by a rope. Each guest in turn is blindfolded, and given a stick with which to break the piñata. Firecrackers explode under his feet and every one shouts directions which cause him to strike out blindly. Eventually, of course, some lucky one breaks the piñata and there is a mad scramble for the candies, nuts, fruits, and good luck pieces which shower from the vessel.

Even Santa Claus and the Christmas tree have invaded Mexico, but for the visitor, the introduction to native forms of Yuletide celebration amid the beauties of bowered bougainvillea, far from the chill and snow, holds a charm and a thrill which must be experienced to be appreciated.

Hotels Available but Houses Few in Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., [Special].—This city is being frank with its prospective visitors by giving this advice:

If you're looking for hotel accommodations, there will be plenty.

If you're looking for houses, they're a bit difficult to find, unless you want a large house.

If you're concerned about eating out, lay aside your worries, for Daytona Beach restaurants are not unduly overcrowded.

Steel for Bridge.

More than 152,000 tons of structural steel went into the construction of the four and one-half mile long San Francisco-Oakland bridge.

More Rooms in Miami Beach; Demand Is Up

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. [Special].—Miami Beach moves into the winter season with more room to house civilians than at any time since our entry into the war, but with demands for accommodations also up.

The city is still serving as a rest camp for war weary soldiers returning from overseas air service and ground corps troops are recuperating at some of the city's finest hotels. The general military training program now known as the "Miami Beach Plan" for whipping recruits into shape has been moved elsewhere, however, leaving many additional hotels available to civilians.

At this time last year, Miami Beach had only 8,637 hotel rooms to house civilian visitors. This season 14,497 hotel rooms are to be had.

Altho Miami Beach has more room, prospective visitors are being asked to write ahead for reservations before leaving the north.

Civilians also are cautioned against making the trip to Miami Beach if the journey interferes with the normal flow of military traffic.

The ban on deep sea fishing has been lifted and once again charter boats are pushing out into the Gulf Stream to battle game fish that abound there. The Greater Metropolitan Miami fishing tournament opens Jan. 7 and carries thru April 15 with prizes for fishermen who make outstanding catches. The Ruppert fishing tournament, of course, is held all year 'round.

Lady of the House

Christmas Carol.

At first we borrowed from the "old" countries; then we gradually established Christmas traditions of our own. More and more that first of Charles Dickens' popular holiday stories, Christmas Carol [now in its second century], has been a part of Christmas for many of us. Often Dickens himself chose it in those later years of his life when he exercised his fine dramatic talent in frequent readings from his own works, coming to America [for the second time] for that purpose only a few years before his death.

In an old journal Dickens' devoted friend, Hans Christian Andersen, gives an interesting account of a visit to Gadshill, new country house of the Dickens family. Little Dorrit had just been completed and the two friends looked forward to being "playfellows" for a bit and having some "cricket on the green."

Sadly, Douglas Jerrold, dramatist and elder friend of Dickens, died the day before Andersen's arrival, comforting his wife with the words, "Dickens will look after you."

Dickens did. Enlisting the aid of Bulwer, Thackeray, Collins and others, giving generously and cheerfully of his own time and talent, he fitted up a little theater in his town house where he and a few friends gave dramatic entertainments [Dickens' stories and Jerrold's and Collins' dramas] to select groups for the benefit of Jerrold's family.

At one of the first of these Dickens read his Christmas Carol. How I should like to have been there to hear that great, kindly man of whom Andersen said: "Take the best out of Dickens' writings, combine them into the picture of a man, and there thou hast Charles Dickens."

The most striking in a series of performances which followed was that of Wilkie Collins' new romantic drama, "The Frozen Deep," in which Dickens and Collins played the rival lovers. It had long been the Queen's wish to see one of the performances, so Victoria, Prince Albert, the royal children, also the Crown prince of Prussia and the King of the Belgians, were present at the little theater called the Gallery of Illustration, decked with flowers in their honor. A separate buffet with refreshments was provided for Royalty, and another for the spectators. The performance was repeated on several evenings for the public.

Jerrold's family thus secured a moderate income; and Andersen, sad at parting from his friends, went on to the unveiling of the statues of Goethe and Schiller—"from the land of Shakespeare, from the home of Dickens, to the land of the Minnesingers, to the town of the poets—to Weimar."

But all that was a long life time ago.

To Billy.

I wish my child I really knew
The things you seem to think I do.
You come to me with no suggestion
Of doubt that I can't answer your question
Of why the earth goes round this sun
Instead of round some other one;
Of whence we come and where we go;
Why angels fly; if God likes snow;
If something good will come tomorrow;
If dogs and cats can feel deep sorrow;
Of what is right and what is wrong;
If birds have words to match their song.
O yes, my child, I wish I knew
Just half the things you think I do!

MILDRED DAHLGREN.

My Lady of the House.

Watching for the mail man
Look for him twice a day—
Can hardly finish up my work
Hurry, mail man, come my way!

From my soldiers and my sailors
From "grandies" and my sons
Some travel now in Europe
With those awful tanks and guns.

Out in the Field Artillery
Where foxholes are dug deep,
Imagination pictures them
In rain and snow and sleet.

Seems but as yesterday
They were youngsters here at play,
Now they are across the sea
Each day a fighting day.

Good thoughts may help them onward,
All our prayers will guard them too,
Learn the lessons they are needing
With their warlike retinue.

Ella M. Bartlett.

Thinking to bypass the cigaret shortage, a north shore college girl decided to try a pipe as many of her schoolmates had.

For the tryout she acquired a not too costly one, loaded it with tobacco, lit it and tried to draw. It didn't work. Repeated attempts, but no smoke.

Then she removed the bowl and blew vigorously thru the stem. Out popped a little green worm! Lusty college yell screams. Bits of shattered pipe all over the floor. Pipe smoke dreams cut short.

What the girl wants to know is: What was a green worm doing in a pipe stem?

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 Spade	Pass	2 Hearts	Pass
3 Spades	Pass	4 Diamonds	Pass
4 Hearts	Pass	4 Spades	Pass
6 Spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of clubs.

When a great many points are at stake, the best possible chance should be taken to fulfill the contract even tho it involves going down an additional trick, should the plan fail.

In today's hand, South became declarer at the contract of six spades on bidding that meets with our unqualified approval. North's response of two hearts was routine and after South made a jump rebid, North realized there was a good chance for slam because he himself held the equal of an opening bid. He, therefore, took pains to show the ace of diamonds, whereupon South returned the compliment in hearts. North was now content to show his spade support and South did the rest. He knew that the ace of clubs was adversely held, because North had failed to show it, but with lead coming up to him there was no immediate danger and he hoped to be able to develop partner's heart suit for discards.

The 10 of clubs was led, taken by the ace and the four returned. Declarer won and extracted trumps. He was now apparently presented with a choice of plays. If West held the king of diamonds, he could finesse the queen and discard a heart on the ace. Or he could try to guess who had the queen of hearts. He decided on the latter course. He led a number of trumps with the hope that the discards would be enlightening, but the opposition would not furnish any clues. At length he played the ace of hearts and finessed the 10 in dummy losing to East's queen.

Declarer had not chosen the best line of play. He placed all his hopes in the heart finesse. He should have given himself two chances instead of one. After trumps are out he should play the two high hearts. There is a chance that the queen will fall doubleton. If it does, his worries are over, if it fails to appear declarer still has remaining the hope that the diamond finesse will succeed.

It is true that declarer incurs the risk of going down two tricks instead of one if East has the king of diamonds and the remaining heart, but surely it is worth it. Bear in mind that if the only consideration were the location of the queen of hearts the finesse would be a better play than the attempt to drop it, but the advantage of the finesse against the queen with eight cards in the suit is only very slight; so if any additional play suggests itself the finesse can profitably be abandoned in the long run.

Gifts for Home Fun to Select and to Receive

By Edith Weigle.

Christmas gifts for the house last the year 'round, so why not give mother or hostess friend something for her dining table or living room?

Most women who like flowers or who are fortunate enough to have gardens in the summer say they never have too many vases, bowls, or shallow containers for their blooms. So, whether you have much or little to spend for gifts, there's a suggestion.

We saw some attractive pastel colored, shallow bowls the other day that would make welcome Christmas presents. They were available in a number of tones, shapes, and sizes and were not at all expensive.

Green plants in pottery containers also are sold in the stores. Singly or in pairs they make pleasant remembrances for that friend or acquaintance who already seems to have just about everything. So, also, does an attractive bowl filled with narcissi bulbs. These last are priced at from $1.50 to $1.75.

In this coffee-drinking nation there are still thousands of families that like tea. If you have friends who serve it regularly why not give them tea cosies? These amusing, quilted cotton covers have been used by the British for generations and serve to keep the tea pot hot for a long time. Of course, they're intended for use when the oolong or orange pekoe is served at the table, not in the kitchen.

One Chicago store has a supply of them in several colors. They are priced at around two and a half dollars each and make an unusual and practical gift. And you can send a tea pot to accompany the cosy, if you wish. It should be an earthenware one, to be in keeping.

Still another gift almost any home will find pleasing is a small, shaggy, soft rug. Made of cotton in a great number of gay hues, this type of floor covering is washable and inexpensive, but smart and good looking. Use it in front of the fireplace, or under the coffee table, or beside a bed or in a small entrance hall.

Wide Selection of Gift Lingerie Available Now

By Rea Seeger.

This is the Christmas when women really will prize the gift of lingerie. Fine, exquisitely made pieces; nightgowns, costume slips, bra and pantie sets, or the matched duets of gown and negligee, still rate high with all discriminating women. Lingerie gifts always click.

And while the all-silk and satin pieces are rare, those very lovely things are available with comparatively costly price marks on the tags. The fragile chiffon chemise, a veritable Christmas gift de luxe, can be found in such alluring shades as canary, deep rose, and blue. These are dramatized with black lace, and there also is enough of the wicked black sheer stuff to make quite a showing.

The all-black loot features net, chiffon, and the usual black lace trim. A few of the black nightgowns have been trimmed with appliqued motifs of pale blue or flesh pink, but most of them are all-black with bows of satin ribbon in contrasting colors. They're the special delight of the masculine shoppers and the women who are lucky enough to find them wrapped festively in boxes beside the tree, come Christmas morning.

All the slick, smooth rayon-silks assure a wide selection. The gowns are lavishly trimmed with wide lace in natural tints or in shades dyed to match the gown materials. Pale pink, blue, and a few white background prints, with the design daintily pastel, provide a wide assortment.

The gleaming white crepes and satins are unusually lovely this year. Some have flirtatious bows of satin ribbon in either pink or blue; others are all-white, and all are made with exquisite pre-war details and handwork. The catch in all this is the dismal fact that supplies vanish, almost while they're being brought from stockrooms.

Costume slips are other important gift finds. You'll have ample assortments of these. Some feature decorative models with lace in the bra top and wide lace motifs in the skirt along the hemline. Others are slim, smooth tailored affairs, detailed with almost engineering precision, and unadorned.

Black, brown, occasional deep blues, white, the always good pink and blue, assure a good selection for all shoppers. The clever blouse and slip combinations, cut in one piece, come in flesh, white, blue, and beige. Such a slip-blouse model is the answer to the problem of keeping your blouse neatly tucked in at all times.

Long sleeved nightgowns are extremely popular, whether in rayon crepes, satin, warm flannelettes, or gossamer wools. They are decorative creations far, far removed from the frumpy old fashioned ideas of grandmother's time. They have a demure charm achieved with narrow lace or embroidered frills around the narrow band cuffs of the sleeves and the collar line of the high neck. The gowns themselves are cut on the bias in the same flattering silhouette as the satin and silk models.

Sketched are six representative new pieces of lingerie featured for the Christmas gift shopper. All are available in a Chicago store. For further information call Superior 0200.

Mrs. Ella S., Chicago.—Here's a quick way to wipe down painted kitchen walls without rubbing or cleanser. I close all doors and windows and then let a kettle of water boil vigorously for half an hour or more. I also light oven and let the door stand open. I let this steaming process continue for about half an hour and then use soft dry cloths to wipe walls, woodwork, and ceiling. I work fast and if I never let my walls get too soiled, the results are good.

Mrs. Kay T., Gary, Ind.—I made my husband a handy humidifier for his tobacco pouch by perforating the lid and bottom of a metal aspirin box. After filling box with absorbent cotton I dipped it in water and then shook it to get rid of excess water. It is an easy container for either a pouch or tobacco can.

Sadie T., Oshkosh, Wis.—I speed up my washing of small articles by putting them into small bags such as sugar or flour sacks. It takes less time to handle them this way than to put them thru the wringer individually.

Elsie W., Grand Rapids, Mich.—When I must rip seams which I have made on my sewing machine I cut the lower thread every half inch or so. In this way the upper thread is left free and pulls out easily.

2521 HAT & BAG

2549 SIZES 10-20

2589 SIZES 12-44

By Clotilde.

The utter simplicity of these two dress designs recommends them as wardrobe basic items. Economy of line assures their smartness.

At the left, a model to serve as foil for your favorite costume or precious jewelry. Shirring lends grace to the bodice, while the skirt, paneled smartly, is pencil-slim. Crepe, in black or colors, is the loveliest choice for this afternoon or informal evening frock.

Sometimes fashion places dress interest in the front, sometimes in the back, but this model goes in for side interest. The model buttons from shoulder to hemline down the left side. Stitching accents the closing and the seam at the opposite side. The collar opens out in the rever manner, and the sleeves are simple. Wool is perfect for this frock.

Style No. 2549 is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material for dress with three-quarter sleeves; 2¾ yards of 39 inch fabric with ¾ yard of ruffling for model with short sleeves.

Style No. 2589 is designed for sizes 12 to 44. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch fabric for dress with long sleeves.

No. 2521 makes a hat and bag in one size. Pattern envelope lists yardage requirements.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

The winter edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions now is available over the counter of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower lobby, for 15 cents. Twelve cents buys the book if it is ordered with a pattern from the address in the coupon.

The gay young miss who is planning a round of afternoon or holiday parties must have a change in her fashion scenery for these gala occasions. As an addition to brightly colored or rich black sequin trimmed dresses try a two piece combination of rustling taffeta and silky crepe.

This elegant looking, short sleeved blouse of muted blue and gray striped taffeta has a flattering low cut U neckline. Gold plastic buttons for trim are above a smart little peplum. In contrast is a pencil slim, black crepe skirt.

To complete this striking outfit, wear long black gloves, carry one of the new black plastic bags, and top the whole thing off with a pouf of a hat composed of velvet, flowers, and veiling.

Save a Little Sugar for Few Holiday Treats

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

If we're stingy with sugar every day we'll be able to indulge in a mild sugar spree for the holidays. Treats like Turkish paste, a delightful jellied candy which isn't too rich, and maple nut balls, cookies rolled in maple frosting and coated with nuts. Or a batch of Belgian cookies, bars which keep for weeks.

Belgian Christmas Cookies.

- ⅔ cup shortening
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 1⅔ cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- Ground almonds, colored sugar, cinnamon

Cream shortening and brown sugar, add eggs and flavoring. Sift dry ingredients together and add. Spread in shallow greased pan with a wet knife. Sprinkle with cinnamon, ground almonds, colored sugar, and chill. Bake at 350 degrees. Cut in squares while still warm. These cookies will keep well.

Maple Nut Balls.

- ½ cup lard
- ½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1 cup molasses
- 3¼ cups flour
- Maple flavored frosting
- Chopped nuts

Cream lard, sugar, and salt together; add sour milk in which soda has been dissolved. Add ginger, molasses, and enough flour so that dough is not sticky. Slightly more may be required. Shape dough into small balls by rolling between the palms and bake on oiled pans at 375 degrees. While still hot press two cookies together on their flat sides, making a ball. Roll each in maple flavored confectioner's icing, then in chopped nuts. Place on wax paper to cool.

Turkish paste is easy to make and may be colored and flavored in various ways to make it tempting. Red and green colorings are suggested in the recipe, but yellow and orange in addition will make your assortment prettier. Flavor the yellow mixture with lemon, the orange with orange, of course. Sometimes I have used rum flavoring in a part of this candy.

Turkish Paste.
[200 jelly cubes]

- 4 cups sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1⅓ cups boiling water
- 4 tablespoons [envelope] plain gelatin
- 1 cup cold water
- ⅛ teaspoon peppermint extract
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon extract
- Red and green coloring

Heat sugar, salt, and boiling water to the boiling point. Pour cold water in a bowl and sprinkle gelatin on top. Let soak 5 minutes, or until gelatin has absorbed the water. Add to hot sirup and stir until dissolved. Boil mixture very slowly for 15 minutes. Remove from heat and divide in two portions [more, if you wish other colors and flavors]. Color one part a light red with several drops of red coloring, and add cinnamon extract. Color other part light green and flavor with peppermint. Rinse two pans, about 8 by 4 inches, in cold water and pour in candy mixtures, to a depth of about ¾ inch. Keep in a cool place, not the refrigerator, overnight or for at least 12 hours. With a wet, sharp knife, loosen candy around edges of pans and turn out on a board lightly covered with granulated or confectioner's sugar. Cut into cubes and coat all sides with the sugar.

Cherry Divinity.

- 2 cups sugar
- ½ cup light corn sirup
- ½ cup hot water
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 egg whites
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup chopped nuts
- ½ cup chopped green and red candied cherries

Combine sugar, sirup, and hot water in saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Bring to boil and cook without stirring to the firm ball stage, 248 degrees. Wipe crystals from the sides of the pan and pour the sirup in a fine stream over the egg whites, which have been beaten with the salt until stiff. Beat constantly while adding the sirup and continue beating until mixture thickens and begins to lose gloss. Add vanilla, nuts, and cherries, and drop by spoonfuls onto wax paper or pour into a greased pan and cut into squares when cool.

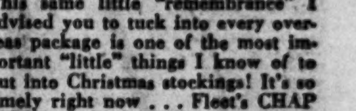
YOU at Your Loveliest

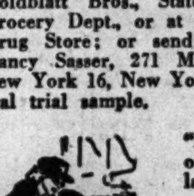
"Dreaming of a White Christmas" with YOU your loveliest at EVERY party? Then take my advice about that wonderful "short-cut" to beauty EDNA WALLACE HOPPER'S White Clay Pack can give. Keep it right on your dressing table, ready at a moment's notice to bring you the massage-like effects of an expensive facial. All you need to do is spread it over your face and neck and when that tightening, stimulating action is complete (about 8 minutes) . . . wash off! See how much smoother, clearer, your skin appears . . . what radiant freshness is yours for the evening. Simple reason why . . . dried, faded cells have been deflaked to reveal fresher, clearer top-skin beneath. Then into your loveliest gown . . . and have a good time! Ask for EDNA WALLACE HOPPER'S White Clay Pack at Cosmetic Counters.



We might as well dub it the "Yankee Plague" . . . so many Americans complain about faulty elimination. It's not as grim as it sounds, however, since there's a sensible way to relieve this condition. Yes, I'm reminding you again of the famous Battle Creek product, LD-LAX — that unique combination of lactose, dextrins and bland vegetable bulk that's clinic-proved as a gentle aid in relieving faulty elimination. The LD-LAX ingredients form a soothing, lubricating, massaging bulkage . . . not habit-forming! Ask for it at Goldblatt Bros., State St. Store, Grocery Dept., or at your nearest Drug Store; or send a dime to Nancy Sasser, 271 Madison Ave., New York 16, New York, for a liberal trial sample.

"Hidden Hunger".

Yes, we've all heard of "hidden hunger" . . . vitamin deficiencies. America is INTELLIGENTLY food-conscious these days . . . alert to true food values. That's why I again bring to your attention a product that is vitamin-rich . . . bodybuilding . . . economical . . . and DELICIOUS! It's PETER PAN Peanut Butter. Unlike many other brands, PETER PAN does not develop a "head" of separate oil, is uniquely creamy-smooth. Made from the finest peanuts that are roasted by radiant heat, PETER PAN'S quality is indisputable. Remember, too, it's a peanut butter you love to SWALLOW . . . does not cling to the roof of your mouth! Ask your Grocer for PETER PAN Peanut Butter . . . a nutritious taste treat for the entire family.



This same little "remembrance" I advised you to tuck into every overseas package is one of the most important "little" things I know of to put into Christmas stockings! It's so timely right now . . . Fleet's CHAP STICK that's specially medicated to KEEP LIPS FIT in all kinds of weather! It's as soothing as a lullaby (mothers find it wonderful when baby has a cold or drools) . . . and in cases of chapped, roughened, cracked or painfully sore lips . . . CHAP STICK'S the "fixer!" Ask your Druggist for this famous product—colorless, handy, easy-to-use and SO comforting . . . buy one for EVERY member of the family. Cost is only 25c. Use it after any exposure to extremes of weather, cold, wind, heat or dryness . . . the soothing comfort it brings will be appreciated by EVERY member of the family! Ask for Fleet's CHAP STICK!

"Don't let down" is an apt slogan as we step into our fourth year of war. This is not the time for relaxation or self-pampering . . . but it IS the time for sensible health and beauty preservation. If you're a war worker, give your hands a certain hand-beauty aid . . . they'll need it! If you're doing all your own housework — double, double ditto! I can't think of a better hand-help to suggest than PACQUINS Hand Cream . . . originally created for doctors and nurses to help protect their hands from chap as they dip them in and out of water 30 to 40 times a day. Use it as part of your regular beauty routine and ALWAYS after washing and exposure! Ask for PACQUINS Hand Cream at Drug, Department and 10c Stores. PACQUINS is fragrant, snow-white, non-sticky . . . wonderful protection against that red-rough, coarsened look!

"Good things often come in small packages" . . . and one of the BEST "little things" I can think of today is VICEROY Cigarettes . . . to send campwards, to stick into Christmas stockings, or even to decorate the Christmas tree! For sheer concentration of goodness in cigarettes . . . VICEROYS have the answer . . . firm packing, smooth smoking from fine blending of Turkish and domestic tobaccos, and NO dribbling of precious tobacco crumbs OUT of the cigarette. That unique filter tip keeps them IN for full smoking pleasure with no crumbs lost in purses or pockets! Thus it filters out resins and many throat irritants, too! And they're popular priced!

My guess is that you're rushing like the wind these last two weeks before Christmas, so try this quick, easy "helper-outer!" RY-KRISP, of course, that nutritive, 100% pure rye bread! The tempting crispness of each wafer-thin slice (only 23 calories per) makes it perfect with luncheon salads and soups. It serves well at dinner, too . . . for its hearty rye flavor compliments many main dishes. Children and grown-ups like it for snacks, plain or toasted and spread with cheese or spreads. Ask for RY-KRISP! Everybody will like it, and its blend of rye, water and salt is GOOD for everybody!

Grown-ups as well as children like "goodies" for Christmas. So why not make up several baskets featuring WELCH'S attractive, cellophane-wrapped GRAPELADE and MARMALADE? You know the tempting goodness of the contents — the delicate flavor of Welch's MARMALADE made from sun-ripened oranges . . . the full-bodied Concord grape-tang in Welch's incomparable GRAPELADE! Both delicious products are table-indispensables these butter-less days . . . table-delicacies ANY day. A basket containing several jars of WELCH'S fresh fruit spreads makes a perfect gift this Christmas . . . a mouth-watering present men, women and youngsters will enjoy!
